

We have to-day delayed our publication in hopes of receiving the news by the Empire City, just in at New York.

At 5 o'clock, nothing received.

The Death and Dying Words of Crittenden.

I am an American, and I scorn to kneel to any being save the God who made me; and I always shed my eyes.

This was the chivalric, high-souled, and religious language of that man of valor, and martyr in the cause of Cuban liberty, Col. Wm. S. CRITTENDEN.

To that patriotic and brilliant American journal, the New Orleans Delta, edited by Judge Alexander Walker and Dennis Corcoran, espousing the first a native of the "Old Dominion," and the latter of the "Emerald Isle,"—the lovers of liberty and the haters of despotic tyranny throughout the world are indebted for gracing its columns with this sentiment of the glorious martyr.

The gifted and undaunted Crittenden, together with those other brave spirits, Victor Kerr, James Brant, H. T. Viennet, Stanford, and their compatriots—in all fifty—it is known was taken prisoner by the Spanish troops and condemned to be shot. They were brought to the foot of the Castle of Atares, near the city of Havana, for execution. Here they were commanded by the Spanish officer to kneel with their backs to their executioners! It was at this awful moment, standing upon the brink of eternity, about to be ushered into the presence of his God by the agency of Spanish bullets, that the indignant and intrepid Kentuckian uttered in a manly voice the sentiment above written. It is a sentiment which will find a response in the bosom of every votary of freedom—will be embalmed in the hearts and consecrated in the affections of all lovers of genius, heroism and the rights of man. It is destined to grace and adorn the pages of historic valor in all future ages. The hero is dead—he fell a victim to Spanish atrocity; but his strikingly eloquent, singularly beautiful and heroic language is destined to live. It is an undying sentiment. It will live.

"Whilt the earth bears a plant, or the sea rolls a wave; Till time shall fade—until eternity!"

King Solomon has left upon record, for our instruction, the truth, that "words fitly spoken are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." The words of the lamented Crittenden were fitly, pertinently spoken—eloquently and heroically delivered. They deserve to be written in letters of gold and set in diamonds. They should, and as certain as the triumphant progress of free principles they will, grace and embellish the parlors of the merchant princes of the North and East, and the wealthy planters, the possessors of the productive, broad acres of the South. The cultivators of the extensive prairies of the West, and the honest, patriotic, toiling mechanics of every section of our beloved country, will cherish this gem of eloquence and of genius, and teach their children to recite it in honor of its heroic and illustrious author. The day is not far distant when the freed, the manumitted subjects of Her Catholic Majesty, in Cuba and Porto Rico, will have the dying words of the patriot Crittenden engraven upon their hearts and ornamenting their mansions. The blood of the martyrs of Atares, the crimson gore of Viennet, of Brant, of Stanford, of Bryce, of Crittenden, and their immortal compatriots, will prove to be the seed of Cuban and Porto Rico independence. Time is on the wing, and a bright destiny awaits the friends of free principles. "The overthrow of despotism, and the universal sway of freedom," say we.

Successor to Judge Woodbury.

The death of Judge WOODBURY calls for the selection of a successor upon the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, who shall do honor to the station, and render high service to his country. When Chief Justice MARSHALL felt that he was approaching the grave, he would have resigned the high station he so nobly filled, could he have secured the elevation of DANIEL WEBSTER in his stead. That place is now occupied by an able and pure man, whose life we trust may long be spared to his friends and country. But the seat vacated by the death of the lamented Woodbury should be conferred upon one whom the nation would well approve; and who is there so fitting as he who has been truly and appropriately called THE EXPONDER OF THE CONSTITUTION? The present is a proper period for strengthening the bench by men of sound principles and enlarged national views. In this position Mr. WEBSTER'S influence would be felt, and would produce the most salutary effects throughout the land. The path of duty is for him the path of honor; and we feel sure that, however great the sacrifice, Mr. Webster will not turn a deaf ear to the calls of his countrymen, nor refuse to accept an office at the hands of an Administration that would feel honored by his acceptance of any dignity in its power to confer.

U. S. Fire Annihilator Company.

We understand that there has been a meeting of the members of this company in this city, and that a provisional organization was effected. Hon. Elisha Whittlesey, First Comptroller of the United States Treasury, was chosen president, and P. T. Barnum, esq., manager and secretary. The affairs of the company will hereafter be controlled by a board of directors, consisting of the president and manager, and E. Harman, esq., of this city. An office, we also understand, will be opened in a few days by the company, both in this city and in New York. It is said that they will also be prepared in a short time to furnish machines, as well as to dispose of patents; but as the machines and materials can only be manufactured to advantage upon a large scale, and as some time must elapse before they can be supplied in the requisite quantities to meet the public demand, a registry will be opened, and all orders entered upon record, and supplied according to priority of date, preference being given to applications for Annihilators intended for the protection of public places or establishments unusually exposed to the dangers of fire, such as theatres, hotels, steamboats and sail-packets, and to applications from city corporations and from establishments which cannot be insured at any price. This is a liberal and even philanthropic arrangement, and such as might be expected from the gentlemen who have the leading management of this great invention.

The Death of Lopez.

The various despatches agree sufficiently to convince us of the truthfulness of the principal items of news we gave in our last.

The steamer Cherokee left Havana on the 1st instant, and arrived at the Balise on the 3d.

Gen. Lopez was captured at San Christoval and brought to the city of Havana, where he was publicly garrotted on the 29th ult. All his men, one account states, were captured and executed. Garrotting is said to be the placing the victim in a chair, clamping his limbs, placing a band round the neck, and gradually pressing a screw until the neck is broken.

The despatches of the 4th say that the passengers of the Cherokee witnessed the execution of Lopez, who ended his life manfully. They say further:

The total failure of the expedition is attributed to the delay in receiving succor. From the separation of Crittenden's command, the Patriots had dispersed to the mountains, only thirty remaining with Lopez. They left him, and without a single friend he wandered until run down, and was then taken by bloodhounds. His last words were, "Adieu, dear Cuba."

Gen. Pragy was killed at Pozas. Spanish accounts say that of the number in the Pampero (500), 65 have been already killed and 436 are in prison, of whom one hundred are to be sent to Africa.

Lopez declared himself deceived with regard to receiving aid in Cuba.

A meeting was held on board the Cherokee—Gen. Lane, of Oregon, presiding—and the following resolution passed:

Resolved, That Mr. Owens, the American Consul at Havana, has forfeited every right and title of an American citizen—outraged every sentiment of humanity, and is deserving the execution of every friend of liberty. His conduct requires his recall by the Government.

THE APPOINTMENT OF CAPT. RUSSELL.—We this morning received a note from one of our patrons and most estimable citizens, who says: "I was yesterday gratified to see your brief but just notice of the appointment of Captain Russell to the place of Paymaster of the United States Marine Corps, made vacant by the death of Major G. W. Walker. Capt. R. is emphatically what you represent him, a worthy and estimable gentleman, and an honor to the service." Had I, and many citizens of Washington whom I could name, been applied to by him, he could have commanded as strong influence as any man could wish to sustain him; but the privilege was denied me, and, as far as I know, others also, and I therefore embrace the occasion to approve of the compliment you pay him, and, as a friend of his, thank you for it."

EX-GOVERNOR JAMES C. JONES, of Tennessee, is in town, stopping at Willard's Hotel. This is the far-famed Whig champion, who not only beat James K. Polk, as a stump orator, out-and-out, but beat him twice for Governor.

Gov. Jones, who is now giving all his energies to the cause of the great Memphis and Charleston Railroad, and who does not interest himself in political matters, is, nevertheless, warmly talked of both as a candidate for Vice President, on the Scott ticket, and for a seat in the United States Senate, from Tennessee.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—We have been requested to state that the preamble and resolution, now before the Committee on Police, offered by Mr. Mulloy in the Council, will be fully discussed on the corner of G and 7th streets to-morrow afternoon, under the auspices of the "Northern Liberties Division Total Abstinence Society." Several distinguished speakers are expected to address the audience then assembled.

TRAVEL TO NORFOLK VIA BALTIMORE.—On and after Monday next, the boats of the Norfolk line will leave Baltimore daily, except Sunday, at six o'clock in the morning, instead of four o'clock in the afternoon, as heretofore—connecting with the Seaboard and Roanoke railroad to Weldon and Charleston. Passengers must therefore leave Washington in the evening train, and remain all night at Baltimore.

A WELCOME PRESENT.—We yesterday received the following note:

MR. CONNOLLY, Editor of the Telegraph: Be pleased to accept the accompanying bouquet, with the respect of JOHN T. C. CLARKE, September 4, 1851.

It is a splendid, of a beautiful bouquet! as fragrant as beautiful. Every flower and every leaf is a delight in itself, and the combination could only be suggested by the most perfect taste, and executed by hands of rarest skill. Happy is he whose home is beautified by such adornments, and we will add, by her whose kindly aid and care protects and cherishes them!

THE JOURNAL OF MAN.—This is a monthly periodical, conducted by Dr. Joseph R. Buchanan, of Louisville, Kentucky. It appears to be a scientific and literary review. The August number, now before us, contains articles entitled, The Organ of Comparison; Greeley's Hints towards Reform; Smeat's Electro-Biology; a review; The Progress of Mankind; a poem; Familiar Table Talk; Cerebral Embryology and Comparative Anatomy; The Old World as it is and will be, &c.

WHERE IS DOCTOR GARDINER?—Some half a dozen steamers have arrived from Liverpool since the time set, by his champions, for the forthcoming of Doctor Gardiner, and yet the Doctor comes not. Can any of our New York contemporaries give the anxious Government officials a clue to his present whereabouts?

It appears that Mr. George W. Slacum, the well-known intimate and devoted friend of Thomas Corwin, has been specially appointed, by the Secretary of the Treasury, to go to Mexico for the purpose of investigating the Gardiner, Mears, Hargous and other Mexican claims allowed by the late Board of Commissioners, and supposed to have been not altogether sound.

Query.—What would induce Mr. Slacum to make any report against the wishes of his devoted friend Corwin?

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.—The death of Judge WOODBURY creates a vacancy on the bench of the United States Supreme Court, which could not be better filled and graced than it would be by the appointment of RUFUS CRONKLE to that exalted legal position. As Judge Woodbury was a resident of New England, the appointment of his successor belongs to that section of the Union.

A Warning.

A certain Bavarian Captain (or a man passing himself for a Bavarian Captain) was introduced to Gov. Ujhazi, his family, and Mademoiselle Jagiello, now my wife, when they were passing through Hamburg to embark for this, the country of their asylum. That Bavarian is not a political exile. He came to this country on board the same steamer which brought Gov. Ujhazi and his party of Hungarian exiles, with a view of seeking better fortune than he enjoyed in his native land. He behaved like a gentleman and was very courteous in Hamburg, on board the steamer, and in New York, which gained him the respect and consideration of the whole party of the Hungarian exiles. He lived upon their charity, and Mademoiselle Jagiello loaned him money, which he never returned, and introduced him to many respectable families in New York. Her charitable kindness seems to have been misunderstood by that individual, or, at least, so it appears from his subsequent conduct, which brought to light the inward character of the individual. He came to Washington, a few weeks ago, for the purpose of finding some employment, and having learned that Mademoiselle Jagiello was engaged to me, he tried to revolt her against me; failing in this, he resorted to the villainy of defaming the lady whom he once adored, and circulating assertions that I would never marry her, &c. Our subsequent marriage having put the lie in his throat, he left Washington for New York, and tempted the Hungarian exiles to furnish him testimony to impeach the character of my lady, offering two hundred dollars to any who would do so. No Hungarian could be bought by him; but he enlisted as accomplices of his baseness two foreigners: one a native of Vienna, who served in the Hungarian army, and claims to be a Hungarian major; the other is a Hungarian Jew, a pedlar, whom the Hungarian revolution elevated to the rank of lieutenant. These two individuals, a year ago, denounced Governor Ujhazi as a traitor, stating that he assumed the rank of Governor of Comoro in this country, &c. The public were disabused from this falsehood by the well-known letter which Koseth wrote to General Cass, recommending Gov. Ujhazi as his particular friend, and tempting the Hungarian exiles, as I have been informed, gave the Bavarian Captain a certificate or affidavit, averring that my wife is a Jewess, and defaming her character by the most shameless false denunciations. I have been trying during the whole week to lay hand upon a copy of that libel, (which has been printed in the form of a circular, and is circulated by the Bavarian Captain,) for the purpose of indicting the libellers. As yet I have not succeeded; the friends of my wife and mine refusing to take from the libeller copies of the libel; and those who are strangers to us declining to furnish any to us—probably unwilling to become witnesses in the criminal prosecution, which requires that the circulation of the libel be proved against the libeller. Under these circumstances of the case, this statement of facts is submitted to the public in the premises, and caution all respectable families against the unworthy individuals. It seems to me that this unfortunate circumstance requires me to say to my wife, unwilling as I am to boast of her ancestry, the truth commands me to state, that she is a Polish lady by birth, of a most respectable family. The family of Jagiellons furnished kings to Poland during three centuries. The direct line of that family extinguished two centuries ago, but there are in various parts of Poland several collateral branches of that family, and my wife is a descendant of one of those branches. Her father was a rich, landed proprietor of Lithuania, a province of former Poland, incorporated with Russia. He took prominent part in the revolution of 1830, and fought the battles of Poland under the same standard of liberty under which I fought; his property was confiscated at the same time when mine was confiscated, and he died a poor exile in Cracow. My wife, however, inherited a handsome fortune upon the death of her grandmother. She lost it in consequence of her leaving home to aid the cause of Hungarian independence. I abstain, for the present, from publishing the names of the libellers, solely from charitable motives. They will be published, however, if they continue the villainous conspiracy against my wife. I consider them as unworthy of any other notice.

ARRIVAL OF THE EMPIRE CITY.

New York, September 6—4 p. m. The Empire City has arrived here. The Cherokee's news is fully confirmed.

New Orleans, Sept. 4. Robert Ellis, of Washington city, is not dead, but taken prisoner.

Baltimore, Sept. 6—2 p. m. No sales of flour to-day. Grain unchanged. The New York markets are reported steady. The Empire City is anxiously looked for.

Where shall the Negro go?

Indians exclude free negroes from its limits. The Constitution of the United States says: "The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States."

In the State of New York the free black man can vote. The Southern Press comments: "It seems monstrously inconsistent that in the one he should be able to vote for President and at other elections, and yet within the limits of the United States, which has chosen the said President, he can be forbidden, as a freeman, from going where he likes, or into any other so-called free State."

Authority of a Railroad.

A conductor of the South Reading Branch railroad, named Wood, was cited before the Police Court at Lowell the other day, to answer a charge of assaulting and ejecting from the cars a passenger named Fitzgerald. From the evidence, it appeared that Fitzgerald was disorderly in the cars, and the court held that the conductor was fully justified in ejecting him.

The Campbell Minstrels.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that this band of Minstrels, whose concerts we learn have been attended with the greatest success in nearly every State in the Union, will commence a series of concerts at Odd-Fellows' Hall on Monday evening next. The interior of the Hall has recently undergone thorough repair, and we doubt not that the re-opening, under the auspices of this band, will be a successful one.

Trial for Murder.

We learn from the Leesburg (Va.) Chronicle of yesterday, that on Monday next the September Court of Loudoun county will be held, when O. D. Clark will be tried for murder. He is a young man, a school-teacher by profession, and is married in one of the most estimable families of the county. We believe he has not long resided in the county, but is from the North.
