Why Oppose the Use of Cultivators. The oyster, though a very prolific shellfish and widely distributed, has so many enemies and is so helpless to defend itself when young and tender, that its chance of escaping extinction rests almost wholly upon its cultivation and care by artificial methods.

Sweltering Stranger—Pneum seems as if I'd melt. Thermometer must be about a hundred. Citizen—Nonsense! You go to the top of that forty story building, climb into the tower and look up at the official weather service thermometer and you'll find it isn't over seventy-six.—New York Weekly.

A Calf with Eight Feet. Uncle Peter Lesinger, colored, who lives in the Fifth district, had a calf born on his place Friday with eight feet—two on each leg. The two surplus ones on the hind legs were rather small. The calf lived until Monday, when it died, never being able to stand up.—Dyersburg (Tenn.) State Gazette.

A DEAD SHOT. Right at the seat of difficulty, is accomplished by the sure and steady aim of Dr. Sage's Catarth Remedy. Don't fool around with a pop-gun, nor a "Flint-lock" when this reliable "Winchester" is within reach!

Dr. Sage's treatment of Catarth in the Head is far superior to the ordinary, and when directed by a reasonably well followed, results in a permanent cure. Don't longer be indifferent to the verified claims of this unfailing Remedy.

The worst forms of Catarth disappear with the use of Dr. Sage's Catarth Remedy. Its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties effect a perfect and permanent cure, no matter how bad the case, or of how long standing. It's a remedy that succeeds where every thing else has failed. Thousands of such cases can be pointed out. That's the reason its makers bear their faith in it with money. They offer $500 reward for a case of Catarth which they cannot cure.

It's a medicine that allows them to take such a risk. Doesn't common sense lead you to take such a medicine? An advertising fake? you say. Funny, isn't it? how seldom people prefer to be sick to health when the remedy is positive and the guarantee absolute. Wise men don't put money back of "fakes" and "faking" doesn't pay.

Honest Begot. Little five-year-old Arthur had been sent into the country to stay three months at his grandpa's. It was bitter March weather, too cold even for the lad to see out of doors, for the windows were coated with thick white frost.

"Can I go outdoors today, grandpa?" bravely asked the lad, as he came down stairs the second morning after his arrival. "No, of course not. You must stay right here by the fire, where it is warm."

The boy sighed and began playing with the cat. "Arthur," commanded one of the three maiden aunts, "get up, quick; you will soil your stockings." The young nephew obeyed without protest. But it was rather lonesome, and pretty soon he tried the organ.

"Arthur," commanded aunt No. 2, "stop that noise immediately. Your grandpa wants to read." Again the youthful visitor obeyed. This time he went to the window and began scratching the frost off with a pin so that he could see out. "Arthur," instructed aunt No. 3, "stop that! Come away from the window."

Arthur stepped back from the window, put his hands in his pockets, looked first at the spectacled grandparents, then at the three aunts poised about the room like statues on a pedestal, and said, "If I didn't have to live here I'd be glad."—New York Recorder.

His Fortune. Wealth and poverty are relative terms, as almost every one must have learned by his own experience. Many a man who now thinks twenty dollars a week pretty small wages can remember the time when he felt rich with half that sum.

"A citizen of Westerly, R. I., says the historian of the town, enlisted as a private during one of the early wars of the country. It was perilous business, but patriotic feelings and visions of gold carried the day with him.

His cruise was long and eventful, but at last he returned home and received an appropriate welcome. As soon as the first greetings were over, his mother inquired: "Well, Harry, how have you made out? Did you get much money?" "Oh, yes, mother; good luck. I am rich. I shall have enough, with prudence in the care of it, to carry me through life, I hope."

"I am glad, my son; but how much did you get?" "Well, I don't know exactly, but I think when we settle up I shall have as much as thirty dollars."

RESCUED FROM THE DEPTHS OF MISERY. The miseries endured by unfortunate whose livers are derelict in duty is unspeakable. Sick headaches, constipation, indigestion, disorder of the digestive apparatus, heartburn, vertigo, unrest, soreness at the breast, flatulency, belching, short ribs and right shoulder blade, flake appetite, are among the hateful indices of biliousness, which, however, speedily vanish under the action of Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla is employed as a regulator. Most effectually is its work of disciplining carried out, as a complete renewal of the digestive, secretory and excretory functions satisfactorily proves. In cases of malarial disease the liver is the principal gland involved, and for maladies of a malarial type Sarsaparilla is an absolute specific. As a laxative—painless but effective—it is unrivalled, and it is an admirable remedy for chronic kidney trouble and rheumatism, and a superb general tonic and corrective.
