

WORKED THE GUARD

TOM MADDOX PLAYS SICK AND FOOLES HIS JAILERS.

Santry Returns From Lunch to Find His Man Gone—Choctaw Council Now in Session, May Treat With Dawes Commission—Englishman Drowned at Guthrie.

NEWARK, O. T., Oct. 1.—Tom Maddox, under indictment in this county for murder, escaped from Officer Bible during a heavy rain tonight. He was taken from the jail this morning on the order of Dr. Briggs, the jail physician, and was guarded at his home either actually ill or pretending to be. The guard went to get a lunch, and when he returned the prisoner was gone. He was a slouch-keeper here last spring and shot a Wichita man in cold blood. He is described as a man six feet high or over, heavy light mustache, light complexion and has a bad scar on the lower part of his face. A reward is offered for his capture.

The matter of jail breaking in Oklahoma is becoming serious. They frequently happen and while in many cases the officers are charged with carelessness on the part of the jailer, in many instances the blame is to be laid on the weakness of the jail itself. So serious has this matter become that some of the last week Judge McKee issued an order for extra guards at the Kingfisher jail. In published notice he says that he has been informed that the prisoners there are planning to escape and he takes this method of forestalling them.

During the past twelve months there have been as high as fourteen jail-breaks in Oklahoma.

BARNEY COOPER ON TRIAL.

He is Charged with Murdering M. B. Ranson and a Hot Legal Fight is On.

NEWARK, O. T., Oct. 1.—The case of the territory vs. Barney Cooper, charged with the murder of M. B. Ranson, is in progress. Two witnesses have been examined and have given very damaging testimony against Cooper.

Wichita is well represented on both sides. County Attorney Willard Bone is helping County Attorney Byers prosecute. S. A. McGinnis, formerly of Wichita, is defending Cooper. It is now a clock and race to progress the trial as fast as the trial will not last more than two days.

OKLAHOMA CROPS.

With Some Account of the Agricultural College and General Notes.

SPECIAL Dispatch to the Daily Eagle. OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 1.—As compared with other sections of the United States Oklahoma is enjoying an unwarmed prosperity. All in all the crops have been excellent. While in some places the corn crop was injured by the dry weather, in others the yield is largely in excess of the territory's institutions is far better than it has been heretofore.

In the selection of Major Alvord for president of the agricultural college, the government and board of regents have made no mistake. Major Alvord comes to us a scholar and a gentleman of wide experience, having been in the army for many years and in military life, and thoroughly informed in regard to the workings of our agricultural college. The faculty is made up of most eminent men, among whom are Professors Magruder and Holler.

Dennis Flynn is out on a campaigning tour. He is welcomed with open arms everywhere. The territory is a grand old Oklahoma but what has derived some benefit from bills passed by congress the past winter. Aside from delegate politics is decided mixed. It is not clear that he would be thrown aside and the man, rather than the party, would carry the election.

A good deal has been said about the germinal of the territory, but it has been our experience that any man who goes out for his own interests, regardless of the wishes of the other fellows.

Oklahoma City High school started this morning with an enrollment of eighty-one. At the opening exercises Mrs. Lange read the story of the Hungarian dances and Phalberg's Sweet Home as only a magnificent pianist could. Mr. Lange is undoubtedly the finest pianist that has ever visited Oklahoma.

Mrs. C. C. Scott sang a most beautiful solo. She is a grand singer, and her conservative music, and has a voice of unusual sweetness, and thoroughly cultivated. She is a great accession to our musical world.

The Territorial fair was a success, and the racing was first class. All public open Oct. 8.

The Jackson company is naturally jubilant over its success in the contest. Dennis Flynn spent a few hours in the city today.

CHOCTAWS MAY TREAT.

TUSKALOOSA, I. T., Sept.—The Choctaw council convened here this morning and will be in session five weeks. It is thought that a bill will be introduced in Oklahoma proposing to treat with the Dawes commission.

DROWNING AT GUTHRIE.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Oct. 1.—The body of Frank Lodge who came here direct from England four months ago, was found in the Cottonwood river a mile from here today. His death is declared not to be from drowning. No marks of violence could be found. What caused his death and how he got into the river is not known. He was a single man, 34 years old and was to have opened a racket store here today.

People who find it tiresome to read a book more than once will surely credit the story which is told of one of the settlers on this island. The entire library of this little island consisted of a century or more ago, of a single copy of the "History of Dr. Faustus."

As most of the inhabitants were able to read—provided words were not too difficult—the conjurer's story had been handed from house to house, until from perpetual thumping very little of his enchantments or his catastrophe was left legible.

When this alarming state of things became known, a meeting of the principal inhabitants was called to discuss what could be done to remedy it, for the people must have something to read.

A proposal was made and carried that as soon as the season permitted any intercourse with the mainland a supply of books should be ordered. The question arose what these books should be, but at last it was settled amicably that an order should be transmitted to Penzance for another copy of the "History of Dr. Faustus." And then, the meeting joyously broke up.

Renovating Candy. A machine has been patented "to clean and put in suitable shape" any kind of confectionery. It is doubtful if anything could have been devised which would be more appreciated by the patrons of the old confectionery women on the corners. Take your antique gumballs, for instance, and throw them into the turning sieve of the machine. This is necessary to get rid of a brush that is something between a carpet sweeper and a squirrel's tail. Bumping lengthwise of the sieve and having a sweeping motion is a long brush made of the finest bristles. The body of this brush is hollow, and by means of a blow fan on top a blast of air is blown between the bristles on the goods. There is now no reason why candy should not be renovated like leather beds.—Boston Transcript.

A Sure Way. Ethel—Here is the lowest housecoat that I bought for you. It has doesn't seem to care for it the least bit.

Clara—It can tell you how to make him value it above everything.

Ethel—Oh, how that you've given it away to some poor man.—London Times.

Constantinople has 1,000,000 people who are kept in order by 1,000 policemen. In 1890 only 2,000 arrests were made, but 10 for drunkenness.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

THE CASE AGAINST AL DEAN, keeper of a restaurant on East Douglas avenue, was called yesterday in Justice Jones' court and continued for one week. Dean is charged with assaulting and beating S. T. Higby. The general sentiment as expressed by those who claim to know the circumstances was that Dean was perfectly justifiable in the case as Higby had insulted Dean's wife while in an intoxicated state.

THAT HABAS COLPIS.

Papers were served yesterday on Sheriff Royce demanding him to bring Dr. McKee and William E. Smith before the judge of the circuit to show cause why they should be held without bail. Judge Reed decided to take up the motion to grant the defendants bail today, while the return habeas corpus proceedings will be taken up on October 8.

SERIOUS CHARGE HEARD TODAY.

The case against Lin Dunlap, charged with assault upon Mary Baughman, a 14 year old girl at 540 North Main street, Sunday morning, was called in Justice Jones' court yesterday morning and continued until today. The case is creating considerable interest and much feeling was expressed over the affair.

SALVATION BARRACKS OPENED.

The Salvation Army, under the leadership of Captain and Mrs. Lee, has been gradually coming up and gaining ground. They have just opened a large and beautiful hall on Douglas avenue to serve as a meeting place for the poor and destitute. The place would, in all probability, have been crowded if it had not been for the rain. The services were led by Esig Williams who has charge of the training garrison in Kansas City. Mr. Esig Williams was converted in Wichita seven years ago in the Army and has been in the Army as an officer for six years. There were several ministers present who assisted in the sermons. There were three conversions at the close, which were the first since the building was opened by the Army work, and he asks all who feel inclined to do so to assist him in meeting with the Army work, which will be held every week. The Army has done much good, and under the present management will accomplish much more. Everybody is invited to the meetings which are held every night.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

(Published by The Wichita Abstract and Land Office.) The records in the register of deeds office show the following transfers: E. L. Bemis lot 1 Seneca at Martinson's 311 and w. d. 500

A clear, soft, white skin, free from pimple, spot or blemish, produced by Cuticura Soap.

MACMAHON AND MANTEUFFEL.

On the Verge of a Duel at the End of the Franco-Prussian War.

The Cologne Gazette has published several letters, which explain a curious incident of the Franco-Prussian war. That incident was the duel between General MacMahon and General Manteuffel in the fall of 1871 has been known generally for 20 years. The circumstances of their disagreement, which have now been explained, were these:

Manteuffel, who commanded the German army, was in the habit of holding certain parts of France until the Prussian army should be paid. MacMahon commanded the army of Versailles. "I called upon Marshal MacMahon on Sept. 9," Manteuffel reported to the old emperor, "and he refused to shake hands with me. I went the next day to General de Cissey, minister of war, and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

General de Cissey, the minister of war, has just informed me that you felt aggrieved by what passed between us yesterday. I regret that and told him that I had not mentioned to M. Thiers, because he, as a civilian in his high official position, would have complicated matters. I informed General de Cissey that I felt aggrieved by Marshal MacMahon's behavior and that I intended to make a declaration that in refusing to shake hands with me, he had not intended any reflection or insult. I thought it better to call upon General de Cissey, who was at hand, than to send two Prussian generals to the marshal."

VEST IS VENOMOUS

HE COMES TO BURY CLEVELAND NOT TO PRAISE HIM.

Silver Tongued Senator Declares That He Has Naught Against the President But Later Breaks Out and Matches "Perfidy and Dishonor" with "Ignorance."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 1.—Senator George G. Vest opened the Democratic state campaign at the Auditorium in this city tonight. Over 2,000 people crowded the leading theater, according to the speaker perhaps as rousing a reception as any orator ever received in Kansas City. Upon entering the hall Senator Vest was greeted with uproarious applause, and when he arose to speak the cheering became an uproar. He was introduced by John L. Peak and made what many of the audience regard as one of the strongest speeches of his career. He said in part:

"If any one is here with the expectation that I will attack the president of the United States or any Democrat, that expectation will not be realized. Whatever differences of opinion as to questions may exist between the president and myself, they shall not interfere, so far as I am concerned, with my duty in the hope of conflict and danger. My contest is now with the enemy, not with Democrats. No word from me shall furnish an excuse for lukewarmness on the part of Democrats nor give encouragement to our foes."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis; fourth, the lessening of governmental expenses. Governor McKinley in his recent speech at Bangor, Me., made the statement that not a single word of the Democratic platform has been redeemed. When we reflect that his speech, carefully prepared and made as a bid for the presidency, contains no allusion to his views on the four points named, it is surprising that he should add mendacity to cowardice."

"The Democratic party in 1892 pledged itself to certain reforms. 'First'—The repeal of the federal election law which authorized the use of United States marshals and soldiers at the polls; second, the repeal of the Sherman law, third, the reduction of tariff taxation to revenue basis