Grasshopper War in Algeria.

Immense swarms of grasshoppers have invaded parts of the country of Algeria and are spoiling lots of things. Two thousand soldiers, aided by 12,000 Arabs, have been employed to fight the pest. The roadways present the appearance of a battlefield, and extraordinary efforts are being made to rid the surrounding country of this insect enemy.

This is not the first time that this plague has devastated Algeria. In 1845 the harvests of almost the entire country were destroyed by grasshoppers. From 1747 to 1749 these insects desolated Algeria, extending their ravages even to parts of Europe.

Millions on millions of the dead bodies of these insects are covering at present the great roadway leading from Mascara to Mostaganam, and filling the springs and rivers. The task of killing these swarms of grasshoppers is no small one. Imagine a district of 100 miles in circumference which not long ago was covered with wheat, tobacco and fig and olive trees, but now is so densely covered with grasshoppers that not a single green branch or leaf can be seen. For three years a distinguished Parisian naturalist, M. Kunkel, has been studying how to exterminate these creatures. The best plan seems to be that of stamping the moving, quivering heaps with the bare feet. Shovels and other sharp instruments are used, but it has been noticed that the elastic layers of grasshoppers tend to rebound after pressure and only the layers on top are crushed. Large fires have also been lighted, but the dense smoke arising from the flames is only partly effective in preventing the descent of these all devouring swarms.

Danher Von Kendler's Trial.

Herr Alfred Von Kendler, whose trial for fraud had commenced before a Vienna jury, was the head of an old banking house founded in 1790, which failed in November last with liabilities amounting to upward of 2,500,000 florins. The prisoner, who was arrested a week after this event, is charged with appropriating to his own use deposits of private persons or firms amounting to nearly 2,000,000 florins. It appears that the accused, who was of extravagant habits, began to tamper with the deposits in 1881. Among the persons defrauded is the head waiter at the hotel where Kendler used to dine, and who had given up the whole of his savings, amounting to over 25,000 florins. The accused, who is a man of 60 years of age, when asked by the president of the court whether he pleaded guilty, answered that the facts stated in the indictment were, generally speaking, correct; but that, as he firmly believed and hoped he would be able to replace the borrowed money, he did not feel guilty. The trial is the topic of general conversation in Vienna society. —Cor. London Standard.

Treasures in the Passaic River.

A few days ago "Bert" Lyons and a dozen other boys were diving in about ten feet of water in the Passaic river near Belleville, N. J., in rivalry as to which of them should bring up the most shells from the muddy bottom. When it was young Lyons' turn to plunge he remained so long under the water that his companions began to fear that he had gone down to stay, or else was gathering so many shells that the contest would be virtually over when he reappeared. He came up at last, however, without any shells, but holding aloft triumphantly, for the contemplation of his envious friends, a solid silver double case Waltham watch and chain that he had fished out of the depths. The watch had stopped at 7:20 o'clock, but the proud finder has ascertained that it will merely resume work when the water has been pumped out of it and its internal organization has been soaked for ten days in oil. —New York Tribune.

Old Hats.

The man who was hurrying into the hatters recently was on business. He wanted his old hat. "When did you leave it here?" "I dunno," was the reply. They hunted over a great pyramid of hats and found it, labeled July 2. When the man went out the hatter said: "That man bought a new hat here and when he went out said he would call for it in half an hour. It has now been four weeks. We throw away seven or eight hundred old hats every year, for which the owners are going to call in half an hour." —Lewiston Journal.

Artificial vs. Natural Ice.

The manufacture of artificial ice has begun in Reading, Pa., and the enterprise is already pronounced a decided success. The ice is made into cakes of 100 pounds each, and is declared to be of the finest quality. The retail price is the same as that of natural ice. Several of the big brewing companies of Reading have decided to manufacture artificial ice. The Reading Brewing company is now manufacturing artificial ice by the ammonia process. —New York Telegram.

Ravenous Prairie Chickens.

Young prairie chickens are beginning to roost about here. So ravenous have they become that nearly every gentleman who goes outside of the city limits for a walk carries a breech loading shotgun to protect himself, and is frequently compelled to kill large numbers in self defense. The bite of a prairie chicken causes an ugly wound. —North Platte (Nebr.) Tribune.

The Morgue Crowded.

Forty bodies were taken to the morgue Friday, and the number is extraordinary. Thirteen were from Bellevue hospital, eleven from the institutions on Ward's and Blackwell's islands, six from the Foundling hospital, and the others from police stations and persons too poor to bury their dead. —New York Times.

The accounts of a pill maker who has just died in England show that he has been spending $300,000 a year for advertising.

His heirs, however, are finding no particular fault with this extravagance, as he leaves an estate valued at $25,000,000—all due to pills and advertising.

At "Just Him a Long Time to Decide.

"Just watch this crank," said a man in a restaurant. "He comes in here every day, and goes through a whole act before he gets up courage enough to ask for fried onions.

He always finishes by ordering them, but he never avows his real purpose until he has beaten around the bush for ten minutes. The waiters know him well and humor him.

The lover of onions satted himself, and looked over the dinner card with a languid, bored air. "How are the soft shelled crabs deviled?" he asked.

"They are very nice, sir."

"It's a little late for crabs, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is a little late, sir."

"H'm. Let's see. How is your crabsack?"

"That's very nice, sir."

"But come to think of it I don't care for any duck," and he knitted his brows and carefully scanned the menu card.

"There doesn't seem to be anything here that I care for."

"How would you like a nice piece of roast lamb?"

"No, that doesn't strike my fancy."

"A chop?"

"No. Perhaps you would better bring me a bottle of St. Julien and a slice of cold roast beef. I have no appetite today."

"Very well, sir," and the waiter started off slowly.

"Oh, Gaspard."

"Yes, sir."

"I have an idea."

"Yes, sir."

"I might be able to eat a good steak with a few fried onions."

"They would be very nice, sir."

"Only a few onions, but have the steak good."

"Yes, sir."

"That will be all. You needn't mind the chef."

"Yes, sir." But the lover of onions leaned back in his chair, as innocent appearing as a child. —New York Tribune.

Wouldn't Take Pennies.

A passenger on the Tacoma street car line offered five copper cents for his fare. The conductor refused to accept the tender and ejected the passenger. Now the company is called on to stand suit for $2,000 damages. —San Francisco Call.

Novel Ways to Pay Taxes.

A Maine man has paid his taxes by turning seventy-eight crows' heads into the state treasury. In Massachusetts the citizen may work out his taxes on the town roads, or catch seals and collect the bounty of $1 each offered for their tails.

A mortgage was raised from a poor woman's home at Plainfield, N. J., by watermelon seeds.

The guests of a summer hotel paid fifty cents a piece for the privilege of guessing the number of seeds in a watermelon, and the proceeds were devoted to the widow.
