A Dream

Oh, Jennie! I had the loveliest dream last night. I dreamed that George and I were married, and he gave me a diamond bracelet and a string of gold beads, and he gave us his forgiveness and a new little house, with a coming little veranda, and no mortgage on it, and—Oh, my! What did you dream of?—A biscuit made of imperial flour. 125-17

The Echo.
Did you ever figure on the exact distance that one may be removed from a reflecting surface and yet hear the echo of his own voice? It is said that one cannot pronounce distinctly or hear distinctly more than five syllables in a second. This gives one-fifth of a second for each syllable. Taking 1,120 feet as the velocity of sound per second, we have 224 feet as the distance sound will travel in one-fifth of a second. Hence, if a reflecting surface is 112 feet distant, the initial sound of an uttered syllable will be returned to the ear from a distance of 112 feet, just as the next syllable starts on its journey.

In this case the first fifth of the second is consumed in the utterance of a syllable and the next fifth of the second in hearing its echo. Two syllables would be echoed from a reflecting surface 224 feet distant, three syllables from 336 feet, and so on within the limit of audibility. It is evident that a sharp, quick sound, the duration of which is only one-tenth of a second, would give an echo from half the distance, or fifty-six feet. The above estimates are for a temperature of 61 degs. Fahrenheit, at which the velocity of sound is a little over 1,120 feet in a second. The velocity of sound when the mercury stands at freezing is 1,086 feet per second.—St. Louis Republic.

Sarcastic Oscar Wilde.
At a gathering in London not long ago Oscar Wilde was approached by a small man, who slapped him familiarly on the back, exclaiming:

"Holles, Oscar, do you know every time I see you you get fatter and fatter?"

"I don't know who you are," replied the apostle of aestheticism, looking down from his advantage of several inches, "but every time I see you you get run and run." Needless to say the too friendly acquaintance vanished abashed into the crowd.

"Can you tell me," asked Oscar, turning to a lady with whom he had just been talking, "who that dreadful little cad is?"

"That, Mr. Wilde," returned the lady, with a frosty glance and haughty manner, "is my husband."

"Is it, indeed?" replied he, with an agreeable smile and holding his ground. "Then what a pity you don't teach him better manners!"—London Letter.

If you want to feel safe when your wife or daughter is driving use the Sanders Detacher on your buggy. Examine it and make your order at the Palace Stable, North Lawrence avenue. 4149-32
