

THE EVENING CRITIC. ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868.

LOCAL SPORTS.

How They are Enjoyed Hereabouts.

The double-reef shell race, which took place on the Eastern Branch Saturday evening, was a splendid success, the crowd being very large and the contest of a high order.

Considerable interest is being manifested in these races, and it is said that in a few weeks a race will be arranged between all amateur scullers, for a purse of $100.

BARGE RACE.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the barge race between the Annapolis and Columbia Boat Clubs on Saturday afternoon. As it was one of the first barge races that has taken place, it naturally attracted considerable attention among those specially interested in boating matters.

THE RICHMOND REGATTA.

The coming regatta which is to take place at Richmond on the 5th proximo, is exciting deep interest in our boating circles.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

The military tournament rifle match was resumed at Benning's range Saturday afternoon. The contestants represented members of the Columbia Rifle Club, Washington Light Infantry Corps, and the National Rifles.

A CHALLENGE.

Mr. Odium, of this city, has challenged all swimmers in the world for a swimming match in the Potomac for a purse of $250 or $500.

BICYCLE RACES.

The first annual races of the Arlington Bicycle Club will come off June 30, at 5:30 p. m., at Iowa Circle, Rhode Island avenue.

Holding Contractors to their Duty.

The contractors on District work were thrown into a state of commotion Saturday by an order issued by the District Commissioners revoking a contract recently awarded to Bailey & Fletcher for street work to the amount of $80,000.

THE COURTS.

EQUITY COURT.—To-day Rescove vs. Arlington Fire Insurance Company, auditor's report ratified; Steptoe vs. Steptoe, sale ordered; Myers vs. Wilson, sale finally ratified; McDowell vs. Connolly, rule on defence.

The Bickler Counterfeiting Case.

This morning in the Criminal Court, Assistant District Attorney Perry asked for an order to send to the Reform School James T. Bickler, a twenty-year-old colored boy indicted for receiving stolen goods.

A Disappointed and Excited Crowd.

A disappointed crowd of colored excursionists from Washington were at the Virginia Midland depot, in this city, this morning. They had purchased tickets in Washington from a committee of the Jefferson Third Colored Baptist Church to go on an excursion to Warrenton, but, upon arriving here, they found that no arrangements had been made for the proposed excursion.

LOUISVILLE seems blessed with a Grace Darling whose given name is Katie McKerns.

She is only fifteen years of age yet she has succeeded since she entered her "teens" in saving the lives of no less than eight little children that have fallen into the river. What is especially remarkable in this perfect duck of a girl, is that she cannot swim, but has developed a native talent in navigating a boat with a single oar to this remarkably good effect.

Do you intend going to a summer resort this summer?

Inquired Miss Fitzroy of her public friend "O. B.," yes, indeed. If there is any place where summer resorts this year we are going, surely.—See Haven Register.

ETIQUETTE gambling games in Carson, Nev., yield a quarterly license of over $600 to the school fund.

BLOODY FACTS.

For Courts and Juries to Consider—Homicidal Cases on Trial and on the Way.

After the routine business of the Criminal Court had been completed this morning, Edward Lucas, colored, was placed on trial for the murder of Mrs. Sarah J. Shipley, on the 25th of December last, near Willow Tree alley (Four-and-a-half street), South Washington, Col. Cookhill and Assistant District-Attorney Perry appeared for the prosecution and Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood for defense.

The case was briefly opened by Assistant District-Attorney Perry. Theodore Shipley testified that he resided on Four-and-a-half street, between Maryland avenue and C street. He is the husband of the woman alleged to have been murdered. He said that he was preparing to go out of the house on the 25th of December, and his wife was employed in the kitchen. While she was about her ordinary duties, she said to witness, "I am shot." He caught her in his arms as she fell. And one of the other neighbors assisted him. Saw a colored man in the rear of the yard. Saw three or four colored men in the rear of the yard when the pistol shot was fired.

On cross-examination the witness stated that when he accosted the prisoner in the alley (when he had never seen before) after the shooting of his wife, the prisoner, replied that there had been shooting all the morning by different people and that he had nothing to do with it; he said that probably the fatal shot was fired from the next house to his own; saw an old colored man in the next yard to that of the prisoner and he said that the shooting might have occurred in the next yard; there were four colored men in his company; saw them coming down stairs together.

Dr. George P. Fenwick testified that on the 25th day of December last he was called upon to attend Mrs. Shipley, and found her suffering from a gun-shot wound in the abdomen, about two inches from the navel. It was a fatal wound.

John J. Hartigan, who made the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Shipley, testified that the wound could have been inflicted by a pistol-shot from the direction of the windows of the prisoner, Lucas, while she was standing up at her kitchen door.

James Jackson testified that he asked Scott Jackson, as he ran out of the alley after the shooting, what the shooting was about, and he (Scott) said, "Don't give the thing away."

The witness, on cross-examination, testified that he heard the shot fired in the direction of Lucas' house, but knew nothing of the fatal result until afterward.

AN ACCUSED MURDERER ADMITS TO BE A BAIL.

This morning in the Criminal Court, in the case of John Murphy, indicted for the murder of Fitzgerald last month, Mr. H. J. Falls, of counsel for defense, made an application that the prisoner be admitted to bail on the basis of the circumstances surrounding the alleged homicide. The Assistant District Attorney stated what had appeared in evidence before the coroner's jury and did not oppose the motion, and the bail was fixed at $5,000 by the court.

MORROW.

John Donohue alias John Green, who killed Mrs. Catherine Bailey, a few weeks ago, in her house on the Seventh street, in the county, by hitting her in the head with a heavy iron, in a Sunday affray, will be put upon trial in the Criminal Court tomorrow. Messrs. T. F. Miller and John A. Clarke are the counsel retained for the defense.

A CLASSIC DRUNKARD.

How He Managed to Take a Drink of Whisky.

If the Providence Journal states the fact correctly, the bar-keeper was about to close up. He had said so several times, and had put out all the lights but one. The old fixtures had shook the sawdust from their feet and reluctantly directed their footsteps homeward. Only a stranger remained, dark, saddled man, who sat demurely on a stool and kept his thumbs revolving around each other like white mice turning a wheel.

When the coast was clear he stepped up to the bar and said softly: "May I whisper a word in your ear?" "You may, mister, if you will be quick about it," replied the drink-mixer, with his hand on the lamp-screen.

"I want you to fill me a flask of your best whisky for family sickness," said the stranger, producing an ancient wallet with twenty fathoms of leather whorl around it—a well-worn wallet, that looked as if all the waves and billows of bad luck had beat upon it, and gone over it and through it, and flattened it, and washed it out clean.

The barman filled him up a pint, shoved down the cork until it squeaked, wiped the bottle dry and set it upon the counter. "The autumnal air is getting a trifle tartish," soliloquized the stranger. "Would you have any objection to my taking a little liver-padder from my bottle?"

He filled the tumbler quite full, took it as he did paragon in the days of his infancy, and then remarked: "Perhaps, on the whole, as the night has far waned, and my family are on their spiral springs' end in their trundles, you had better put my bottle away on the sly, and let me have a little more of this good night." He said as he stood on the doorstep. "I see by the shadow on the sidewalk that you have kicked me again. You should remember, my frangible publican, what the dear old poet said: 'Fate cannot harm me now; I have dined to-day.' So say I. I have drunk to-night. Good night, taverner! How much the sparkling firmament looks like a far-off city, lit up for a festal night! Farewell! I shall see you later."

Belles of Custer's Command.

Deadwood Times. Mr. Street, who has recently returned from a prospecting trip, traveled several days on the trail taken by Custer's command in 1876, when on the road to that fatal field from which the majority of the glorious Seventh Cavalry were wiped out.

Up toward the Rosebud, while encamped, he noticed a little bunch of grass. Thinking it a bird's nest, he proceeded to examine it. Tearing the turf around he found a small silver watch, Swiss make, lying face downward. The grass beneath it was withered, and he noted a mark which that around had formed a little shelter over it in such a peculiar manner as to attract his attention. There is nothing about the time-piece to indicate its owner. Upon examination the works were bright and clean, and to-day the little relic of the lost command keeps as good time as it did five years ago.

Searching further, Mr. Smith discovered a six-shooting Smith & Wesson revolver with unfired cartridges in it. The weapon was much corroded with rust, but after considerable cleaning the works were made to operate. No bones or any remains could be found that would indicate a man had lost his life, and how these valuable articles came to be left there they were never known.

A Ministerial Spree.

The good people of Rock Island, Ill., are greatly excited over the story of a prominent Methodist clergyman's misset in the room of a local hotel, in which a deacon's pretty wife and a bottle of whisky played an important part. The facts of the case are, almost as good time as it did five years ago.

The weapon was much corroded with rust, but after considerable cleaning the works were made to operate. No bones or any remains could be found that would indicate a man had lost his life, and how these valuable articles came to be left there they were never known.

Dissecting Carl Schurz.

Chicago Interoceanic (Rep.). Carl Schurz is the Simon Tappertit of American politics. He has endeavored to lead revolutions in two hemispheres, in 1848 and 1872, and now begins to show symptoms of another outbreak. He demands "a new party." The Republican party was good enough for him as long as he kept him in the Senate, but as soon as his term expired he attempted to persuade people that a new one was necessary for the good of the Nation and himself. When he was given another office the necessity at once ceased, and the crying need that existed from 1872 to 1876 was temporarily supplied. But now, as soon as his salary expired, he is again engaged with the same old story. The issues are dead, he says; the old parties are rotten. What the Nation wants is a new political organization and an office for Carl Schurz.

A Legal Question.

There are Democratic horses, it seems. A veterinary surgeon writes to a morning paper to say that he has known horses that were so prejudiced against negroes that they would not permit them to come near them, much less mount them. We would like to know whether such animals, if attached to a common carrier livery stable, would be amenable under the civil-rights bill.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Pastor in Search of Fame.

Rev. Solomon Parsons, pastor of Tottenham M. E. Church, Staten Island, N. Y., has challenged Mr. Flinnott, editor of the American Brewer's Gazette, to public discussions on States' Rights touching the intoxicating properties of lager beer. The challenge has been accepted.

National Educational Association.

The twentieth annual meeting of the National Educational Association will be held at Atlanta, Ga., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, and 22d of July next. Arrangements have been made with a number of railroad and steamship lines having connection with Atlanta to issue tickets at low rates during the sessions of the association.

Why Don't You Interview.

Syracuse Herald (Ind.). Don Cameron says he "never talks for publication." "Probably he doesn't know." It is an art that Gen. Grant learned only by slow degrees. —Smilax and Japanese ferns are now made to grow in the open air, and while growing, and thus become doubly valuable for decorative purposes.

A Canal Across the Isthmus of Corinth.

If we may believe latest reports, French enterprise promises to undertake the execution of a third great engineering feat in cutting a canal through the Isthmus of Corinth, which, both in ancient and modern times, has formed an obstacle in the way of commerce between the Adriatic and the Aegean. When the tower of Corinth was at its prime, it was the one drawback to its happiness, the single element of weakness in its prosperity, that it was compelled to have two separate harbors—one for the gulf and the other for the Aegean.

With the view of mitigating, as far as possible, the inconveniences that arose from this circumstance, the Corinthians constructed across the Isthmus a polished roadway, over which vessels could easily be hauled, and from the purpose with which it was built, it was called the Diolos. After Corinth was destroyed by the Roman General Mummius (B. C. 145), and restored by Julius Cæsar, the Emperor Nero bestowed some notice on this once favored city, and by a marvellous display of engineering, cut a canal through the Isthmus, the ruins of the works which he caused to be erected are still shown.

It is said that Nero wished himself to strike the first blow, or as we should now say, lay the foundation stone; but a marvellous display of engineering, cut a canal through the Isthmus, the ruins of the works which he caused to be erected are still shown.

Mr. Vennor's Second Guess at July.

Mr. Henry G. Vennor, in a letter to a newspaper in Ottawa, Can., of the 23d inst., says: "I believe that the present summer is one in a triad of similar summers, probably the middle one. It is likely to resemble that of 1880, and to differ in some of its minor details. The approaching month of July will give a great deal of rain, as in 1880, over a large portion of the United States, and also by the Venetians, erected works which have been so much as tempted since the age of the Cæsars."

THE LINE OF DEFENSE.

The plan determined upon by the defense in the Star-route cases was stated to-day by one of those interested. It is not believed now that the cases will come to trial before December, and then a great number of witnesses, including Congressmen, Cabinet officers, and others in high official position, will be called to testify as to what induced the general expedition of the service. Another feature will be the summoning of all the journalists, either correspondents or editors, in whose papers assertions of fraud have been made. These men are to be put upon the stand and asked for the facts of their own knowledge on which the assertions printed were based. It is not believed by the defense that one in fifty of the persons who have written these statements can substantiate their assertions upon the stand. This will be relied upon to weaken the prosecution officers and lay the foundation for the claim that the charges have been instigated by interested parties, and that the men who wrote them know nothing of the facts.—T. A. Richardson, in to-day's Baltimore Sun.
