Saturday, September 3, 1881.

The thermometer at Fort Yuma says 125° in the shade. Charles Francis Adams has been telegraphed for.

MOODY is still throwing the weight of his influence against church fairs. It is supposed that some girl made him pay $5 for a forty-cent pin-ushion.

OUT in Indianapolis they are talking about an increase in the price of coal. Don't care anything about coal around here, but rain stock has gone up fifty points.

THEY now say that Flipper's appropriated Government money was found upon his servant girl. It is to be hoped that he can similarly account for the watermelons that are short.

ANY FAIR LADY can now assure herself of a lover at her feet by embroidering him twanging a very light guitar on her slipper. This may represent the ideal suitor, but if there is a real one, his portrait may be used instead.

THE GALLANT BOB must feel himself in an embarrassing predicament now that a lady, the Princess de la Tour d'Avengne, has taken up her abode on the Mount of Olives and proclaimed herself ready to head a crusade against the atheists of the world.

AS ANOTHER WONDER to be added to this year of wonders, due mention should be made of the fact that the extraordinary weather has driven the London clubs to partake of a very hot water, and thus set the stamp of fashion upon that innocent beverage.

AS A CONSEQUENCE of the continued drought, water is being carried for the use of the colliers in Pennsylvania. This will probably so affect the prices that the prudent housekeepers, who fill their bins early in September, will postpone the job for economic reasons.

TWELVE MILLIONS of Methodists will be directly represented by the 400 delegates who are about to assemble in London as forming the Ecumenical Conference. This membership, vast as it is, does not include the entire constituency of the church, which is estimated at reaching 60,000,000.

GOVERNOR TABOR, of Colorado, appeared in Chicago this week wearing an old linen suit and a rusty straw hat, with a $6,000 diamond in his shirt-front and a $3,000 ditto on his finger. No general alarm need be felt till we learn that the governor had on a $6,000 linen suit and a $3,000 straw hat.

THE MONEY VALUE of justice and mercy is demonstrated anew in London by the fact that the Improved Industrial Dwelling Company has just paid a dividend of five per cent. By its improvements upon the houses of the poor, the death rate in the district under its jurisdiction is one-third less than that of London as a whole.

THERE ARE ALWAYS too many practical jokers in every community. At least one of those public nuisances has, however, been, it is hoped, cured of his folly. In an ocean steamer bound for Australia, a would-be passenger "just to see the fun," raised the cry of "Man overboard." The vessel was stopped, and the lifeboat manned, but by accident five sailors fell into the water and two were drowned. Nobody but the perpetrator of the joke can see just where the fun came in.

WE ARE under obligations to science in a trying hour. It is now stated that "an ingenious physician gives it as his opinion that the bite of the mosquito is the best cure for malaria! This is a little startling to the beginner, but the theory is based on the fact, asserted at least by him, that the two always go together, and that where malaria is very prevalent mosquitoes abound in great quantities, and that the poison of their sting is nature's antidote to the poison of malaria. He does not say whether a decoction of smashed insects might not answer equally well and be less irritating." Take down your bars, gentlemen, and give the mosquito a chance at his mission.

WE CANNOT HELP VIEWING Secretary Hunt's criticism upon the Commanding Officer of the Tallapoosa, yesterday, as unnecessary and unwise. The regulation referred to, prohibits the presence of the wives and other female relatives of officers on board ships "in commission for sea service." But the Tallapoosa is not a ship in commission for that regulation. She is not even a man-of-war in any sense of the word. On the contrary, she is a simple freight and passenger steamer, employed in what may be called the coasting trade of the navy, that is to say, engaged in carrying stores from the chief manufacturing Navy-yard in Washington to the other yards along the Atlantic coast.

FOR the rest she is employed now and again to carry the Secretary of the Navy, together with the families of his family and their friends, on pleasure trips and excursions. The Secretary's criticism upon the presence of the officer's wife and daughter on board will therefore have no effect except to call public attention to the fact that the Commander had the example of his civil superior to guide him, and was only conforming to the precedent long established by the head of the Department. The same remark might be applied with even greater force to the case of the Dispatch, which is openly and without the slightest pretext of naval requirement, employed by the Secretary and his friends as a yacht at the public expense.

IF there is anything the American people insist on, it is fair play; and the Secretary makes a grievous mistake if he supposes that the press or the public will sustain him in criticising an officer for merely following the Secretary's own example. As we remarked the effect of yesterday's, little episode will be to call public attention, not to the commander's alleged infraction of the regulations, but to the Secretary's custom of employing the public ships for the uses of private pleasure. And the result will be—if too close attention is drawn to the matter—that some day when the navy estimates are under consideration in Congress, some wild-eyed reformer from a haysed district will move to insert the following amendment as a "rider":

"Provided, That no vessel owned by the United States, or navigated at the public expense, shall be employed to transport any pleasure party, or converted to any use other than that of transacting the ordinary and necessary affairs of the navy," and

"Provided, That no woman shall be permitted on board any public vessel of the United States, except receiving-ships, ships in ordinary, and ships at anchor!"

Such a proviso would be a formidable thing for a member of Congress to vote against. But if such a proviso should be injected into an appropriation bill, what would become of the genial junks of the distinguished Secretary and his handsome female companions, whom "Old Salt," of the Capitol accuses of "trifling with the compasses?"

We advise the able Secretary to go slow. If he intends to draw the line of the regulations down fine, he must bear in mind that public opinion will soon compel him to obey the same rules which he exacts of his subordinates.

CAPT. A. A. THOMAS, the editor of The Reporter, a journal of departmental news and decisions, published in this city, pays his respects in the last issue of his paper to Assistant Secretary French, of the Treasury Department, in the following truthful and spicy language:

Assistant Secretary French is an insolent braggart, with no capacity whatever for the delicate duties of his office, which are to construe the revenue laws. Merchants and importers whose business has brought them in contact with him almost unanimously complain of the treatment they have received at his hands. He has even gone so far as to pronounce that it is his official duty to construe the laws so that they shall conform to his own preconceived notions of what they ought to be. He is so some of his absurd rulings hundreds of thousands of dollars of the capital of sugar importers alone have been tied up only to be released at the bidding of the courts, which have without an exception decided the other way. Other interests have suffered similarly. Notwithstanding the decisions against him, he renews his rulings in every case, and compels every importer to resort to legal process. His rulings have long been demanded by the commercial interests of the country, and it is a blot on Secretary Sherman's administration that French was not dismissed.

We have observed sentiments of this kind floating through various journals of the country for several weeks past, and some newspapers of great prominence, in a commercial sense, in New York and Boston, have expressed identical views in unqualified terms. Now what does this mean? Is it to be inferred there is no fire where there is so much smoke, and have the commercial interests of the country no standing whatever in the great court of the Treasury Department?

Is there something radically wrong in the methods of Mr. French? If so, a remedy should be at once applied, because he is vested, whether legally or illegally, with final authority in commercial questions involving millions upon millions of interest to the merchants of the country. It is claimed that he enjoys this unusual power more by courtesy and custom than by warrant of law, and that he has been permitted to assume the functions of the properly constituted law officer of the department. There is no statute conferring more than advisory powers upon the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, and they are required to perform only such duties as may be directed by the Secretary of the Treasury in consonance with the provisions of law. Certainly Assistant Secretary French cannot arrogate to himself powers which the law does not confer even upon the Secretary of the Treasury. Secretary Windom, who is a careful and painstaking officer, should make inquiry into these complaints, to the end that the commercial interests of the country should suffer no longer from abuses which seem to have existed so far without remedy.

We have no patience with the methods of a certain class of officials who treat every citizen, contending for his legal rights, as if he were a common thief. The relations between the Government and the citizen are mutual. The Government is entitled to its own, and the citizen should enjoy every right the law confers upon him. But, if report be true, and it seems well authenticated, Assistant Secretary French takes special delight in discriminating against every person or association which may be unfortunate enough to come under his autocratic dominion. Secretary Windom cannot afford to prejudice his administration by continuing this oppression.

Call Out the Troops. The people down about Laredo do not seem to like the idea of a colored inspector being appointed to keep an eye on them. A business by the name of Samuel H. Hurst, from New Orleans, has recently assumed the duties of inspector, or river guard, and the people are rebellious. A gentleman from Laredo reports that Hurst was shot at three or four times the other night, and barely escaped being killed.

No Place Like Home. On the 11th, the young ladies who have returned from this summer, and—whisper it not in Gath—there are quite a number of our loveliest girls who have been at home the live long summer, are looking as healthy and blooming as any of those who are at the fashionable resorts. Those who are away will find on their return a good many of our eligible young men mortgaged to their stay-at-home sisters.

Official Announcement. Chicago Post. As there is loyal to his friends, and he will continue to be loyal, whether President or Vice-President. He has worked hard with the advance wing of the party, and should become President he will continue what his convictions have made him, a stalwart Republican.

Found in Bad Company. Fourteen Republicans and one Democrat voted in favor of fraud and bribery at the New Hampshire elections. Perhaps it was to be expected of the Republicans, but that one Democrat ought to be ashamed of himself.

Another Attack. The Swedish government will send a select expedition, for the purpose of a meteorological observation, to the north of Spitzbergen next year. It will remain there until the winter of 1883.
