NEWS FROM THE WHITE HOUSE.

The President's Improvement is Marked and Satisfactory-Strength Increasing Daily-A "Critic" Inter-view with Dr. Hamilton. The rise in the President's temperature vesterday afternoon was slight. At 7 clock last evening, as shown by the bulletin, his pulse was 102, temperature 99.4°, respiration 19. This is a decrease of six points in his temperature as compared with Tuesday evening. His pulse was two beats lower and his respiration slower.

All Quiet at the White House.

All Quiet at the White House.

Affairs at the White House are now as quiet as is the case when the President is out of the city, and the force are now having an opportunity of clearing up the business that has accumulated since the eventfel 2d of July. The bulletin issued this morning shows that the progress of the President toward recovery is uninterrupted. His improvement since Monday has been marked and satisfactory, and his symptoms this morning are very encouraging. He is now taking more than the usual amount of nourishment, including beefsteak, milk, meat extract, toast saturated with beef juice, milk and potatoes and a little coffee.

daily, and he is now able to do more in the way of turning himself in bed and helping others to raise his body than the surgeons think it prudent to allow. He had a good rest last night, and the neural evening hypodermic injection of morphia has been reduced to one-sixteenth of a grain, less than one-half the quantity formerly administered. His condition altogether this morning is considered better than at any time since the shooting.

He was present at the morning examination and added his signature to the bulletin. He expresses himself as very well satisfied with the appearance of the wound and the character of the discharge, and regards all the symptoms as good as could be expected. The President is resting comfortably. The President is resting comfortably this afternoon. He lays with his head and shoulders a little raised. The President's pulse is still below a hundred, and his temperature and resuiration normal. ture and respiration normal.

A Sudden Death and the Cause. The old adage that "Life hangs upon a thread" has again been illustrated in the case of a poor old colored woman. Eliza Ray, aged about 50, is a hard-working old widow woman, and for several years past has lived at the corner of Delaware avenue and K streets northeast, over Whallon's drug-store. Her sole companion was a little nice, about 10 years old, who was possessed of a most ungovernable temper, and at times gave her aunt a great deal of Sult for Specific Performance.

Joseph Foerisch and wife this afternoon filed a bill in chancery against John Wagner and Thomas Dowling. The bill prays that Wagner may be compelled to pay the remainder of the purchase money and to perform his agreement.

AN OUTRAGEOUS CASE.

satisfying himself that Hitz was not in that city, returned last evening.

Andy Fahl, who has lived for many years in Baltimore at No. 838 West Baltimore street, was at work last evening at the bakery of Charles Walter on Lexington street, between Pine and Arch, baking bread with his employer standing by, when two constables of that city, known as Chas. H. Healy and Koffenburger, and who enjoy an unenviable reputation, entered the bakery, and, seizing Hahl by the arms, attempted to take him by force, without giving him time to procure his hat or wash the dough from his hands.

The constables told Mr. Walter that they were detectives, and that the man was wanted in Washington for a crime committed by Antonio Hitz, and, without further ado, the unfortunate baker was forced into a hack, driven rapidly through the streets, and by the time he recovered his bewildered senses he was on a train en route to Washington.

After arriving in this city, the abductor spent a part of the night in drinking and reveling, and at 1 o'clock took their prisoner to the house of Mr. Kunzig, on D street. to the house of Mr. Kunzig, on D street.

This gentleman was awakened from his sleep and accosted with the statement that the infamous Hitz was in custody at the door. A brief examination of the unfortunate baker, however, proved that he was not the man, and the reward being refused the discomfited constable left with their prisoner and took rooms at the American House.

This morning the would-be detectives were nowhere to be found.

Every effort will be made to arrest the scoundrels by the Baltimore authorities.

An Innocent Man Brought from Baltimore on a Serious Charge.

A small, thin, little German, giving his name as Andy Habl, appeared at Police Headquarters this morning and pitcously begged for transportation to his home, in Bultimore, which was refused by the authorities until he made the rather astonuding statement that he had been kidnapped. The police were at first inclined to discredit his story, but finally Lieutenant Eckloff and Detective Voss acceded to his request that they accompany him to No. 1304 D street, where, he said, he could prove his story.

This house is occupied by Mr. Adolph Kunzig and his wife and two daughters, concerning whom a report was printed this morning stating that a man named Antonio Hitz or Hiltz had outraged the servant and two daughters of Mr. Kunzig. The story, as gleaned by the police authorities from Messars, Kunzig and Hohl, is in substance as follows:

The family of Mr. Kunzig were moved to say about the case beyond what was stated in the morning bulletin. If they

Mesars. Kunzig and Hohl, is in substance as follows:

The family of Mr. Kunzig were moved to compassion some time ago by the sufferings of a beggar named Antonio Hitz and admitted him to their household.

This man violating grossly the hospitality of his benefactors, ontraged the Irish servant girl who was emyloyed in the house.

The story published this morning is declared a gross exaggeration in many particulars, and the father states that the statement that his two daughters were ruined is not true. However, the beastly mendicant, fearing that his deeds were discovered, left the house some days ago, and has not been seen or heard of since.

When Mr. Kunzig learned what course the men he had befriended had taken he employed Constable Fial, of this city, to follow the criminal, and offered a large reward for the capture of Hitz. It being supposed that the scoundrel had songht refuge in Baltimore, Mr. Fial went there, and on satisfying himself that Hitz was not in that city, returned last evening.

Gen. Wells, formerly provost marshal at Alexandria, and subsequently the military governor of Virginia, and now one of the lessees of the Alexandria canal, says there is a short, speedy, and effective way by which the Government can obtain possession of the piers of the canal aqueduct at Georgetown and build thereon a permanent bridge, and that is for it to assume the ownership of what he says is its rightful majority of the stock of the Alexandria Canal Company, and thereby give itself the required title to those piers. He says the Canal Company is in the hands of people who do not hold a majority of its stock, and that therefore its refusal to let the lessees sell the piers and pocket the money is a thing the Government ought not to respect.
