Invitation from the Whigs of Baltimore to the Whigs of the Union.

To the Whigs of the Union:

The undersigned have been directed by the Whig Convention of Baltimore to solicit the attendance of their fellow-Whigs from all parts of the Union at the meeting of the National Convention, on the 16th June.

The invitation which they are instructed to extend is on behalf, not only of those whom they immediately represent, but of the body of the Whigs of Maryland. On memorable occasions heretofore our fellow-Whigs have honored us by assembling here in council.

It is almost as certain (as may be judged from an article we quote from the Southern Press) that the State Rights party of the South will not support those nominees.

It is almost as certain (as may be judged from an article we quote from the Southern Press) that the State Rights party of the South will not support those nominees.

Consensus of these facts, the knowing "Ion," of the Baltimore Sun, has this morning a very adroitly-written letter, in which he predicts a nomination by the Free-soilers, and the consequent defeat of Gen. Scott!

We have before us a letter to the New Orleans Delta, dated Washington, May 24th, and, as we are well assured, written by this same "Ion," in which he says of Mr. Fillmore:

"From New England he will scarcely have a single delegate in the Convention; for the New England delegates who do not go for Webster will go for Scott. The votes which are claimed for him from Illinois he will not get, according to recent advices. He will certainly not receive a dozen votes from all the non-slaveholding States. His election, as well as nomination, being out of the question, he is now called upon to retire from the position of a candidate. Should he retire, Gen. Scott's chance for the nomination will be somewhat lessened, because other candidates will come more prominently before the Convention. The Southern Whigs, generally, are disposed to support Mr. Fillmore as a candidate for re-election, because he is the leader of an administration of whose general course they approve; but it would not be difficult for the Southern delegates to find other men in whom they would confide as candidates. Mr. Webster may become a more prominent candidate after Mr. Fillmore's withdrawal, or GEN. SCOTT MAY BE ALMOST UNANIMOUSLY NOMINATED, AS A KNOWN AND AVOWED FRIEND OF THE COMPROMISE MEASURES. The Southern Whigs will not withdraw from the support of Gen. Scott, whatever sentiments he may avow, because they are looking, through the overlaugh of Fillmore and Webster, to the succession.

Gen. Scott talks—and perhaps not prematurely—of what he is going to do in the White House. As matters look now, he will have a fair chance for election. Governor Porter, of Pennsylvania, says he will carry Pennsylvania against any Democratic candidate, unless Congress do something for the IRON INTEREST. Many Democrats admit that he will carry Ohio and Indiana. Being both a SOUTHERN MAN AND A FRIEND TO THE COMPROMISE, HE CANNOT FAIL TO CARRY THE SOUTHERN WHIG STATES."

From so sagacious a politician, and so keen and deadly an opponent of General Scott, as is the writer from whom we quote, the above statements are highly important, and afford the best commentary upon what to-day appears from his pen in the Baltimore Sun. It will be seen that he admits—

- 1. The great popularity of General Scott in the North.
2. His "known and avowed" friendship for the Compromise.
3. The fact that the "Seaward men" are for Gen. Scott, not because he is for them, but because they are looking, through the overlaugh of Fillmore and Webster, (Northern men,) to the succession—Gen. Scott's more Southern position making it possible for a Northern man to be elected at a future time.
4. That the Whig championship of protection will secure to him the Keystone State.
5. That, being a Southern man, and a friend of the Compromise, he cannot fail to carry the Southern Whig States.

"Ion" has spoken truthfully and candidly in this letter. He wrote it for the instruction of distant readers, and not for the purpose of influencing the movements immediately to be made upon the political chessboard. "Ion" has checked himself this time.

The Whigs of the whole Union will support Gen. Scott. They will support him as a Whig, as a national man, as an illustrious patriot and hero, as one whose long life attests his noble worth, whose public career is the pride and ornament of his country, and whose private reputation has never been sullied by the breath of the defamer. His will be a pure and just administration. His influence upon the social circles of the capital will be hailed with gladness by all who love the well being and virtue of our people. In the administration of the laws, a kindly fostering spirit will be exhibited toward the people of all sections of our own country, while justice and moderation will mark our intercourse with the world beyond us.

"Whig Dissensions." Our opponents say much on this subject; but it is well known there never was a time at which the Democratic party was more divided than before and during the session of the late Convention. The Whigs will agree upon their men and their platforms, and their banner will triumphantly wave in the breeze. The differences of the past and the present respecting the choice of their candidates will soon be remembered no more.

Turner's Concert at Odd-Fellows' Hall To-Night.

We are informed that Mr. Turner will give but this one concert in our city; and we would therefore urge all who can delight in the melody of pure, touching, and simple ballads, to go and hear him. Mr. Turner has a rich and full voice, and executes his songs with ease, expression, and grace. The hall should be filled. An evening cannot be passed more pleasantly.

Congress To-Day.

SENATE.—Mr. SEWARD presented the resolutions of the New York Chamber of Commerce, in favor of appropriations for the removal of the obstructions at the mouth of the Mississippi river; also, in favor of a cemetery for seamen.

Several petitions in favor of the passage of the homestead bill were presented.

Mr. SEWARD's resolution directing an inquiry as to the expediency of purchasing Catlin's collection of Indian scenes and portraits was taken up, and, after a long debate, was laid on the table.

The bill granting further remedies to patentees was then taken up; and afterwards the Senate went into executive session.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—The House, after debate, laid upon the table—yeas 99, nays 88—the bill granting the right of way and a donation of public lands to aid in the construction of railroads in the States of Florida and Alabama.

The Indian appropriation bill was then taken up in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, when

Mr. MEACHAM concluded the speech which he commenced yesterday, in reply to Mr. Rantoul, and in support of protection to home industry.

The Freesoil Democracy.

It is very certain that this portion of the Democratic party will not support the nominees of that party.

It is almost as certain (as may be judged from an article we quote from the Southern Press) that the State Rights party of the South will not support those nominees.

Consensus of these facts, the knowing "Ion," of the Baltimore Sun, has this morning a very adroitly-written letter, in which he predicts a nomination by the Free-soilers, and the consequent defeat of Gen. Scott!

Democratic Ratification Meeting.

The meeting called by the Jackson (or Democratic) Association of the city of Washington, to ratify the nominations of Gen. Pierce and Col. King for the Presidency and Vice Presidency of the United States, made by the Baltimore Convention, "came off" last evening, in front of the City Hall.

It was organized by calling the white-haired veteran, Gen. ROBERT ARMSTRONG, one of the proprietors of the Union newspaper, to the chair, and the selection of a large number of vice presidents, among whom were those two other representatives of Young America and the age of progress, AMOS KENDALL and THOS. RITCHIE, esqs.

After the chairman had briefly, but pertinently, explained the object of the meeting, the venerable Thomas Ritchie was called for, and his tall person was soon seen on the rostrum. This distinguished gentleman, who has been connected with the press of the country for about half a century, (since about the memorable years of "ninety-eight and ninety-nine," gave his cordial assent to the nominations, and spoke in high terms of the talents, character, and political orthodoxy of New Hampshire's favorite son. He then requested an officer of the meeting to read a letter written by Gen. Pierce to Major Lally, in May last, in which the writer strongly supports and urges the maintenance of the Compromise measures. (We did not see the post-mark or date. Perhaps they will be exhibited when those of Gen. Pierce's letter to R. G. Scott are verified!)

After the reading of this letter, Gen. Lewis Cass was introduced to the assemblage, and was received with every demonstration of favor. The short speech of this time-honored Democrat was in good taste, and creditable to him as a man and as a statesman. He congratulated his party upon the selection of their standard-bearers, Gen. Pierce and Col. King, and bestowed a warm eulogium upon them as men of honor and as judicious statesmen. Gen. C. entreated his friends not to indulge in acrimonious assaults and scurrility during the canvass, but to conduct it on grand principles—the issues which divide the parties. "Let us," said Gen. C., "indignantly frown upon every man who so far forgets what is due to himself and to the cause he professes to support as to quit the contest of principle to descend to that of scurrility. We are better without such a man than with him. There are honorable points of difference enough between us and the Whigs to engage our attention, and to call forth all our energy, without entering into such a piece of warfare."

The ex-President of the "lone-star republic," now the State of Texas, Gen. Sam Houston, was the next orator. He, like his compatriot from Michigan, heartily approved of the selections made by the Convention. Gen. H.'s address was brief, sensible, seemingly sincere, earnest, and contained nothing disrespectful to his political adversaries.

But the speech of the evening from the big guns was made by the Illinois Senator, who is styled by his friends and admirers the "Young Giant of the West." Personally, we esteem Judge Douglas, and we have heretofore given him credit for higher judgment and greater shrewdness and tact than he exhibited at this gathering of the untried Democracy. Candor compels us to say that the Judge, upon this occasion, acquired no laurels; that the entire speech was in shocking bad taste, lamentably deficient in ability, coarse and vituperative in the language applied to a great party, and, upon the whole, entirely unworthy, in ability, dignity, and style, of the fame of the orator. We write this "more in sorrow than in anger." Such a speech from "Young America," especially after the wise, judicious, and moderate language of his venerable competitor in the late contest, an extract from whose speech we have given above, elicited surprise among both Democrats and Whigs. We shall not attempt to sketch the speech of Judge D., but will present some of the gems it contained:

After endorsing the Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees, and extolling the platform "sky-high," he declared the utter incapacity of the Whigs to administer the government. (The reader will bear in mind that there are such men as Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, Millard Fillmore, and Winfield Scott in the Whig party.) Whig administrations were recklessly extravagant. The incapacity of our present rulers was such that at the beginning of the session of Congress they could not tell by millions how much money was necessary to carry on the government. (John Quincy Adams administered the government with the expenditure of thirteen million dollars; the management of the same machine by that Democrat, par excellence, Martin Van Buren, reached about forty millions.) Galvanism and Gardinerism were despatched upon, and our present Chief Magistrate was roughly handled on account of the lamentable end of fifty of our countrymen in the island of Cuba. Whenever the Whig party were in power, the flag of the country trailed in the dust. These were some of the brilliant passages in the speech of Senator Douglas. But we must hurry to a close.

Gen. Joseph Lane was the next speaker, and it was his privilege to impart something new to his listening auditory. The government of this country had at different times been conducted by two "FACTIONS"—Democrats and Whigs.

The race of lions being exhausted, Mr. Francis Gallagher, of the city of Baltimore, next took the stand. This gentleman is an orator "per se, sui generis," decidedly of the unique stripe. He commenced by saying that he was from the city where the Convention was recently held; that the Convention was a second edition of the Philadelphia slaughter house; that Gen. Cass was there stabbed by traitors, but, whilst this operation was going on, the ladies in the gallery were pressing the noble old General to their bosoms. Gen. Scott, said the orator, would have a firm in the rear and in front. He and the Whig party would be carried in a sea of soup to the moon; there they would be partly burned, and thence they would fall into their native hell!

There were other speeches before the meeting closed, but we had heard enough for one evening. The gathering was large, but there was but little enthusiasm manifested.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Pursuant to a call given through the various pulpits of the city and the public press, a meeting of the young men of the different Protestant denominations, and others interested in the organization of a Washington Young Men's Christian Association, was held at the Masonic Hall, corner of E and Tenth streets, on Wednesday evening, 9th instant, at 8 o'clock, and organized by the election of Judge T. J. JOHNSON as chairman, and W. C. LAWSON as secretary.

The meeting having opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Nourse, the chair stated its objects and the designs with which it had been called. At the request of Mr. Dunmer, Mr. Langdon submitted a statement of the steps which had already been taken, and the encouragement which had been given by the different clergymen connected.

A preamble and resolutions, submitted by Mr. Dunmer, after some amendments and debate, in which Rev. Mr. Noble, Dr. L. D. Johnson, Messrs. Dunmer, Spurrer, Lawrence, Langdon, Miller, Davis, Lane, Rothwell, and others took part, were adopted, as follows:

WHEREAS, The young men of Washington, present or represented at this meeting, are deeply sensible of the necessity for the organization and successful practical operation of a Young Men's Christian Association, for purposes of mental, moral, and religious improvement; Therefore it is Resolved, That the meeting appoint a committee, to consist of one member from each denomination here represented, whose duty shall be to prepare and report to a subsequent meeting a constitution and by-laws for the organization and government of such an Association.

Resolved, also, That those persons present who intend to become members of the Association be requested to leave their names with the Secretary.

A third resolution, requesting the Chair to appoint a committee of three persons to prepare and publish in the city papers an address to the young men of Washington and of the Union, calling their attention to and defining the objects of this Association, and soliciting their countenance and co-operation, was, on motion of the Rev. Dr. Junkin, laid on the table.

After some remarks from Mr. Lawrence and others, the meeting elected the following gentlemen, nominated by their respective denominations, as the committee on constitution and by-laws:

W. C. Langdon, from the Protestant Episcopal Church; Jas. N. Davis, from the Methodist Episcopal Church; Judge C. J. Johnson, from the Presbyterian Church; S. S. Edward Myers, from the Presbyterian Church, O. S.; Wm. Q. Force, from the Baptist Church; A. G. Brown, from the Methodist Episcopal Church South; Dr. L. D. Johnson, from the Methodist Protestant Church.

It was moved that the committee be authorized to receive applications from denominations not represented at this meeting; but, after a discussion between Rev. Dr. Junkin, Dr. Langley and Johnson, Messrs. Rothwell, Saxton, Myers, Spurrer, Langdon, Duncan, Zevilly, and Davis, the motion was withdrawn.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Junkin, it was Resolved, That those persons not here present wishing to become members of this Association be requested to leave their names with the Secretary, between this and the next meeting.

Ordered, That the committee on constitution and by-laws be empowered to call the adjourned meeting of this Association as soon as they may be ready to report.

Ordered, also, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in such of the city papers as will give them insertion.

In pursuance of the second resolution, from thirty-five to forty gentlemen came forward and enrolled themselves; and the meeting then adjourned.

Medical Electricity. Rüdaway's Ready Relief imparts an electrical influence through the system. Its first indication is to stop pain—this it does instantly. It next acts vigorously upon the diseased parts, strengthening and invigorating the nerves, performing their functions regularly and healthfully.
