The Visiting Turners. The annual turn-fest of the societies of Baltimore and Washington, which commenced in fine style last Saturday, was continued to-day in the Park, making a tour among the various places of interest. They assembled at the gymnasium at 1 p. m., and proceeded to the Schuetzen Park, which was gallantly ornamented in honor of the occasion and where the competitive exercises in strength of skill was resumed promptly, and will be followed this evening by the award of prizes. The festivities will be concluded with a banquet, interspersed with the usual songs and speeches. Police Court. Robert Johnson was in the Police Court to-day on charges of a brutal assault. He assaulted a young woman named Amelia Lancaster at her house, at Tenth and M streets, on Saturday evening. A quarrel had occurred between them, and Johnson struck the woman down, inflicting injuries of a most serious character. Dr. Fay, who rendered very skillful service, made a statement to-day that if inflammation follows, the injuries would prove fatal. The case was continued until the victim of the assault is able to appear.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER. A Youthful Criminal at the Bar of Justice.

To-day in the Criminal Court (Chas. Taylor, a small colored boy about twelve years of age, was put on trial for the murder of another small boy named Edward Ford on the 13th of December last, in South Washington. Some time since the District Attorney applied to permit the prisoner to plead guilty of manslaughter and be sent to the Reform School during minority, but the father of the boy refused to permit it, believing that he could be acquitted. District Attorney Corhill and Assistant District Attorney Perry appeared for the prosecution, and Messrs. E. H. Thomas and Wright for the defense.

Mr. Thomas made the point that he had not been served with a list of witnesses within the time required by law, but he was overruled.

Mr. Perry then stated that the Government did not ask for a verdict of murder in this case. The court then proceeded to impanel a jury. The following jurors were accepted: William C. Coston, William R. Dudley, John A. Gibson, Dorsey Denney, Henry G. Washington, Robert Parker, Robert E. Boston, Lawrence S. Fletcher, Richard Beverly. The regular panel being here exhausted, a recess was taken for the summoning of talesmen.

AFTER RECESS Assistant District Attorney Perry announced that, having consulted with the District Attorney, he had come to the conclusion to enter a nolle prosequi in this case, and at the same time he gave notice that he would make application on next Saturday week to have the prisoner sent to the Reform School. District Attorney Corhill said he thought the public interests would be best subserved by this course, and if the boy, after a short term at the school, exhibited no malicious traits, he would consent to his discharge. The trial of the boy for manslaughter would be a mere mockery of justice. He demanded that the boy be held in custody until the application was heard.

The counsel for the defense objected to holding the accused after a nolle prosequi was entered, but court overruled the objection, and Taylor was remanded, his father consenting to the arrangement.

W. L. S. Excursion. The members of the Washington Literary Society, accompanied by a large party of invited guests, went to Glymont yesterday afternoon on an excursion. The steamer Corcoran transported the party down and back, and an excellent band of music was along to entertain the merry excursionists. On the boat and at Glymont mirth and pleasure reigned supreme, and Messrs. J. Strasburger, L. Heller and Ed. Rosenberg, of the committee in charge, made it delightful and comfortable for all participants. The party returned last night about 11 o'clock. Among those who enjoyed the pleasure of the excursion were Miss Rosa Schloss, of New York; Miss Kaufman, of Baltimore; Misses Rosenthal, Bendheimer and Waterman, of Alexandria; Emma and Mary Bensinger, Carrie and Jennie Oppenheimer, Pauline and Emma Samstag, Hannah Munster, Hannah Sachman, Cora Adler, Teresa and Bertie Kaufman, Roy Gauss, Henrie Adler, Emma Rosenberg, Clara Freirich and Amelia Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. A. Prince, Mr. and Mrs. R. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. William Bass, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Strasburger, Messrs. S. and I. Gauss, I. Saks, M. and H. Jacobs, M. Clark, M. Stein, J. and M. Strasburger, D. Nachman, S. Souza and others.

Preparing to Reopen. Mr. S. Katzenstein, the popular clothier, has nearly finished the improvements at his building, No. 310 Seventh street. The building has been renovated from foundation to the roof, and when completed will be one of the handsomest modern business houses in the city. He is now engaged in preparing stock for the fall trade, and when his arrangements are perfected he will be able to furnish suits ready-made of such perfect fit that it will not be necessary to have clothes made to order. His old friends and customers will be pleased to know that he will open on the first of September, when he will be glad to receive them.

There is no Bustle Place in Washington than the fine clothing store of Noah Walker & Co., 625 Pennsylvania avenue, and it gives us measure to chronicle the success of this old and reliable firm, and at the same time to recommend any one who is not familiar with the establishment to call there and make purchases of gentlemen's, youths' or children's clothing, or leave their measure and have their clothing or shirts made to order. We know whereof we speak.

The origin of the conflagration is not known, but it is supposed to be accidental. Dr. Murphy, who was passing, had his attention attracted by clouds of smoke, and turned in an alarm. A small quantity of hay was destroyed. The loss was trifling.

Washington Kindergarten Commencement. The fifth annual commencement of the Kindergarten Normal Institute took place on Saturday evening in the Metropolitan Church. The exercises were more of a solid than entertaining character, and it was a very interesting and gratifying spectacle to see a class of young and charming ladies giving their various points of view of what should constitute the early training of children. Their essays without exception evinced deep and philosophical thoughts, and were well worthy the close attention not only of President Josiah Bout and the Rev. Mr. Baker, pastor of the Metropolitan Church, and the Rev. Mr. Shippen, pastor of All Souls' Church, who were seated on the platform with them, but of all the audience.

The Kindergarten normal work exhibited for examination was beautiful. The play of "The Farmer" was exemplified by the ladies of the graduating class, who without exception reflect great credit upon their instructors. The well wishes of their many friends will follow them to their various places of duty to which they have been called, as was evinced by the many beautiful tributes presented to them. After the exercises Mrs. Pollock and her daughter, Miss Susie, received the heartfelt congratulations of their friends, and the young ladies held an informal reception.

The expedition will take with it a small steam yacht, which was sent over to Baltimore last week.

The order with reference to the crowding of excursion boats, issued from the Treasury Department Saturday, went into effect yesterday, and, as far as this city is concerned, to good purpose. None of the steamers leaving for trips down the river were overcrowded. Indeed, there was a general desire to get away with even a smaller number of passengers than the law allowed, and the inspectors, who were on watch, were gratified to observe how cheerfully the steamboatmen met the wishes of the Treasury. It is to be hoped that they will continue to adhere to their good intentions in this respect.

Yesterday morning the reverend pastor announced to his congregation that one thousand dollars would be required for proposed repairs. At the close of the services the amount was generously and immediately subscribed.

The large majority of the churches in Washington, indeed, nearly all are handicapped by debt, and worse still, with no specific certainty of capacity to discharge the indebtedness.
