DAWN AND DUSK.

Apple's night of radiant bloom, Showered against the sea's blue shield,
On myriad ripples dance and gleam, Gold stars strewn o'er an azure field.

Upon the shingled banks they stand In shreds of day and more of life, Together stand, hand clasped in hand,
A hedgehog fond, a happy wife.

The moon, a silver scimitar, Severes the fading reel of cloud, Far, far beyond the labor bar The stargazer, now low, now loud.

Alone upon the dusky strand,
The black warbling at her feet,
A widow stands, unshaded the head, Still the waves that made life sweet.

Keep the Nails in Trim.
The base of the nails presents a not less important field for the exercise of care and attention than the tips. No nail can be a handsome one which is overgrown and smothered at the lower portion by a clinging mass of skin, often dry, split and ragged from neglect.

Excessive Ugliness in Soldiers.
Ugliness as a disqualifying cause seems intelligible in a candidate for matrimony, but is certainly less so when the question is one of fitness for military service.

Two Paris Weddings.
Mlle. Jeanne Hugo, granddaughter of the celebrated poet, is betrothed to M.
Leon Daudet, son of the novelist, Alphonse Daudet.

About Stealing.
"Bless you" - some one says on hearing a companion sneeze. "Bless you" was just the exclamation made for the same reason in other tongues by several nations hundreds of years ago.

Naked Children.
Little Egyptians of both sexes trot around without any clothes on, and the poorer classes of the Chinese children are often without clothes. I have seen quite large boys and girls naked in Havana, Cuba, and in southern California, Partnership in Boots.

"Puzzled The Doctors."
MOST of the cases cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla have been given up by the regular practice. Physicians are recommending this medicine more than ever, and with satisfactory results.

THE LIFE OF A SPONGE.
ITS DEVELOPMENT FROM ARTICLES OF PROTOPLASM.
How the Work of Nutrition is Carried Out - Peculiar Characteristics of a Very Common Article - A Familiar Scientific Talk by a Noted Man.

First of all we may note that a sponge, as we know it in common life, is the horny skeleton or framework which was made by and which supported the living parts. These living parts consist of minute masses of protoplasm which have been applied. This, in truth, is the universal matter of life. It is the one substance with which life everywhere is associated, and as we see it simply in the sponge, so also we behold it (only in more complex guise) in the man.

Under the microscope these living sponge units appear in various guises and shapes. Some of them are formless, and, as to shape, ever altering masses, resembling the familiar amebule of our pools we know as the ameba. The members of the sponge colony form the bulk of the population. They are imbedded in the sponge substance; they wander about through the meshes of the sponge; they seize food and flourish and grow; and they probably give origin to the "eggs" from which new sponges are in due course produced.

More characteristic, however, are certain units of this living sponge colony which live in the lining membrane of the canals. In point of fact, a sponge is a kind of Venice, a certain proportion of whose inhabitants, like the famous queen of the Adriatic herself, lived on the banks of the waterways. Just as in Venice we find provisions for the denizens of the city brought to the inhabitants by the canals, so from the water, which, as we shall see, is perpetually circulating through a sponge, the members of the sponge colony receive their food.

Now if you drop a living specimen of this species into a bowl of water, and put some powdered indigo into the water, you may note how the currents are perpetually being swept in by the pores and out by the oscula.

ITS NOURISHMENT.
In living sponge this perpetual and unending circulation of water proceeds.
This is the sole evidence the unassisted sight receives of the vitality of the sponge colony, and the importance of this circulation in aiding life in these depths to be fairly carried out cannot readily be overestimated.

Let us now see how this circulation is maintained. Microscopically regarded, we see here and there, in the sides of the sponge passages, little air chambers or recesses, which remind one of the passing places in a narrow canal. Lining these chambers we see living sponges units of a type different from the shape-less sponges we noted to occur in the meshes of the sponge substance itself.
The units of the recesses each consist of a living particle, whose free extremity is raised into a kind of collar, from which projects a hairlike filament known as a flagellum. This last is in constant movement. It waves to and fro in the water, and the collection of lashes we see in any one chamber acts as a veritable brush, which by the movement not only sweeps water in the pores, but sends it onward through the sponge, and in due time sends it out by the bigger holes or oscula.

This constant circulation in the sponge discharges more than one important function. For, as already noted, it serves the purpose of nutrition, in that the particles on which sponge life is supported are swept into the colony. Again, the fresh currents of water carry with them the oxygen gas which is a necessity of sponge existence, as of human life; while, thirdly, waste matters, inevitably shaken in sponge; and in man as the result of living, are swept out of the colony and discharged into the sea beyond. Our bit of sponge has thus grown from a mere dry fragment into a living reality. It is a community in which already, low as it is, the work of life has come to be discharged by distinct and fairly specialized beings. - London Illustrated News.

A Georgia Negro's Shoes.
The largest pair of shoes ever seen in Dawson were received the other day by Mr. L. C. Durham for a negro by the name of Alex. White. The shoes were numbered fifteen and weighed four pounds and five ounces. White can never find any shoes in stock that will fit him, and always has to put in a special order for them. - Macon Telegraph.

Crystallization.
When bodies pass slowly from the liquid to the solid state, their molecules, instead of becoming grouped in a confused manner, generally acquire a regular order and arrangement, in virtue of which these bodies assume the geometrical shapes of cubes, pyramids and prisms, etc., which are perfectly definite, and are known as crystals.
Flakes of snow, sugar candy, common salt, alum, etc., afford common instances of crystallization.

LITTLE HENRIE'S WILD RUN.
A Chicago Boy's Thrilling Experience as Part of a Cable Car System.
Little Henry Altenberg, who lives with his parents at the corner of West Madison street and Western avenue, Chicago, recently lost his life as the result of a scientific experiment which he had carried beyond the bounds of personal safety.

and back coils simultaneously, were soon awake stricken at the figure the boy was cutting. He pranced down the track like a yearling colt around a blue grass pasture. His soiled shirt fluttered in the breeze and his hat flew off. But he did not stop to pick it up. He couldn't. He gripped the rope that so closely identified him with the cable system and sped on and on. Then he lifted up his voice, swelled his lusty lungs and yelled wildly. People generally shouted, "Hey!" at him, and several thoughtful ones asked him if it hurt much, but he only galloped on. He was devoting his whole thought to the scientific investigation he was conducting at such a rapid gait and with such flattering success.

He had started up at Leavitt street at 2:10 p. m. At 2:12 he flashed by Horne avenue. At 2:14 he had gathered speed and was cantering across Seely avenue.
At 2:14 two men, seeing the boy's predicament, rushed out to bear him on his way. One of them tried to jerk the rope away, but could not. Then they began to call for knives. There was a death of knives along Madison street just then and none was forthcoming. More men joined in the exciting chase, but Hennie led them all by several laps. Soon the intense excitement of the situation was beginning to tell on him, when at 2:14 he made Robey street, and he was panting for breath. Still men shouted and women screamed. The boy joined in and swelled the high refrain. But he could not break away, and, though resistently, he madly sped on.

Hebrew, Israelite and Jew.
Our broad national distinction gave us the name Israelite in the time of our ancient greatness, a greatness to which all people may at some time in the long future rise, and then we may again, together with all God fearing people, adopt the name of Israelite. Before our ancestors were, in a national sense, Israelites they were Hebrews, a name which was and is today a race distinction. The word Jew is a narrow name in use for our separate religious distinction. Nothing could be plainer to us. Hebrew refers to the race, Israelite refers to the nation, Jew to the religion. - Hebrew Journal.
