

TO THE PUBLIC.—From the 1st day of July, 1861, the postage on the Daily American Telegraph, Washington, D. C., will be per quarter in advance, as follows: Fifty miles or over, 25 cents; over fifty and not over three hundred, 50 cents; over three hundred and not exceeding one thousand, 75 cents, &c. Any person wishing to be served for three months after the above date need only pay his quarter's postage, and send us a gold dollar and a silver quarter in a small letter—postage paid, of course; or five dollars for a year. The Telegraph is independent in politics, moral, agreeable, and familiar; prompt in furnishing the news, and a terror to all evil doers. Editors of weekly and other papers desirous to exchange with us can pay the difference in the price of subscription by giving a few insertions to the above notice. WASHINGTON, May 27, 1861.

A SAD CASE.—About a week ago the records of the Criminal Court showed that Albert Beach had been found guilty of obtaining money under false pretences; and he was yesterday sentenced by Judge Crawford to the Penitentiary for eighteen months.

This man is, we suppose, about thirty-six years old. He was educated to commercial business in the city of New York, where he afterward held a profitable and responsible position in one of the first establishments. He subsequently followed the business of daguerreotyping in this city, with apparently very good success; and while so engaged, two or three years ago, married a most estimable and excellent young lady. To the surprise of many, however, he suddenly sold out his interest in the daguerreotyping establishment, and threw himself out of business for a time; but after a little commenced an auction store, in which his career was brief, as many who had come to know him predicted. His course was then rapidly downward, and instead of "swelling" at the hotels he turned to lounging at the groceries; and instead of trying to effect "transactions" at wholesale stores, his aim was simply to "do" some poor fool out of a few dollars. Caught in one of these tricks, he has at last been sentenced to the felon's punishment.

The end does not appear worthy his pains to reach it. What could have led him off? We can answer. It was not drink in the first instance, nor laziness; for although he was always in the way of temptation by the former, his desire to do well and his pride of appearance would have sustained him for many years; and in his business he made every exertion to succeed. But, without the ability to repel the advances of a hand of well-dressed and plausible gamblers, who loiter about this city, he suffered himself to be flattered, petted and enticed away by them, and vainly imagined that he was quite a lion in their esteem, until he suddenly found that they had cut his acquaintance, leaving him without money, credit, occupation, character, or any means of procuring a livelihood. After looking around him for a time, and making some feeble endeavors to get a foothold again, he gave up the hope, and resolved on making by the games that others had made off him. But he had not learned the mysteries of the vile profession, and only sunk deeper at each successive attempt to rise. He is now in disgrace from which but few are ever redeemed, and his family and friends can only mourn his fall.

We have not wantonly nor unnecessarily portrayed his case. The same men who caused his ruin are to-day upon the Avenue, arrayed in fine apparel, counterfeiting the manners of gentlemen, and patronizing bestowing acts of civility upon plain business men and unsuspecting youth. Their first appeals are to the sentiment of vanity, and they who can thus be approached "are as easily led by the nose as asses are." The only safety for those they would court is to repel and resist them at the commencement of their approaches. The only security that any man can have from falling into the meshes of these heartless scoundrels is to possess so great a regard for virtue and honor, as to hold no communion with the practitioners of things incompatible with them. Without this, no man is safe, whether young or old. We have known members of Congress, with gray hairs, to be coaxed into the gambling dens of this city, and so completely impoverished as to forfeit the esteem of our citizens and their fellow-members, by the forfeiture of the most solemn pledges respecting the debts they were obliged to contract. Why Congress and our city authorities tolerate such things is a mystery to all who contemplate the subject. We have never seen in an American city, north of New Orleans, so general a disposition to tolerate these "hells," as they have been truthfully designated.

TRIAL FOR MURDER.—Our readers no doubt all recollect the revolting murder of a child in Baltimore by a negro boy. An attempt was yesterday made to obtain a jury for the trial of this boy, but after empanelling a large number of jurors the court adjourned without procuring the requisite number not previously convinced of the guilt of the boy. Mr. May remarked that the case was one in which it was exceedingly important, both to the State and the prisoner, that an impartial and fully qualified jury should be selected. Mr. Brent, the Attorney General, had gone to Philadelphia and New York for the purpose of attending to certain duties devolved upon him by the action of the Reform Convention, in relation to the cases of Albert and Mitchell, indicted for kidnapping in Pennsylvania, and the case of the negro Belt in New York. The duties of the Attorney General are performed by Mr. May.

ILLNESS OF MR. COOPER.—The New York Tribune of yesterday learns that Mr. Fenimore Cooper is so ill that he is not expected to live. His family were summoned to him on Saturday last, and in the evening of that day he received the sacrament preparatory to disputation. He has been unwell for some time, and went home from New York about five weeks since in hope of recovering his strength. Mr. Cooper is now about sixty years of age.

"YOU WILL BUCKLE FORTUNE ON MY BACK." The Hon. Edward Stanly declined a re-election to Congress; but after looking in vain for another suitable candidate, the Whigs of his district determined that he should run, and we suppose he will comply.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT.—David A. Booke, Naval Officer, New York, vice Philip H. Love, deceased. Egbert Benson, Appraiser at Large, vice Matthias B. Edgar, declined.

THE PRESIDENT.—The late anniversary was celebrated with spirit almost everywhere throughout the country, and the reports of the proceedings are in many instances full of interest. The next Presidential election, however, appears to have been had in remembrance in all localities, and the various candidates were toasted and specified with a right good will. In New York State there is a fire that appears to glow with increased fervor, as the name of Wool is brought more and more tangibly before the people. We observe that at Old Tammany, in New York city, the following letter from him was read. It is well written, and significant:

WASHINGTON, July 1, 1861.

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the kind invitation of the ancient "Society of Tammany" to attend the celebration of the coming anniversary of American Independence, and regret that my duties as a member of a general court-martial at this place will deprive me of the pleasure. The return of this anniversary is dear to every American heart. It is the birthday of that liberty which our forefathers achieved, and which we have so long enjoyed. The Society of Tammany was, at an early day in our history, organized to preserve and protect those great principles which were embodied in the Declaration of Independence, and which were again engrafted upon the constitution under which we live. It has enrolled amongst its members some of the purest and most devoted patriots of our country. Her councils have ever burned with undiminished lustre, and I trust will continue to shed their light upon the country, even though clouds and darkness may, for a time, dim our political horizon. I hope the approaching celebration may be the means of cementing a bond of union between brethren of the same principles, and that they will hereafter, regardless of past differences, unite to preserve those principles, and to protect and perpetuate the Union—the hope of all who would promote the happiness and prosperity of the human race.

With sentiments of the highest respect and esteem, I remain, very respectfully, your most obedient servant, JOHN E. WOOL.

At Troy there was a very pleasant celebration, with some happy toasts and speeches. We will give a sample or two of both. Mr. Francis gave the following:

"Major Gen. Wool.—The last war establishes his heroism; the battle of Buena Vista is the eternal glory of his name. Well may Trojans say, and the Union re-echo the sentiment, 'Well done, good and faithful servant.'"

And close upon it was the following by a guest: "The Thirty-one Sisters.—May the American Eagle, on his flight from the Atlantic west to Pacific shore, never look down on a sister fallen."

There is a fitness of things here that looks quite auspicious; and the sentiments given appear to be embodied with singular felicity in the letter from General W. we have quoted above.

But at this Troy meeting a speech was made by General Vails, who, we understand, is one of the knowing ones of the Empire State. As, in addition to other good qualifications, this speech has the merit of brevity, we will quote it entire. Here it is:

Mr. President: I am about to offer a sentiment in honor of a citizen of this place, now absent in the discharge of duties devolving upon his official station. The individual to whom I allude occupies at this time an enviable position in the public mind. His history may be found, written in characters of blood upon the battle-fields of our country. I speak of him as a citizen of Troy, but it is no more than truth and justice to say, that, by his services faithfully rendered, his sacrifices freely made, his achievements gloriously won, he has entitled himself to be considered a citizen of the nation, of the whole country. This wide extended Republic, for which he has fought and bled and triumphantly conquered, claims him as her own. He has signalized himself as a good soldier, and, in war's perilous times, a capable leader; but those who know him can also appreciate him for his urbane manners, his highly generous social qualities, and his general knowledge of all the various subjects pertaining to politics and civil government.

He has risen to his present elevated position from the humble walks of life, without the adventitious aid of wealth and influential friends. Relying upon his naked merit, he has literally been the builder of his own fortunes. At an early age he entered the war of 1812, and with his sword he has cut and carved his way to eminence.

He has always been a vigilant observer of the times. In his hours of relaxation, in those seasons when the clamor of war was lulled into silence, and peace reigned triumphant in the land, he was a close and indefatigable student. His bureaus are filled with manuscripts, written by himself at different periods during the last twenty-five years, upon all the prominent questions which agitated the times—essays which would do honor to the proudest American statesman.

I do not design to detain you at this time, by any lengthened detail of the services or merits of this distinguished man, but while thousands on this great occasion, in different parts of our country, are expressing their sentiments in regard to him, let us unite in the same, and join in the ascending cheers of tens of thousands of grateful hearts.

I know I will well you anticipate me, when I propose the name of Major General JOHN E. WOOL, a citizen, a soldier, and a statesman. The heights of Queenstown, the banks of the Sacramento, and the plains of Mexico are his jewels. Our Republic will reward him with that distinction and eminence he so richly deserves.

From what we can learn in this city respecting the desires of a large number of Democrats in different sections of the Union, and especially in the glorious Old Dominion, we have good reason to believe that the thoughts revealed by the New York Democracy are but symptomatic of a general demonstration. The New York legislature, before its adjournment on the 10th, will probably let us know more about the matter.

That General Wool is ascending to a prominent place at least among the most prominent candidates of the country, we have no little reason to doubt; and whom to array successfully against him becomes a question of serious importance to all the good and wise and patriotic men who wish to defeat him. In his own party we are by no means sure that Douglas would not be the most efficient, if willing; but who on the other side it would be hard to say. The wiser policy of the Whig party would be to try to induce the Democrats to keep both of these gentlemen in the back-ground, and bring forth some of the old bucksterning, trading politicians. These men who are "fresh from the people" are always troublesome. Giving themselves little credit for fact and political sagacity, they do not rely upon craft and subtlety; and no other opponent is ever so formidable as your straight upward, go-ahead, pluck, honest man. But Wool, while he has ever been but a looker-on in the game of politics, has kept his eyes open in the meanwhile, and has doubtless learned enough to know how to conduct a campaign with discretion. We repeat it: let all the patriots in the land who desire to defeat the General, be up and doing; for this one thing is manifestly apparent, that neither he nor his friends can be surprised at any point. They are preparing for action in such a way as to storm and carry conventions, and menace the ballot-boxes, in a manner peculiarly cautionary. Be up, then, and doing, all you who would prostrate the General and his designs, and save the country. Let no one slumber at his post, for there is soon to be the tallest kind of a Wool gathering.

Railroad Accidents.

We learn from the Baltimore American, that the express train from Cumberland, on its downward passage yesterday morning, ran over a negro man, near Woodbine, twenty-eight miles from Baltimore, and instantly killed him. The negro was a slave, belonging to Mr. Zepp, of Howard District.

On Saturday morning last, about two o'clock, the train from Baltimore, when near Harper's Ferry, took up a small boy (who was lying on the road) on the cow-catcher, one of the prongs of which entered his throat, and inflicted quite a serious and dangerous wound. He is named John Malloy.

Mr. Andrew Stetz, one of a party of the Order of Red Men who visited Lancaster on the Fourth, on Saturday night, on his return, was knocked down by the train on the Columbia road, and had both of his feet painfully injured, so as to render it probable that amputation would have to be resorted to.

THE DEATH PENALTY.—It is said to be better that many guilty men should escape than that one innocent should perish; but how often does the death penalty prevent the alternative? The innocent man cannot be recalled from his tomb. Recently, we are told, a man named John Perry, who had been sentenced to imprisonment for a life in the Massachusetts Penitentiary, on a conviction of house-breaking at Dartmouth, has been pardoned, on it being confessed by two thieves, who were incarcerated at different times subsequently, that they had committed the robbery, and that Perry was innocent. He had been in prison on the charge for four years. "If," says the paper in which we find this fact, "the alleged crime had been a capital offence, this poor man would long since have been dead." But then the true culprits would have been less likely to confess the crime. Thus it is that there is even a greater likelihood of convicting the wrong man for murder than for any other crime.

THE ALLEGED GARDNER FRAUD.—A correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing under date of Washington, July 6th, says: "The Gardner investigation is still going on before the grand jury, but no further facts have been elicited. Mr. Forté has been subpoenaed, but has not been heard from. Gardner's brother has telegraphed that he will be here tomorrow. Gardner's character as a gentleman and a man of good standing in Mexico was endorsed in the most unreserved terms, before the late Board, by Senators Jefferson Davis and Downs; Col. Gates, U. S. A.; Doctors Heiskell and Hitchcock, U. S. A.; Assistant Adjutant General Thomas, Mrs. Anne Chase, wife of the consul at Tampico, &c. It has been asked why the Board, when allowing any part of Gardner's claim, did not give him all he asked? Simply because he claimed the amount he proved, by witnesses, he could have sold out for six hundred and eighty thousand dollars, whereas the Board allowed only what he had proved he had actually expended, with five per cent. interest added."

That this may prove "a fair business transaction" we most devoutly wish; but notwithstanding the foregoing, and the extract we yesterday copied from the correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer, we must be excused for still entertaining very serious fears. That one of the persons above referred to was not well convinced of Dr. Gardner's good standing to believe his claim just, we will know a long time ago.

COMMODORE STOCKTON ON SLAVERY.—Com. Stockton delivered a speech at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, on the 4th instant, when he said, in allusion to new territory:

"That the citizens of the South had a perfect right to carry their slave property upon all such acquisitions, and that any attempt of the General Government to invade that right was an aggression upon the guarantee of the Constitution.

This is not saying much. We all know that the new State, and not the General Government, has enacted the prohibition. Had the new State determined the other way, the action of the General Government would not then have affected the matter. The above extract has been published by some one as a starter; but Stockton is not going to throw such things out just now.

KENTUCKY.—The approaching elections are exciting the popular mind to a high degree. A Governor, Lieutenant Governor, members of Congress, &c., are to be elected. Mr. Crittenden, whose lady had preceded him, departed for his home on Saturday last. The Union of this morning suspects that his aid and influence are needed.

INSOLVENT LISTS.—We often read these lists in the Baltimore papers, and have remarked that the name seldom occurs of one who has been a habitual advertiser of his business in those papers. The man who keeps the run of his business in his mind, likes to communicate with the public about it.

IMPORTANT ARREST.—James Scrivener was arrested this morning, by officer Barnacio, charged by various worthy citizens with having represented to them that he was the veritable City Commissioner; and that upon this representation he had managed to swindle them out of various sums of money, alleging that the Board of Health had directed him to visit each and every yard, and notify the owners to have their premises cleansed, and charge for such notice from twelve to fifty cents. Capt. Goddard, after a patient hearing of the case, committed him to jail to await his trial before the criminal court. This is but another way to raise the wind.

CRIMINAL COURT.—The case of Capt. Powell, for the homicide of Merinder, was called up to-day; but there has been a delay of several hours on account of the absence of an important witness, and the trial has not yet commenced.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.—A Ship on Fire.—Capt. Unghill, of the British ship Morley, arrived at New York yesterday morning from Deal, reports: "June 15th, latitude 42° 20', longitude 40° 30', spoke the British brig Fanny, and for Liverpool from Mobile, who reported to have been during her then passage, a ship on fire, having about two hundred and fifty souls on board. It was blowing very fresh at the time of speaking, and the captain of the M. did not leave too near enough to understand distinctly the account of the brig, although requested by the captain of the brig to do so. All that could be learned, under the circumstances, was, that she had been entirely consumed, and that the passengers and crew were, perhaps, lost with her. The first ship, it appears, was bound to Mobile.

THE ACCIDENTS YESTERDAY.—James Hanrahan died in the course of last night; Michael Hanrahan appears chiefly injured in the spine, by which his lower extremities are paralyzed; he is in a dangerous condition. Thomas Cross is smarting under his many contusions, but will recover; Samuel Brooks, colored, (not Archie Brown), is in bad condition, with faint hopes of recovery. These are all at the Infirmary. None of the others are in danger. John McLane, we learn, is badly hurt, but not having seen him we cannot describe his injuries; Michael Clancy, very slightly; Isaac Brown, (colored), slightly; Wm. Ingram, (colored), only bruised; Caleb Adams (colored) is hurt badly; John Hall (colored) had his arm injured, but not broke.

Mr. Z. Jones's man Dick, who fell from a scaffold at the corner of Seventh street and Louisiana avenue yesterday, is to-day very poorly, but not in any danger it is hoped.

THE CENTRE MARKET.—There was a lively, pleasant market at an early hour this morning. Potatoes sold at 37 to 50 cents per peck; tomatoes, 75 to 80 do. do.; cymilings, 12 cts. per dozen; cucumbers, 18 do. do.; eggs, fresh, 18 do. do.; butter, 16 to 25 cents per lb.; honey, 18 do. do.; blackberries, 4 cts. per qt.; whortleberries, 6 to 10 do. do.; Raspberries, 18 do. do.; cherries, 6 do. do.; Apricots, 25 cts. per dozen; apples, 25 cents per peck; chickens, $2.50 to $3.50 per dozen.

APRICOTS.—Dr. Piper, corner of COAT and G streets, has presented to us some beautiful specimens of this fruit from a tree in his enclosure. A single branch, about a yard long, now hanging on the wall beside us, contains seventeen apricots, all perfectly ripe, each a little larger than a hen's egg. A more delicious flavor than they possess can neither be imagined nor realized.

ARRIVAL EXTRAORDINARY.—The steamer Virginia, which towed three boats laden with coal from Cumberland to New York, a few weeks ago, to-day arrived in the Washington city canal, having in tow three boats laden with anthracite coal, for merchants in this city. She is now at the foot of Sixth street, but will soon depart for Cumberland for another train of coal boats.

A CARD. WASHINGTON CITY, July 8, 1861. HAVING been apprized of a most unfounded impression made by rumor in Georgetown, connecting my name with an unhappy event that occurred recently in a respectable family of that city, and being advised by my friends that nothing less than a statement from under my own hand can remove that impression, I am reluctantly induced to adopt this means of self-defense. As a simple allusion to the event in question will doubtless be a sufficient indication to those concerned, I shall not speak in more specific terms. But I call my late fellow-citizens in general, and the really guilty party in particular, to the solemn assertion which I here make. In the face of the world, and in the presence of Him who charges my heart and knows its innocence, I avow that the charge made against me in connection with the event above alluded to is most false, most unjust, most untrue, and most impudently untrue. I have never been in any way connected with the event, and I have never been guilty of any wrong perpetrated against my character, for which no act of mine, overt or covert, has ever furnished the least shadow of a plea.
