

DURING hard times consumers cannot afford to experiment with inferior, cheap brands of baking powder. It is NOW that the great strength and purity of the ROYAL stand out as a friend in need to those who desire to practise Economy in the Kitchen. Each spoonful does its perfect work. Its increasing sale bears witness that it is a necessity to the prudent—it goes further.

N. B. Grocers say that every dollar invested in Royal Baking Powder is worth a dollar the world over, that it does not consume their capital in dead stock, because it is the great favorite, and sells through all times and seasons.

THE DOCTOR AS A PREVENTIVE.

He Will Be More Valuable in That Capacity Than as a Cure. Well-regulated women make periodical visits to their dentists, not because they are enduring the torment of toothache, but because they wish to escape it. Two or three times a year they go confidently and subject their teeth to a critical survey and thereby they often escape sleepless nights, pain and large bills.

But these same women to whom the frequent dental examination is a matter of course, never think of consulting a physician except when they are really ill. It does not occur to them that their heart and lungs are quite as likely to reveal beginnings of disease to the practiced eye of the doctor as their teeth are to the dentist. They do not recognize the fact that the ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure and that it is as much their duty to take account of physical "stock" as it is to balance up their accounts at certain periods.

The New Year season, sacred to the destroying of ancient correspondence, the settlement of old bills and the like, is an excellent time to have a searching physical examination made. Then when one's doctor says that he thinks a little less dancing would improve the action of the heart and a little less reading would strengthen the eyes, those details could be attended to. If any disease is beginning the chances of its gaining headway will be infinitely lessened, and if, on the other hand, one's system is in perfect condition, one may enjoy that knowledge to the fullest degree.

The doctor as a preventive instead of a cure will be even a more valuable institution than he is now.—N. Y. World.

KEROSENE IN THE KITCHEN. Many Household Uses For Refined Petroleum. In view of the threatened exhaustion of the world's coal beds, those who have learned the value of kerosene in rough household work will enjoy the knowledge that in the opinion of Dr. Meaderliff, a noted Russian chemist, the supply of petroleum is inexhaustible. He attributes the formation of petroleum to the constant action of water on the metallic deposits of the hot, central portion of the earth, and believes that the rapidity of its formation keeps pace with all possible extraction. Headlight oil is double refined petroleum or refined kerosene. It is purer and cleaner than the cruder and cheaper oils, and has not so strong an odor. It is for this reason better for household purposes, although kerosene is as good in other respects. For laundry work the oil is becoming well known. The clothes are put to soak over night in warm soapsuds. In the morning clean water is put in the boiler and to it is added a bar of any good soap, shred fine, and two and one-half tablespoons of headlight or kerosene oil. The clothes being wrung from the suds, the finest and whitest go into the scalding water in the boiler and are boiled twenty minutes. When taken from the boiler for the next lot, they are sudsed in warm water, collars, cuffs and seams being rubbed if necessary. Rinsed and blued as usual, they will come forth beautifully soft and white. Knit woolen underwear, woolen socks, etc., may safely be washed in this way. The secret of washing successfully by this method is the use of plenty of soap and warm water to suds the clothes. If too little soap be used the dirt will "curdle" and settle on the clothes in "freckles." A teaspoonful of headlight oil added to a quart of made starch, stirred in while it is hot, or added to the starch before the hot water is poured upon it, will materially lessen the labor of ironing and will give the clothes, either white or colored; especially muslins and other thin wash goods, a look of freshness and newness not to be otherwise attained. For cold starch add a teaspoonful of oil for each quart to be stretched. Rub the starch well into the article, roll up tightly, and leave it for three-fourths of an hour, then iron. To clean windows and mirrors, add a spoonful of headlight or kerosene oil to a gallon of tepid water. A polish will remain on the glass that no mere friction can give. If windows must be cleaned in freezing weather, use no water at all. Rub them with a cloth dampened with kerosene, dry with a clean cloth and polish with soft paper. A few drops of kerosene added to the water in which lamp chimneys are washed will make them easier to polish. To break a glass bottle or jar evenly, put a narrow strip of cloth, saturated with kerosene, around the article where it is to be broken. Set fire to the cloth and the glass will crack off above it. Tarnished lamp burners may be rendered almost as bright as new by boiling them in water to which a teaspoonful of soda and a little kerosene has been added. Then scour with kerosene and scouring brick and polish with chamois or soft leather. To clean iron work rub with a cloth dampened with kerosene. To prevent rust on stores put away for the season, black them before putting away with blacking, diluted with kerosene, or rub them thoroughly with kerosene alone.—Detroit Free Press.

FOR LA GRIPPE SUFFERERS. The Reformer Editor Tells Of His Experience With This Dangerous Disease. From a New Point of View. "I see by the papers, Miss Dovecoat," said young Spooner, "that there have never been so many newly wedded couples at the English lakes as at present." "Indeed, Mr. Spooner," said Miss Dovecoat. "How perfectly stupid it must be to others. I can't imagine one looking at a more foolish sight than a collection of insipid honeymoon brides I couldn't stand it." "Not if you were one of them, Miss Dovecoat?" "Mr. Spooner! Sir!" "I—I—I mean, Miss Dovecoat—Arminia—dearest—will you go to the lakes with me?" "Oh, Mr. Spoon—Alonso—this is so—so sudden—so unex— Yes, Alonso, I will."—Answers. Canine and Feline. "I don't like cats," said the lawyer, as he kicked his wife's tabby out of his way. "Strange you should dislike anything in the fee line."—Hullo.

FOR LA GRIPPE SUFFERERS. The Reformer Editor Tells Of His Experience With This Dangerous Disease.

EDITOR J. H. LIVINGSTON. In the spring of the year 1891 I was attacked with grip. I was laid by for about two months, a portion of the time as sick as a man ever lived through the mysterious disease. From the effect of the attack I was really ill all summer, weak and tired and dispirited. In the spring of the year 1892 I suffered another onslaught of the same disease, and lost seventeen pounds of flesh in two weeks. I went back to my duties again with a settled conviction that I would be obliged to pass through another summer of misery, but happily I resorted to the use of Fajal's Coleridge Compound, and in twenty-four hours I was able to do my usual work. I was really cured, and I can say that I was mending and really better than before the grip made my first unwilling acquaintance. And now when tired from brain work or business cares I take a wine glass of Fajal's Coleridge Compound, on going to bed, and wake in the morning refreshed and fit to begin again the toils and meet successfully the vexation that infest the day. My wife, who is not wholly free from the ills inherent womankind, manages with my help, to consume the contents of about a half dozen bottles of the compound a year, to the great benefit of her health and my happiness. It ought to be understood that Coleridge Compound is as grateful to the palate as good and wholesome wine, while it is more invigorating and lasting in its effects than vintage of the fruit of the genus vitis. J. H. LIVINGSTON.
