

TO THE PUBLIC.—After the 1st of July, 1861, the postage on the Daily American Telegraph (and as yet we issue no other) will be, per quarter in advance, as follows: Fifty miles or under, 25 cents; over fifty and not over three hundred, 50 cents; over three hundred and not exceeding one thousand, 75 cents, &c. Any person wishing to be served for three months after the above date need only pay his quarter's postage, and send us a gold dollar and a silver quarter in a small letter—postage paid, of course.

"RAISING THE WIND."—The Union of this morning contains a long article, which reveals a new plan for the purification of the atmosphere of cities. It is to be done by means of air tunnels of any desired length, through which, by means of machinery, the invigorating shore, may be forced in large volumes, and at a velocity of eighty miles an hour, into cities, and introduced into dwellings, workshops, hospitals, &c., by means as simple as the waters of distant rivers are conveyed to the crowded abodes of men. Epidemics, the writer thinks, might be arrested in cities by this means; and, as a luxury, the pure air of a northern imported into a southern climate. The writer also thinks the United States mails could be propelled by the wind through such channels, in globular pouches.

Until the plans of this writer shall be fulfilled, we think another means of cooling and purifying the atmosphere in houses might be adopted with great advantage, and at very small expense. It is simply the introduction to the lower rooms of the "elephant's snout." On ship-board the lowest depths of the vessels are well ventilated by means of a little sail set to the wind, and receiving in its concavity the breezes, which descend through a canvas tube to any desired apartment. This tube is constantly inflated, and in its wagging motions suggests to the mind the idea of the trunk of an elephant; and hence the name given it by the sailors, who inhale its grateful breath.

We remember reading in the newspapers, a short time after the subsidence of the great scourge of '32, accounts of the exemption from disease of certain prisons, having high walls and light and ventilation from above. We can now refer to the particular instances, for they have passed from our mind; but we think there were cases of the kind in New Orleans, where the cholera and yellow fever were so fearfully blended. Medical men, who observe the sanitary influences of such things, can no doubt call to mind many cases in point, suggestive of the greater purity and healthfulness of the upper stratum of air.

If we are correct in our conclusions respecting the advantages of this thing, we would urge its general adoption, not as a substitute for the stupendous plan of the writer whose communication is before us, but as a means of temporary relief, while his scheme shall be under discussion or in the course of fulfillment.

We have learned, with much pleasure, that Miss M. J. WINDLE, of Delaware, who is now most favorably known to the readers of American literature, has, with her mother, removed to this city to make it her future abiding-place. Miss W. has attracted the admiration of many of her countrymen by the graceful emanations from her pen. We recur with pleasure to a review, published in the National Intelligencer some months ago, of a story written by her, entitled "The Lady of the Rock." The reviewer said of it and her, that "in its sketch of the events following the dethronement of Charles the First, and its tracing of these to their ultimate results, it links together the old world and the new. The motives actuating the Regicides, who sought shelter in this country, and all of whom, if they did not come to an untimely end, at least suffered beyond all human calculation, are here depicted in such a way as to lead the reader to suppose himself intimate with every, even the remotest occurrence that in any way affects the main drama. On the dark background, the images of which at times attain an overpowering grandeur, are thrown new and pleasing lights, exhibiting in skilful opposition character in its most enchanting traits. In short, we have here a collection of the most varied and opposite qualities that tempestuous times develop; and yet, owing to the rare art of the writer, amidst the jarring discord of the elements, there reigns the settled order of a fixed design; and, without being too far perturbed, we see unraveled the thread of each individual's appointed destiny. To an exquisite sense of the beautiful, and an imagination cultured in the best schools, Miss Windle has a power of penetrating through the outer veil of life—a power which, in its development, materially serves to rivet the interest of the reader, as well as to impress on all her descriptions a fresh and life-like glow. We believe that Delaware claims this writer. Be it so; but we feel convinced that her future productions will be received to popular favor without regard to latitude or longitude. We consider this story as much a portion of history as were the novels of Sir Walter Scott; and if we call to mind how few such there are, and with what labor they are necessarily sketched, in order that truth may not be violated, we must accord to Miss Windle more than passing praise, and express at the same time the wish that she will not refrain from writing others of the same cast. Our country abounds in beautiful legends, but to tell them well needs a disciplined and artistic mind, as well as a brilliant and warm imagination.

"The adventure of the bear and fiddle began—but broke off in the middle"—the green curtain falling on a mystery! We were sorry for this—everybody was sorry—the actors themselves were sorry, and one made a speech to the audience, asking indulgence, which the audience kindly granted. But oh! gentlemen, don't do so again! We love you; we wish you well; pray take the means to accomplish our wish—for you can.

A word or two more. The Association has an injunction has been served upon the lotteries of this State, and no more drawings will take place until the court decides upon the merits of the case.

DEATH IN THE COURT-HOUSE.—The circuit court-room at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was the scene of a sorrowful event on the 16th inst. James Holliday, esq., one of the most esteemed members of the bar of that city, whilst pleading a case, was suddenly taken ill, and before he could be removed from the court expired. His death is said to have been caused by rheumatism of the heart.

"BLOOD—BLOOD, IAGO, BLOOD!"—How little the gaping and approving crowd think of their responsibility in assenting to the death of a man. The Bloomington (Indiana) Reporter describes a case strikingly illustrative of this thought. "A large concourse of citizens, of both sexes," it says, "congregated at Bloomington on the 25th ultimo, to witness the execution of Hiram Bland. A procession was formed, and the prisoner, dressed in his shroud, sitting beside his coffin on a wagon, was conducted to the gallows, where religious services were performed. His confession, in which he accused some of the witnesses against him of false swearing, and denied striking his sister, and accused the deceased of commencing the conflict, was then repeated by an attending gentleman. The prisoner exhorted the bystanders to take warning by his sad fate. He appeared very much agitated, and moaned most piteously. On his way to the gallows he sang a hymn, in which he spoke of 'going home.' Just as the fatal noose was being adjusted, and the dark mysterious 'after place' gloomed a midnight of death before him, the clerk of the county, Judge Cavins, stepped forward and announced the reception of a respite from the Governor. Then there were curses, loud and long, against the Governor, sent up by the disappointed throng, and, as the prisoner was re-conducted to the jail, maledictions were poured forth against the Governor for interposing executive clemency to enable the miserable culprit an opportunity to be heard in the Supreme Court."

TIME TO COME HOME.—We very willingly assented to the brief absence of the President and Cabinet; but it is now time for them to return. We have kept the capital in perfect order since their departure, from the Secretary of the Treasury down to "the man that works the wires." But the task is very arduous; and, then, Mr. FILLMORE gets all the honor. If our fellow-citizens feel disposed to hail the return of "the Government" with cheers and serenades, our consent is hereby given, but let there be no drinking; the thermometer is the only thing that has a right to get high at this season of the year.

Our telegraphic despatch to-day reports that the President is expected to arrive in Baltimore to-night. We are very sorry to see the attempt made by quite a number of amiable sap-headed gentlemen to belittle the illustrious WASHINGTON, by hunting up his pedigree and heraldry. It is very well in Mr. Tupper, an honest monarchist; but appears perfectly asinine in professed republicans.

A DANGEROUS WEAPON.—Joe Snips usually takes out with him at night a flattened sort of dark bottle, which he calls his pocket-pistol. He says he gets it charged nightly. Others call it a flask. We think this is the right name, and that Joe charges himself from it in the daytime. We have often seen him in such a condition that we thought he must soon go off. The other night, as Joe was going home, he turned around a dark corner. "See," said a man who happened to be passing, "that man's going to shoot himself; he's holding a revolver to his head." "Taint, it's a tumbler," said his companion. "That's drunken Joe Snips; he's a drinkin'." Instantly both gentlemen rushed upon Joe, and seized his arms. "Why, Joe!" exclaimed one of them, "I thought you were going to commit suicide. He said this was a tumbler, but I thought it was a revolver." Joe had taken a good draught, and gasped for breath a moment, and then replied: "Gentlemen, it's both—a tumbler and a revolver—a revolver and a tumbler. I takes it often, and then I first revolves, and then I tumbles. He, he, he! gentlemen, it's every thing to me. It's eating, and it's drinking, and it's warming, and it's cooling, and it's supporting, and its prostrating; it's a kind of universality of an affair—it is. I calls it the critter, myself—I do." And poor Joe took it home with him; and it will soon reciprocate the favor—it will take Joe home and stow him away for good and all, and the cows that nip the grass on his grave will get tipsy.

FORREST HALL, GEORGETOWN.—The second entertainment by the Young Men's Dramatic Association was numerously attended last night. At least one half the audience was composed of ladies, and a prettier assembly of May-queens, with their fair brows flower-crowned, has seldom been seen. Sweet music sounded—then a tinkling bell—and then came the Golden Farmer. This drama was well represented. We must particularly mention the characters of the Farmer (Mr. J. B. Newton), Jimmy Twitchee (Mr. N. Kelly), and Harry Hammer (Mr. H. Rodier). These were truthfully sustained. With a little more attention they would have equalled any acting on the regular stage. Indeed, we are much inclined to pronounce the health-drinking auctioneer, Mr. Hammer, already perfect.

A solo on the flute, by Mr. Scerro, was exquisite, and enthusiastically applauded and encored. The comic song could not have been better sung—but might have been better remembered.

And last came the farce of Who Speaks First? This moved along pleasantly for a while, and then suddenly stopped. Why? Because nobody could speak—nobody but the gallant Captain Charles (Mr. B. O'Reilly), who only knew his own part, and could not supply the deficiencies of the rest. So,

"The adventure of the bear and fiddle began—but broke off in the middle"—the green curtain falling on a mystery! We were sorry for this—everybody was sorry—the actors themselves were sorry, and one made a speech to the audience, asking indulgence, which the audience kindly granted. But oh! gentlemen, don't do so again! We love you; we wish you well; pray take the means to accomplish our wish—for you can.

A word or two more. The Association has an injunction has been served upon the lotteries of this State, and no more drawings will take place until the court decides upon the merits of the case.

We take pleasure in laying before our readers the following from the New York correspondence of the Laurensville (S. C.) Herald, in reference to our much esteemed (now) fellow-townsmen, Col. M. Thompson: "As I said, I became acquainted with the South Carolina representation, and that is quite a short list, there not being but one among the thousands who congregate here to do business, such as agencies, legal, medical or mercantile, &c.; that one is Col. M. Thompson, a native of old Laurens, and he is an honor to his State. He has commenced the practice of his profession, (the Law) and is doing a good business. He is an energetic and prompt business man, and is considered by the people in Washington a 'leetle' too sharp for the 'natives.' He is one of the best prosecuting attorneys either before the Bench or the Departments, in Washington, and his success proves it, having made not only money, but a long list of friends. I am not writing a puff for the Colonel, as he does not need it—he gets as much business as he can attend to, and will so long as he continues to discharge his business in his prompt and efficient manner. He is young, and will in time ascend to the highest round in his profession."

By reference to another portion of our columns it will be seen that Col. Thompson is also agent for the British Commercial Life Insurance Company, which we earnestly commend to persons desiring to make insurance on lives. The company has been in successful existence upwards of thirty years, with a paid in capital of $3,000,000; and is doubtless one of the safest and most responsible companies in this or any other country.

A DAY OF PLEASURE.—The recent warm days have awakened among our young folks a just sense and appreciation of the pleasantness and comforts of the cool shades at Arlington. Many a party has spent a happy day beyond the river already. To-day, we learn, the scholars of Mrs. Richard's school, with their friends, are to enjoy the pleasant walks, the green hills, and the wild flowers of Arlington, in each other's society.

Mr. HOLBROOK.—We with pleasure improve the opportunity offered us by Mr. Holbrook to furnish our readers with the series of articles on "MECHANISM," commenced in to-day's paper. We the more promptly contribute our part in placing before the public this interesting and useful subject, from having seen specimens of mechanism produced in schools, which afforded the highest degree of pleasure to the pupils producing them, connected with the most substantial improvement. After affording pleasure and solid improvement to the producers, by a system of interchange between schools, and still more extensively between families, these and various other specimens of art, connected with minerals and other products of nature, can be used as powerful instruments "to increase and diffuse knowledge among men!"

REAL-ESTATE SALE.—A lot of unimproved ground, twenty-seven feet front, and over one hundred feet deep, on M street, north, between Sixth and Seventh streets, west, was sold yesterday afternoon, at six o'clock, by Dyer & McGuire, auctioneers, for 84 cents per foot. Dr. May, purchaser.

We learn that a contribution of twenty-five dollars was recently made by Washington Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., in aid of the funds of the National Washington Monument Association.

BARNABAS BATES.—It is said that this gentleman is about to visit England for the purpose of making himself thoroughly acquainted with the organization and management of the British Post Office, and to present to Congress the result of his inquiries, with such suggestions and improvements as may be applicable to our own country.

FIRE IN BALTIMORE.—A fire broke out last night, shortly after ten o'clock, in a warehouse on Smith's wharf, a few doors south of Gay street, occupied by Capt. Charles Pendergast, agent of the Charleston line of packets. Three buildings were almost entirely burnt out. The sufferers were Capt. Pendergast; Joseph Weather, public weigher; Jas. R. Pendergast, shipping agent; Charles Andrews, public weigher; Solomon, Gray, Parrott & Co., sail-makers, and John W. Brown. Two of the warehouses were said to belong to Mr. Wm. H. Beatty; the owner of the third not learned.

JENNY LIND will give two or three concerts in Philadelphia, from the 12th to the 15th of June, prior to her departure for Europe.

The annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the State of Pennsylvania is now in session in Philadelphia.

CITY WATCH-HOUSE.—The last was a charming night, and had such a soothing influence over the spirits of men and women, that even the watch-house was found this morning without an occupant.

St. Louis, Friday, May 16.—Presbyterian General Assembly at St. Louis.—Rev. E. Humphrey, Moderator, announced to the standing committee a report from the board of foreign missions, which was referred to a special committee of five members. The treasurer's report was received and referred. The twentieth annual report from the board of the western theological seminary was received, and will be acted upon on Wednesday next. The election of a professor of oriental and biblical literature takes place on the same day. The committee appointed last December to report on a plan for establishing a cheap religious newspaper reported favorably. It was received and laid on the table, and made the special order for tomorrow.

LOUISVILLE, May 12.—Violent Hurricane.—A violent hurricane passed over this city on Saturday evening last, doing much damage.

NEW ORLEANS, May 21.—Acquittal of St. Victor.—Arrival of the Steamer Georgia.—St. Victor, the defaulting teller in the Bank of Louisiana, has been tried and acquitted.

The steamer Georgia has arrived from Charles, with three hundred passengers, including General Persifer F. Smith. He was received with a salute of 21 guns.

WILMINGTON, May 21.—An injunction has been served upon the lotteries of this State, and no more drawings will take place until the court decides upon the merits of the case.

BY TELEGRAPH. Expressly for this paper.

BALTIMORE, May 23—2 1/2 p. m. The New York cotton market is unsettled. Flour and grain unchanged. Stocks—new loan, one hundred and twenty-two. At Charleston, on the 22d, cotton declined a quarter under the Africa's news. Sales here of two hundred bbls. Howard street flour at $4.31 1/2. Corn advanced one cent. The President is expected to-night.

From Santa Fe—Hurricane. St. Louis, May 22. Santa Fe dates to April 23d have been received at Independence. The Republican says the boundary commission were on the Rio Grande below Sonora, and that they have decided to place a corner-stone seven miles below that point. A violent hurricane swept over this city on Saturday evening, doing a great deal of damage to buildings; a wall fell on a lady, injuring her dangerously.

Arrival of the Winfield Scott. New York, May 22. The steamship Winfield Scott arrived this morning in six days and six hours from New Orleans, bringing papers two days in advance of the mail, and 100 passengers.

The interior of Bunker Hill Monument is to be used to demonstrate the rotation of the earth on its axis, by repeating Foucault's experiment with a pendulum 216 feet long. Mr. Bond and Mr. Horsford, of Cambridge, will superintend it, and the public will be admitted by paying a small fee.

A POCKET PROTECTOR.—A lady—yes, a lady—has invented an elastic ring (elastic, we presume, as opposed to that gold ring) for the protection of her pockets. Any hand intruding therein will be immediately caught.

GEORGETOWN AND ITS AFFAIRS. GEORGETOWN, May 23—12 m.

The boat Wells, A. Harper, left this morning with the school of Mr. Phillips, of your city, on board—bound to the Great Falls on a pleasure trip.

At Forrest Hall last night there was a full house. Flour and grain remain firm at last quotations; large quantities of each are coming in by way of the canal.

Mr. T. A. Lazenby has finished fitting up, and moved into his beautiful store on Bridge street.

Canal Trade.—Arrived boats Mountaineer, Cumb., flour and coal; C. F. Mudge, do.; Charlotte, 100 miles, flour, whiskey, &c.; William T. Clagett, 81 miles, 644 bbls. flour, &c.; Potomac, 100 miles, timber.

Departed.—Wm. Jackson, J. Smithson, W. A. Harper, Henrietta, Old Zack, and Captain Walker. ELECTRO.

QUICK & Co.'s MENAGERIE will soon be here with his hundred beautiful horses, his magnificent carriages, and his collection of roaring wild beasts. We imagine the ladies will be delighted to visit this show with their beaux, the children will be delighted with the monkeys, and the boys will literally "see the elephant."

[Communicated.] Messrs. Editors: On looking over the names of the many candidates who have offered themselves to our citizens for the office of COLLECTOR OF THIS CITY, it would be necessary, in order to be able to vote understandingly, amongst other qualifications, to inquire how each man stood in regard to the present reforms demanded by our citizens, and particularly in relation to making all our officers elective, which has lately elicited so much interest in our midst. And upon examination, there are several of the candidates who, we have heard and seen, are in favor of this movement, and some of whom have made speeches upon the subject, yet we are very certain, and we hope all will bear in mind, that none of our stand so importantly connected with this truly republican movement as our highly-esteemed candidate of the Third Ward, Dr. CHAPIN, who, as will be seen by the proceedings of the Council, published in the National Intelligencer of the 7th inst., was one of the very first to identify himself with this very popular measure.

In reference thereto, it will be seen that Dr. CHAPIN, but five days after the first public meeting upon the subject, proceeded to move in the Council in regard to the same, and secured the adoption of resolutions to ascertain the sense of the voters of the city upon the propriety of making all the officers elective; which resolutions, at a subsequent meeting, after spirited discussion, were unanimously carried, and at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen were also passed with great unanimity—thus placing the whole subject, with railroad speed, at once in the hands and subject to the will of the people. We have said this much in hope that his zeal for the welfare of our city, both in this and all other measures that may come before the Board affecting the people's interests, may be generally noticed, and that our citizens will show their appreciation of his conduct at the polls on the first Monday of June next, by giving him their overwhelming support. We think we know that this will be the case in some of the wards, and we hope and desire it will be so in each and all; and in yet for him they will be supporting one, therefore, the resolutions appended to our address are—

The Teachers' Association will meet at the Smithsonian Institution to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, at half-past 4 o'clock. Discussion continued. The public are invited. MAY 23. O. C. WIGHT, Sec'y.

The Journeymen Stone-Cutters' Association of the District of Columbia.

TO THE PUBLIC. THE MEMBERS of this Association, perceiving that Mr. W. B. Todd, in his card which appeared in Monday's Telegraph, charges the Association with making statements, in their communication to the public, that were untrue as regarded him and Mr. Emery, deem it prudent to lay before the public the grounds upon which the statements in that communication were based. As regards Mr. Todd, we stated that the marble-work of his building was to be executed at New York. This he admits. We even acknowledged his right to have his work done where he pleased, although we disapproved the principle of withdrawing labor from the city. As to his being untrue that Mr. Emery was contractor for the work, Mr. E. himself has admitted that statement, and Mr. Todd contradicts it—else what is the meaning of his "coming me to pay me more for my work, than I would have cost me, if I had seen it done in New York in time." It is here evident that Mr. R. had sought to furnish the work at a given price—that price being much less than Mr. Todd is now paying for it. These words also occur in Mr. Todd's communication: "Before Mr. [R.] let the work go out of his hands, &c. All this agrees with statements made by Mr. E. to several of our members. In that communication, Mr. Todd stated that Mr. Hall's (the present contractor) prices would amount to about $1,000 more than his. In short, every word of the justification attempted by Mr. W. B. Todd was known to be untrue, and we are confident that Mr. Todd's inability to procure the material, was to throw up the contract, giving a chance to contractors in the city (of whom there are several) who could have procured it, and had the work done here.

There were other quarries, within a few miles, the materials of which, when worked and placed beside the other, would also occur in Mr. Todd's communication: "Before we made do the work out of the very same quarry as that used for the hotel, every stone of which would have been worked in the city, and this, too, for less than the work is now costing him; and yet this was Mr. Todd's only alternative!" The cost of boxing or packing the worked material would more than balance the difference of freight between it and the rough, so that, with a competent foreman, even the present contractor could do the work as cheap here as where he is doing it. Having seen no reason to alter our opinion on this matter, but, on the contrary, knowing that the work could have been done as cheap and as well in this city as any where else, therefore the resolutions appended to our address remain in full force.

As all business of this Association requires to be submitted to a meeting of the members, the public will be enabled to understand the reason of what, to some, may appear an unnecessary delay in answering Mr. Todd's communication.

By order of the Association. [Republic.] MAY 23—1r.
