"AMERICAN BOY," having a record of 2:13, was instantly killed at Albany Thursday night while being driven in Washington Park by Sebastian Froelich. In turning a sharp curve he struck a buggy, a shaft of which pierced his heart.

AT THE regatta in New York harbor yesterday, the Hildegarde was the first boat in at 4:43. 108, beating the Gracie on time allowance six minutes and twenty-one seconds, and winning the class by beating the net cup for sleep. Following the Gracie came the Mischief, Fannie, the Tidal Wave and Dauntless. The latter two won class prizes. The Tidal Wave won the Bennett cup for schooners. No sooner did the Dauntless cross the home-line than the wind died away and it was thirty-five minutes after when a southerly breeze sprang up, which, together with the returning flood-tide, carried the rear yachts along, the Vixen coming to the line first, winning her class prize, followed by the Vision, Regine, Wizard, Estelle (winner in her class) Crusader, Cletty, Floetwing, Madcap, and Southern Cross.

MR. H. F. GILLIS has written to Mr. Towsey, secretary of the Henley regatta, that he takes great pleasure in acknowledging the consideration shown by the stewards during his negotiation with them, and incloses a notice of the entry of the Cornell University crew for the stewards' and visitors' cups, with a certificate of their eligibility for these medals, attested by the British consul in New York.

BASE-BALL was played as follows yesterday: At Providence, R. I.—Chicago, 8; Providence, 4. At New York—New York, 6; Metropolitan, 9. At Troy, N. Y.—Troy, 3; Cleveland, 1. At Worcester—Buffalo, 4; Worcester, 15.

The Power of Wire.

A British sea captain said to a gentleman returning to New York: "You are going to have the most effective-looking city on the globe, because you are multiplying those enormously high buildings which raise you city into the air and make it look gigantic from the surrounding shores and waters."

"Yes," said the American, "and it is all owing to the elevators. Before they came in use high buildings were uninhabitable above the third or fourth story. Consequently the beautiful houses of the spring of the practical, just as a mountain is the result of the hole through it, where the volcano spouted, or certain beautiful shells the mere shafts through which the animal ascended and descended."

"Or the Irishman's cannon," said I, standing by, "which he said consisted of taking a round hole and wrapping brass around it."

"After all," said the sea captain, "it is one of the triumphs of wire cordage, without which you could not raise your elevators, and it is but a little over three hundred years since England learned from the Germans of Saxony the art of raising wire, which is itself, like the elevator pulled through a series of openings till the proper thickness is obtained."

"Yes," said the American; "blessed be Ludolph, of Nuremberg, the inventor of wire-pulling everywhere, except in politics! M. Longfellow did not content himself with Albert Durer and Hans Sachs, but he was a greater artist and saved the shoes of Sachs and takes many a Durer in his celestial studio. Blessed be John Roebing, too, who began the greater manufacture of wire-cordage in our country."

"Do you know," said the captain, "that a fathom of wire rope is little thicker than your cane and weighing half a pound a foot, will pull as much as a hemp rope half a foot thick and weighing a pound and a half a foot?"

"I have known a piece of wire, cap," said I, "no thicker than a straw, to draw a man weighing two hundred pounds the whole length of Broadway."

"Oh, come now!" exclaimed the obtuse Briton.

"Yes, sir! It was a hair pin."—Johnny Bonquet.

"A POUND OF FLESH."—An interesting surgical operation was performed by Dr. Rogden on Friday last at a private house in St. Louis, the subject being a well-known real estate agent; a pound of adipose tissue being taken from the back of his neck. The patient is a very large man, whose weight is now two hundred and forty-nine pounds. The fat had begun to gather in such heavy folds about his neck as to become a source of constant annoyance, the head having been crowded forward and held in an uncomfortable position. The skin was divided at right angles, so that the wound made a sort of cross, from beneath which all the underlying fat was taken. The piece of flesh which was weighed exactly one pound. The patient took nothing to sustain him in the trial, and did not appear to suffer much, even when the parts were being cauterized to prevent a formation of new tissue. The wound being closed up and bandaged, he lighted a cigar, ordered the pound of flesh to be cast into the sewer, and sat quietly down to read the paper. Only a few drops of blood were lost, and no serious consequences are expected. In fact, the patient may be seen taking his customary walks, and appears to enjoy life as much as ever. He expects to be able to attend to business this week as usual, the principal care being taken not to catch cold.—St. Louis Republic.

VILLAGE postmaster to his wife: "Here is a postal card to Mr. Jones, saying that his brother and five children will be here on Saturday. Now, keep that card back till then, and I will be at the depot, and when they find no one to meet them I will take them all over for $1."

Bough on Pittsburg.

Pittsburg must be in a bad way from the following letter, written by one of its most distinguished citizens and poets. It will be observed that Hon. Jas. McKee adopts the phonetic style of spelling.

It is utterly impossible to stand the hot streets of this bloody city any longer—better be dead than living—among such monsters of iniquity. I say there ought to be war—and that will be the end of this bloody state of affairs—no wonder the country is visited with floods and fires it is a wonder to me this city has stood so long. Every other door a beer hall. Pittsburg is nothing but a religious and political drunken mob—never was anything else. It is a disgrace to the civilized world. A city that might be an honor to the world is disgraced with beer halls and whisky shops. Our lawyers and old court houses are in the hands of these fellows. There ought to be 10,000 kegs of powder placed under it, then go down to the Metropolitan hall and blow it up. What is the use of keeping up a pack of thieves. It is a wonder a storm of fire and brimstone from Hell is not rained down upon this city which does these Monsters of God or man only to make money. The Taverns are filling the City with Paupers—and Hell with Devils I say that a keg of powder ought to be set under every whisky shop in 7000 the worst institution in this City is the Theaters. That is where the hang is hatched when a woman gets now how are you coming up—The first man or Boy uses such an expression before me I will knock him down. J. McKee.

Thomas A. Scott and Gen. Pope. Col. Scott had occasion to visit Gen. Pope at his headquarters at New Madrid, Mo. Gen. Pope is greatly addicted to profanity and violence of manner, and was particularly so at that time. Col. Scott entered his headquarters with the remark: "I should like to see Gen. Pope on his business."

"See my adjutant!" roared out Pope. "My business is with Gen. Pope in person."

"Blank, blank your business; see my adjutant, I tell you."

"I don't care whether your name is Scott or Jones, or Smith, or Brown. See my adjutant, blank, blank you."

"As I was about to say, my name is Scott, and I wish to see you on Government business. I have the honor to be Assistant Secretary of War."

Pope's demeanor underwent a revolution, as he said in the blindest manner: "I beg your pardon, colonel, I had no intention to be rude, but there are so many loafers in camp, and they annoy me so much, that I am sometimes put out of temper. Be good enough to take a seat, and have the kindness to inform me of your wishes." Col. Scott entered at once upon the business in hand, making no reference whatever to the outrageous behavior and acting as though the occurrence had not taken place.—Philadelphia Press.

Surprising Vegetation. "Let's see, they raise some wheat in Minnesota, don't they?"

"Raise what? Who raises what? No, sir, decidedly no, sir. It raises itself. Why, if you undertook to cultivate wheat in that State it would run us out. There wouldn't be any place to put our houses."

"Oh, no, they wouldn't. They've been told the grasshoppers take a good deal of it."

"Of course they do. If they didn't I don't know what we would do. The cussed stuff would run all over the State and drive us out—choke us up. Those grasshoppers are a Godsend, only there ain't half enough of 'em."

"Is that wheat nice and plump?"

"Plump! Why, I don't know what you call plump wheat; but there are seventeen in our family, including ten servants, and when we want bread we just go out and fetch in a kernel of wheat and bake it."

"Do you ever soak it in water first?"

"Oh, no, that wouldn't do. It would swell a little, and then we couldn't get it in our range oven."

The Bug of the United States. A Chicago rag dealer estimates that each of the 50,000,000 people of the United States discards an average of five pounds of clothing yearly, which makes 250,000,000 pounds for the whole. Then, he says, there are the tailoring establishments, big and little, whose cuttings are not much less in quantity in the aggregate, than the cast-off clothes of the nation at large, while their quality as regards is greatly superior. Then there are carpets and bedding, and curtains, and other domestic articles of cloth of some kind, which make up a goodly bulk in the course of a year. These different articles combined make up another 250,000,000 pounds of cloth material, which has been discarded from use, and which eventually finds its way into the ragman's bale. His estimate is that 100 car-loads of rags enter and leave Chicago daily.

What Grant Forgot. Gen. Grant continues to make astonishing statements. In a second Chicago interview he says: "When I was acting as president, if a single Senator from any State objected to an appointment, it was not made, although some Cabinet officers might have faced it." He cannot have forgotten that he made Simons's appointment for collector of Boston in the face of the objection of both Senators and the full Massachusetts delegation in Congress, except Butler, and having made it refused to withdraw it, though an overwhelming majority of the Republicans of the State protested against it.

An Appeal to the Charitable. Mrs. L. O. Freeman, residing at No. 621 Third street northwest, was attacked with hemorrhoids and neuralgia of the stomach a month ago. Dr. Townshend prescribed for her and she got temporary relief. Yesterday she had a relapse and is dangerously ill. Her husband is unable to be with her, and, as she has five children to care for, her case is one which commends itself to the charitable.

Birds of a Feather. Bradley is a nice man to be found on terms of intimacy—not to say conspiracy—with the Vice-President of the United States.—New York Tribune.
