THE STORY OF A NIGHT. I wandered alone at eventide Down by the sea.

Two stately ships, of foreign lands, Were riding at anchor, brave and free.

And the waves that were breaking on the shore, They were breaking on the shore.

And the wind that was blowing from the west, It was blowing from the west.

And the stars that were shining in the sky, They were shining in the sky.

And the moon that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the sun that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the earth that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the world that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the universe that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the cosmos that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the galaxy that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

And the universe that was shining in the sky, It was shining in the sky.

"THE LADIES."—H. L. GORDON. Sovereign Master, Ladies and Sir Knights.

If there is one thing that makes me prouder than another, it is to have my name associated with the ladies.

There is one pleasure that I enjoy more than another, it is to be permitted to associate with the ladies.

I feel honored, therefore, at being called upon to respond to this toast.

Yet I feel a keen and humiliating sense of my inability and unfitness to properly do so.

For to speak of a true woman is to speak of all that is high and pure and noble in this life.

Her influence for good is felt and known and acknowledged wherever the light of intelligence shines.

And the barriers that divide the sexes are superseded and broken down.

By nature she is the true representative of all the ennobling and elevating influences that surround mankind.

And with a few simple words she can rule the souls of men, and ever pointing upward, leads humanity to a higher plane.

And adds a charm and lustre to his life that I feel a keen and humiliating sense of my inability and unfitness to properly do so.

UNITED STATES COURT. The Trial of Wood Takes up the Entire Day.

The trial of W. J. Wood for manslaughter occupied the entire day yesterday in the United States court.

The prosecution introduced testimony up to the time of adjournment and have some witnesses to examine Monday.

The defense say they can introduce all their evidence in three or four hours, so the case will probably be argued Monday afternoon.

Wood, the defendant, shot and killed W. H. H. Shuck, contractor, of Oklahoma City, in September, 1889.

Shuck was building a house for Wood and some difficulty as to the work arose between the two parties.

During the dispute Shuck made an attempt to draw a pistol, when Wood struck him on the face with a loaded gun.

Wood then drew his gun and fired at Wood twice. Wood then returned the fire killing Shuck the first shot.

Neither of Shuck's shots took effect on Wood. The defense is conducted by Col. Johnson of Oklahoma City, assisted by D. C. Lewis of that city and T. F. McMechan, of this city.

Both men were married, Shuck having two children and Wood one.

In the United States circuit court yesterday Morris and John V. Daugherty of this city were admitted to practice in the United States court.

MR. GLAZER DECLINES. WICHITA, Kan., March 7, 1891.

E. T. Allen, A. H. Hyde, C. K. Ketchum, J. Hewitt, Dr. J. E. O'Connell, Charles Firebaugh, and Dr. J. E. O'Connell.

Gentlemen—Your recent communication requesting me to permit the use of my name for the office of mayor in the coming city election, has received my careful and thoughtful consideration.

It would be superfluous for me to say that in any event I cannot accept of the honor.

My position of mayor of a city like our own, whose future depends in a large measure upon her present policy, demands abilities of no mean order and involves responsibilities of no ordinary character.

I am therefore unable to accept of such a position, and by such representative citizens as those whose names are subscribed to your communication, is a honor of which I am unable to accept.

I appreciate this expression of the esteem and confidence of my neighbors, friends and fellow citizens, and I am deeply indebted to you for the present condition of our city calls for a wise and conservative administration of its affairs.

Standing as I do, surrounded by the most valiant, the most magnanimous and the most patriotic of our citizens, I feel that I am unworthy to be placed in a position of such responsibility.

I am therefore unable to accept of such a position, and by such representative citizens as those whose names are subscribed to your communication, is a honor of which I am unable to accept.

HOGS AND CATTLE. There were 10,845 hogs received at our Union stock yards this week, an increase over last week of 1,369.

The local packing houses used about two-thirds of this number, and could have consumed a few thousand more had they come in.

The features of the week were the high prices, the strong demand, and the number of shippers who have heretofore been strangers to this market.

Prices, considering the quality of hogs at the two places, have been 2 1/2 to 3 cents higher than at Kansas City all week.

The quality of the offerings here has really been higher prices paid here heretofore because the market was really lower than here.

There have not been a sufficient supply of hogs to fill the orders in the hands of the buyers here, as is evidenced by the fact that one of our local packers was forced to send to another market to get a few thousand hogs to fill his order.

The receipts of hogs for the week have for some time this week than for any week for some time, but the demand for good cattle has been as strong as ever.

CITIZENS MEETING. At a meeting of the citizens last night in the Fifth ward, held pursuant to a call published Friday morning, nominations were made for councilman, member of the school board, justice of the peace and constable.

The meeting was held at Martinson's hall, and a large number of voters turned out, despite the inclement weather.

The following gentlemen were chosen by the convention to fill the various offices: For councilman, H. J. Hill; school board, J. Allison; justice of the peace, S. M. Tucker; constable, C. F. Boyer.
