NATIONAL WHIG NOMINATIONS. FOR PRESIDENT, GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT, OF NEW JERSEY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, WILLIAM A. GRAHAM, OF NORTH CAROLINA.

"I HAVE SERVED THE UNION FOR FORTY-ODD YEARS, AND FEEL MYSELF A CITIZEN OF EVERY PART OF IT; AND WHATEVER OF LIFE AND STRENGTH I MAY HAVE SHALL BE DEVOTED TO ITS PRESERVATION."—General Winfield Scott's Castle Garden Speech.

Our Proposed Campaign Paper—"The Rights of the People."

We have determined not to issue this paper. All moneys that have been received for it will be promptly returned; and those who do not receive such returns by the next mail after the receipt of this notice are requested to inform us of the fact.

Our thanks are tendered to our many friends. The readers of the DAILY AMERICAN TELEGRAPH will in a few days perceive in its columns the evidence of enhanced efficiency and acceptableness.

How Would they Conquer? A careful reader of the Union and other Democratic newspapers cannot fail to perceive as the ruling and dominant idea of their editors the desire to conquer solely by the impairment of Whig organization.

It is obviously admitted by them that neither their own cause, nor the strength of their candidates, nor any demerits in the candidates of our party, afford them any grounds of hope. Except in a few straggling and bungling instances, direct assaults upon us and comparisons of their candidates with ours are no longer made.

The defection of an Abolitionist, a Native, or a chivalric gentleman who is above keeping good faith with those who have elevated him, is their only encouraging portent. Yet, while they vaunt of these things, accusations of VOTERS are being daily made to our ranks in the States of the Union, in a manner that has never had its precedent since the organization of the present parties.

The success that has for a number of years attended the Democratic party has been produced by causes that no longer exist.

The title Democratic has hitherto had a charm for the masses, who now comprehend the absurdity of its assumption by a party notoriously managed by crafty wire-workers, whose selfish schemes have prevented a real participation in the affairs of the government by the people themselves.

Their never ceasing appeals to the prejudices of large portions of our fellow-citizens as for signers and Roman Catholics now fail them, and the naturalized voters of the United States have learned that they are their true friends who scorn to point to such distinction in asking their votes.

The slander and defamation of Henry Clay by almost every Democratic press in the country—the charges against him of bargain, corruption, intrigue, British influence, and aristocracy, all of which ever acted adverse to the Whig party—are now silenced; and while one portion of the calumniators hang their heads in shame, another portion disclaim the foul libels, and declare that they never uttered the name of Clay but with honor and reverence!

It has also been the practice of our adversaries to do all they could to embroil our government in conflicts and strife with other nations, and to claim for themselves the prestige of all the glory achieved in battle. The bones of thousands of our countrymen are now strewn over many a battle-field, and it may be that our adversaries deserve all the credit of producing the war. We at least will not attempt to dispute their title to it. But the glory of the battles now radiates from the standard of the chieftain who leads our party in the present contest, and millions of freemen exultingly proclaim that gallant and noble leader the hero and the statesman worthy their devotion and suffrages!

Hitherto they have enabled by false representations to deceive the people respecting their true position on the questions of protection and internal improvements; but now the deceptions of '44 with respect to the former are too well understood, while Gen. Pierce's votes on the latter stand on record against him.

And so we could go on, ad infinitum, to prove that the omens are all in our favor. But it is unnecessary. The Democrats know the truth of what we say. As rheumatics say of approaching foul weather, they feel it in their bones! And hence it is that they seek to undermine the ramparts they dare not attack. But it will not do. The handwriting is on the wall, and it needs no prophet to interpret it. The Aile of the Democracy is over; and true, pure, and genuine republicanism is to rise with the success of the Whigs and their illustrious and honored candidates. THE HEARTS OF THE PEOPLE are in this work, and nobly will they accomplish it.

A Child Drowned. Joseph Stephens, seven years old, son of Mr. Stephens, carpenter, Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th sts., was this morning found drowned in the canal, near 10th-street bridge. He left home about six o'clock yesterday evening with other children, and was playing in a canal-boat when they returned to their homes and left him alone. Being missed from among the children at bed-time, search was made for him by his parents and others, but it was not until this morning that the neighboring children gave information as to where they had left him. On going to the place, they found his cap on the steps leading down to the water, and after diligent search his body was found. The distressed and anguished parents are entitled to our kindest sympathies in their terrible affliction.

Excursion of the Walker Sharpshooters. This pleasant trip was appointed for the 3d of August; but it will be perceived by the advertisement that a change of programme has been made, and that it will take place on the 27th of July. The steamer Columbia will be chartered for the occasion, a fine band of music will be engaged, and everything arranged and conducted in a gratifying manner, as is usual with this gallant company.

Public Schools. The schools conducted by Miss Joyce and Mr. Beck were yesterday examined. The performance of the teachers and scholars elicited high commendation.

[Communicated.] Annual Exhibition of Rugby Academy.

MISSISS. EDITORS: Having seen nothing published in relation to the anniversary exercises of this literary institution, which took place on the 13th instant, I hope, in justice to the school and to its worthy principal, I may be allowed to speak a few words disinterestedly.

The development of oratorical powers is acceptable under any circumstances and to any people, more especially to a nation of speakers like ourselves: who to the healthy influence of the press add oral reciprocity of thought as media for general information, and reflect from one to the other, in varied lights, and clothed in new beauties, the germs of thought which, though emanating from a comparatively obscure source, yet, like the ripples upon a glassy lake, extend their area until they quite encircle our ample territory.

In the young aspirant for academic honors we see shadowed forth the future man; and from his first efforts upon the rostrum, we may draw an accurate portraiture of his inclination, talent, and attainments. But to the exhibition.

For the occasion to which I refer, Mr. Morrison had caused to be erected a neat stage; appropriate scenery had been prepared; and at the time appointed "Old Rugby" was thronged with one of those brilliant assemblages which had characterized former exhibitions of a similar character.

For a short time previously to the opening of the performance, and thereafter between each piece, music was the order of the day. Soon the rising of the curtain displayed in succession those disciples of Demosthenes and Cicero whose heroic Clays, Websters, etc., ready and eager to be seen with the aid of an enviable immortality. Although no previous rehearsal had taken place, the performers, through their excellent tuition, enacted their respective characters with great eclat.

The representations were life-like, the gestures graceful, the deportment upon the stage easy and prepossessing, and the delineations of character in all respects excellent. Then, among the many scenes enacted, Pizarro made another conquest; Don Quixotte and his redoubtable squire Sancho made still another pilgrimage; and upon those famous boards Cato, after a mighty effort, died again.

The exhibition closed without an unpleasant occurrence, and the audience retired highly edified. The closing act of the season—the soiree of the succeeding evening—was a brilliant affair, and delighted the happy throng in attendance.

J. W. M. Presentation of Medals.

We are requested to state that at half-past 6 o'clock this afternoon, after the examination of the pupils of the Rittenhouse Academy, Professor D. E. Groux will present the institution with a beautiful series of American historical medals and medals of eminent men of all nations—about two hundred. We congratulate an institution which, in connexion with a valuable chemical and astronomical apparatus, will likewise possess a numismatical collection.

Bayne's Voyage to Europe is again attracting our citizens to Odd-Fellows' Hall, and the introduction of the Crystal Palace and Westminster Abbey gives much satisfaction, and is a pleasing addition to this already excellent Panorama. We learn that, in order to accommodate persons living near the Navy Yard, omnibuses will run to and from Odd-Fellows' Hall until the conclusion of the exhibition. There will be exhibitions to-morrow at 3 1/2 and 8 o'clock p. m.

The Case of Capt. Jonas P. Levy. After some six months' endurance of heavy toil, and the audience retired highly edified, Capt. Levy has been this day honorably discharged by the entrance of a nolle prosequi by the United States District Attorney. The indictment, it will be remembered, was for an alleged unlawful correspondence with a foreign government.

Richard H. Clarke, esq., of this city, is to deliver the annual oration before the Literary Societies of Georgetown College, at the ensuing commencement on the 20th instant. The students from the Medical Department of Georgetown College will receive the degree of M. D. on the same occasion. Dr. Noble Young is to deliver the valedictory address before them.

To Our City Subscribers. Mr. Henry R. Wood, who has heretofore superintended the distribution of the Daily American Telegraph in all parts of the city except Capitol Hill and the Navy Yard, has this day assigned to us all his accounts. We hereby give notice that no moneys due for this paper are to be paid to any person not heretofore publicly authorized by us.
