The report the of the committee on the Industrial Home was then read and adopted, containing the following memorial, which will be presented to the city council on Monday night:

"To the Honerable Mayor and Councilmen of the City of Wichita."

The Kansas Humane society of the city of Wichita do hereby petition your honorable body for a grant from the city treasury to aid in establishing an "Industrial Home" for children.

Our reason for making this request is that the work that is request is that the work that is pressing to be done is more than our present means enable us to do. Our very efficient agent, Mr. Lew Aspey, finds his hands more than full of work that must be done or the public will suffer. The number of children that are running wild in our streets, soon to be come criminals, is appalling. "An ounce of prevention is worth a and of cure. pound of cure."

Mr. Aspey has had in the last sixty days thirty cases of girls that are neglected and will drift into lives of shame unless provided for soon. He has fourteen girls between the ages of 13 and 18 now on his list that are either homeless or in dangerous hands, and the society can do nothing for them for lack of means. If a suitable home could be provided Mr. Aspey says he could put twenty-four girs into it within a week—girls, too, that are not yet ruined but in peculiar danger.

And of boys the number is still larger, who are growing up into criminals for lack care. More than forty boys now on our cets have been arrested for petty

It seems needless for the city to maintain separate hospitals, either for different schools of medicine, or for different religious beliefs. The public welfare should be the only care of the city, and not theology.

And the Children's Home enlarged to undertake this rescue work, would be a great saving—even financially—to our city in the future.

In view of the above considerations, we

Some Marriage Customs. LONDON, Aug. 10.-The Greeks and French appear to me to be the most grasping and shameless in the matter of dowry, the Germans show the least pretense of sentiment, while the Russian takes a high ground altogether. The French cover their avaricious ness with flowery sentiment where they can, but they always mean business. One Frenchman told a young lady who was very rich while he was poor: "Do not fear. We shall be happy. I love you too much to allow your wealth and my poverty to humiliate me, and we will be thus always on the same footing." No matter how ar-dent the suit of a Frenchman of a certain sort it cools very rapidly when he finds there is to be no dowry.

Just how bese and unworthy such a man is I leave people to judge who have read the stories of the miseries and shame of American girls who have been unfortunate enough to marry such men. The more no-ble the men profess to be just so much higher price they set upon themselves. I know less about the Italians, not having remained long enough in their country to gain a real knowledge; but if common report and other experience is to be be-lieved much the same state of affairs exists there, and it certainly is about the same among the Jewish people. They have to give dowries with their daughters. in all the foreign countries it is a fixed stom, even here in enlightened England, only there is more decency shown here, and the dower is generally secured to the wife and her beirs. And in France there is ometimes marriage I believe where the wife's dowry is secured to her, but I think that is rarely done, as it nearly always leads to quarrels and trouble, for the husband regards it as his right to have all the money.

The Turks may be uncivilized, but they have more true manliness about them in this respect than any other of the European nations, and they benestly do love, cherials and protect their wives as something too secred even to telk about.

On one occasion, during the examination of an "object" lesson on the "Cow," I received a most original answer from a scholar. I had asked a series of questions having reference to the practical uses to which the various parts of the cow's carcase are put. And although I was quite satisfied to hear that cups and combs were made of the beast's horns, knife handles of it's bones, leather of its skin, etc., I certainly was somewhat startled and render ed incredulous by hearing one lad inform me, with the most confident and complacent air in the world, that "wash leather was made of its stomach"-Chambers'

The manufacture of bagging from the I'm So Hungry cotton stalk, which was commenced not long ago, is rapidly on the increase. Expert cotton men declare the product to be fully equal to any other bagging material, being quite as strong as jute, less inflammable and only a shade darker. The cotten stalks have heretefore been a troublesome incumbrance of the gleaned fields. They had to be besten down and burned or plowed in for the succeed ing crop. They are now, however, worth Ba ton to the manufacturer, and so con- HOOG'S stitute a very handsome source of revenue.-New York Commercial Adver- Sarsaparilla
