CLIMBING UP.

From the Bottom of the Well.

A wrinkled old man, with a wooden leg and his left arm in a sling, stumped into the managing editor's room this morning, and doffing his torn and faded cap, wore evidently in the alarming days of war, said: "Be your other editor, sir?"

The gentleman addressed was not the editor, but he said he was, and the old man proceeded to say:

"Well, sir, I have to go to the White House this mornin' and I heered as how the President was improv'ed, and somehow or another I felt so good that I wanted to hooray. Ideas and things kinder got to whizzin' through my brain the same as bullets whizzed at Chickamauga, and I jest wrote out in this shape, hope'n some newspaper would publish 'em."

The veteran then presented his manuscript, on which the following appeared:

Let all this mighty universe join in my song of praise.

And count upon the present time as our supplied of glory's noon.

And sing and shout and laugh aloud Through hill and vale and dell.

Beetles and our nation's patient's touched the bottom of the well.

Physicians' skill, an iron will, a tender wife at hand, And Providence controlling all, has sent joy to our land, And brings to us cheerful hope, On which we now must dwell, That Garfield will rise up again From the bottom of the well.

Slow, but sure, the windlass turns, winding And gradually we see him rise to this bright earth again.

His hand grip breaks death's spell, And soon he will return to us From the bottom of the well.

Again, I say, let all rejoice and praise sing With him, That death has been defeated and our ruler will be free From pain and dreary waiting, from tortures and rackin' spell, And is climbing the chain link by link From the bottom of the well.

"You will find that production a little crude, perhaps," said the veteran observed, when the editor had been perusing it, but the sentiment is all right I take it, and coming from one who lost a leg fighting under Gen. Garfield's command, perhaps it won't be out of place."

The temporary editor respected the old man's wishes, and after sundry corrections engineered its publication.

How They Parted.

A new song is entitled "How They Parted." We have not read it, but no doubt they parted in the usual way, about 2 a. m., after kissing each other "good-night" at least thirty-seven times. "Well, I guess I must go," he says with a sigh about two hours before he does go. Then, after another half-hour's conversation about one thing and another, he presses her hand with much pressiveness, says he really must go, and—lovingly lingers another half hour. Then he says he didn't know it was so late, picks up his hat and moves toward the door, where he puts his arm around her to prevent her falling in a swoon, and kisses her five minutes in one inuag and—still lingers. Then he gives her one more kiss just for luck and reluctantly steps down and out into the black, lonesome night, and calls around the next night. That is how they parted years ago—if we have not been misinformed.

OFFICERS LAMB and Hart, of the Fourth Precinct, found this morning at 3 o'clock five houses, near together, the windows of which were not secured. In each case the family had retired up-stairs, leaving their unfastened windows at the mercy of thieves, unless they are secured by the police.

A Steady and Sure Pull

Toward the Goal of Health.

Signs of Improvement in the Gland.

The President's Mind Perfectly Clear

A Slight Rise in Pulse Occasions No Alarm.

A Steady Improvement.

At 11 o'clock last night Mr. Blaine telegraphed as follows to Minister Lowell: "At half-past 10 to-night the general condition of the President is favorable. Late in the afternoon his pulse rose to 113 and his temperature to 100, both a little higher than the surgeons expected. Pulse has now fallen to 108 and fever is subsiding. The parotid swelling is steadily improving, and is less edematous in size. Apprehensions of serious blood poisoning grow less every hour."

Hopefulness of Dr. Bliss.

There was no material change in the President's condition during yesterday afternoon until about a quarter past 4, when the usual febrile rise began, and his temperature for the first time since morning rose above the normal point. The pulse and temperature both reached about their maximum at the evening examination, when they were respectively 110 and 100.5. In an interview with a reporter of the Associated Press, during the preparation of the evening bulletin, Dr. Bliss replied to questions as follows:

"What do you think of the condition of the President to-night?"

"He is better. Almost every symptom shows improvement to a greater or less degree."

"How are his pulse and temperature?"

"His pulse is the same as last night, 110; his fever is a little higher. It did not come so early as yesterday, but there is a trifle more of it. I do not regard that fact, however, as having any great importance. It is easily enough accounted for."

"In what way?"

"The parotid swelling. The patient is very sensitive to the influence of retained pus. As soon as pus accumulates anywhere his temperature shows it. We got it pretty much all out at the evening dressing, but it had already had its effect. The fever will soon subside now."

"How does the granular swelling look?"

"Better than at any time heretofore; better than I expected it would this morning. It has perceptibly diminished in size, and the pus-pockets are running together. We shall probably make another incision to-morrow and release another considerable quantity of pus which will be ready by that time to come out."

The Ball Moving Downward.

"It is reported that the ball has changed location? Is such the case?"

"Yes, we think the ball is making its way down deeper into the cavity of the pelvis; probably in the direction of the rectum."

"How do you know this?"

"We don't know it, but we think so, and we base our opinion partly on the evidence of touch and partly on the patient's own statement."

"Do you regard this downward movement of the ball as unfavorable circumstances?"

"Not at all; rather the contrary. It is very likely that that ball will have to come out some time, and we can get it in the part of the body toward which it is going as well as we could in its original location."

Is Good Condition This Morning.

This morning bulletin was as follows: EXECUTIVE MANSION, Aug. 30, 8:50 a. m.—The President slept the greater part of the night, awakening at intervals and retaining the liquid nourishment administered. His general condition this morning is about the same as at the same hour yesterday. Pulse, 102; temperature, 98.5°; respiration, 18.

D. HAVES AGNEW, D. W. BLISS, J. K. BARNES, J. J. WOODWARD, ROBT. REYBURN.

Accounting for the Figures.

The figures in the bulletin are somewhat higher than was expected, particularly the pulse, which is believed to be due to a great measure to the incision made in the gland this morning. An anæsthetic spray was used in the incision, as the cut was a larger one than usual.

1:30 P. M.

Dr. Bliss says the President's general condition is as favorable as at this time yesterday. The pulse is lower again now than an hour ago, and the fever has risen but slightly.

This Morning's Incision.

The incision made by Dr. Bliss this morning to further relieve the gland, was quite a decided fluctuation in the President's pulse. It ranged from 104 to 118, and when the noon bulletin was taken it was 116. The temperature was slightly increased, perhaps, from the same cause, the respiration rose, therefore, not satisfactory to the public. The physicians, however, say the whole trouble is with the gland and the high pulse is an accompaniment of its progress. Each incision made, though affording relief, causes some irritation to the patient and consequent fluctuations.

The Wound

seems to be doing no harm, and the physicians insist that no other unfavorable symptoms have been developed. In the present state of public feeling such a high pulse had a tendency to cause considerable anxiety on the part of the public. The White House, however, all seem to think

The Case is Proceeding Satisfactorily

After the noon bulletin was issued Dr. Agnew remarked:

"The President continues to do well."

Dr. Bliss said the high pulse causes no alarm as long as all other indications are favorable.

Dr. Reyburn said the gland would not be past a troublesome point for several days yet, and until it was such fluctuations must be expected and need cause no alarm. The day has been very hot and the cooling apparatus has been set to work again.

A Rumor Exploded.

There was circulated on the streets this morning a statement represented to have

PRUSSIA AND THE POPE.

A Change of Policy and Intercourse Between Berlin and the Vatican Re-established.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Following the rumor of a concordat between the imperial government at Berlin and the Vatican and the renewed hope that the revision of the May laws will be had, comes news that a chargé d'affaires to the Vatican will be immediately appointed by the Prussian government. This, it is said, will be followed by the appointment of a Papal Nuncio to Berlin. It is said that the Prussian change of affairs will be Baron von Schliezer, long the German minister at Washington, whose former experience as an attaché of the German embassy at the Vatican, and familiarity with existing difficulties, fit him for the place. This coming with the announcement of the Prussian appointing Dr. Korum Bishop of Treves, the visit of the Doctor to Vardin and his friendly personal relations with Bismarck, and his formal presentation to Kaiser Wilhelm to-day, is significant of a greatly changed attitude toward the Vatican on the part of the Emperor. It is said the influence of the King of Saxony and others prominent in imperial affairs have had much to do with bringing about an unexpected change in policy.

A Rise in Turkish Bonds.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A dispatch from Constantinople says the Sultan desires to hurry the settlement of the financial negotiations pending, and it is thought the proposition Messrs. Baring and Co. have made, representatives of the English and French holders of Turkish bonds, will be accepted. The announcement has caused a slight rise in Turkish bonds on the Stock Exchange here and on the Bourse in Paris.

Railroad Matters.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Members of the defunct Peoria Railroad pool met to-day and arranged to reorganize the pool. The plan will be carried out at a second meeting in about ten days. The Passenger Agents Association met to-day, and decided that unless the Eastern trunk lines agreed to the terms offered by the association before September, that tickets of those roads would be repudiated by the Southwestern roads.

A Steamer Ashore.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 30.—Dispatches from Rockland, Me., say that the steamer City of Richmond ran ashore on Mark Island ledge, Penobscot Bay, eight miles from that city. She struck how on, tearing a great hole in her hull, and rapidly filled with water. All her passengers have been safely landed on the island and tugs have been sent to her assistance.

Not the City of Richmond.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The Inman line steamer City of Richmond left New York on Thursday and on the following day was spoken 289 miles east of Sandy Hook. She should now be within three days of Queenstown. Penobscot Bay is 30 far from her course that she can scarcely be there, and the lost steamer is believed to be a local Portland or Bangor boat.

Fatal Accident in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 30.—Henry Hawkins and Charles Jackson, both colored, were instantly killed this morning by the falling of the wall of the building No. 56 Hanover street, which was being torn down. Henry Smith and Thomas Bruce, also colored, were both seriously injured. The latter it is thought, fatally.

Parnell to the Land Leagues.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Mr. Parnell, addressing a meeting of the Land League at Oldham, thanked the members for having expressed hatred of the government for its course in imprisoning Irishmen whose only offense was uttering words lawful in England, but illegal in Ireland.

English Statesman on the Stamp.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A number of members of Parliament are addressing the House of Commons on the subject of the clearing up of the stamp duty, and one of the spirited manifestos addressed, not only to his own constituents, but to the people generally.

Wheat Speculation that Cleared $2,000,000.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—The Cincinnati clique, represented here by Truman Handy, closed its great wheat deal to-day, and the clearing up has, it is believed, shown a profit of $2,000,000.

Death of a Baltimore Broker.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 30.—James P. Thomas, one of the oldest and best known stock-brokers of Baltimore, died this morning. He had been in failing health for some time past.

Current Rumors in Wall Street.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE EVENING CAPITAL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Higher markets, for a day or two at least, was the average prediction among the operators at the Branch last night, especially if the tenor of the news from Washington continues of a favorable character. The bulls said that the market closed right yesterday for further improvement to-day, and not a few were of the impression that Keene's immense purchases yesterday were partly for long account.

Osborne's people are also bullish, and say they bought stocks liberally yesterday morning. Several prominent stock houses are bullish Reading, it is stated, and among these is Osborne, and some believe it is for Mr. Vanderbit. Woerhschoffer thought, if so, it was done for the purpose of heading off Gold's Southwestern scheme, but the Sage following say such a story is ridiculous, as the Jersey Central-Wabash combination is entirely independent of the Reading connection, and say this explanation does not throw any light upon the movement in the stock. Some of the inside parties hint at a new and important scheme afoot, but will not say what it is.

Kennedy & Hutchinson are very bullish on Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Western Union, and predict that the latter will soon be above par. Sage deems the market has fairly turned for the better, and he is especially bullish on the Southwestern stocks and telegraph. It is also claimed by others that the strength of the market for low-priced non-dividend payers shows there is a great degree of faithful support in the miscellaneous list.

Huntington, of the Central Pacific, is buying Chesapeake & Ohio's "Common" stock, and tells his friends to purchase it for much higher figures. The party in Mobile & Ohio are also strong, and claim the stock is scarce and overvalued. President Porter, of the Chicago & Omaha Railroads, is in town, and reports good crops on his road.

A private special Washington dispatch to a Boston banker says the Secretary of the Treasury declares there is no necessity for haste in making another call of bonds, and he is debating in his mind whether to call the extended 5s or buy in the open market. A general strike is threatened along the Erie road.
