

Daily Eagle

M. M. MURDOCK, Editor.

STATE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

- Associate Justice... W. A. JOHNSON
Governor... E. N. MOHRILL
Lieut. Governor... J. A. THOMAS
Secretary of State... W. C. EDWARDS
Auditor of State... G. E. COLE
State Treasurer... O. L. ATHERTON
Attorney General... F. H. DAWSON
Public Instruction... E. STANLEY

COUNTY REPUBLICAN TICKET.

- Clerk of District Court... S. N. BRIDGEMAN
Probate Judge... J. J. MYART
County Attorney... JOHN B. DAVIS
Supt. Public Instruction... CHARLES J. MACKAY

REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM.

Re-affirming the Republican platform of 1892. Resolved, First: That the constant patriotism of our party is its best guarantee...

LONG REPUBLICAN MEETINGS.

- South Haven, Saturday, Oct. 27th, 2 p. m.
Cheyenne, Monday, Oct. 29th, 2 p. m.
Valley Center, Tuesday, Oct. 30th, 2 p. m.

It was "Republican lies" that brought down Boss Tweed.

It was "Republican lies" that elected Abraham Lincoln.

Less than 3 per cent of the eligible women of Chicago registered.

Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was a "Republican lie."

It was "Republican lies" that crowned Grant the greatest general of the age.

It was "Republican lies" that induced the government to pension old soldiers.

The southern Populists call the histories of the rebellion "Republican lies."

Cleveland is a striking example of an inoffensive partisan so far as New York is concerned.

The cuckoo congressmen are having a hard time getting cuckooed out of their constituents.

Tariff revision did not bring a business revival, but a Republican majority in congress will.

It was "Republican lies" that prevented Grover Cleveland from returning the rebel flags.

Lewelling is above suspicion. If you suspect this great "reformer" you are a "Republican liar."

If you believe what Populist Allen told you about Lewelling you are a liar. The Populist papers say so.

Senator Martin has opened an account with a party that will go into bankruptcy on the 6th of November.

Senator Hill said that he preferred to remain in the senate, and the voters of New York will take him at his word.

Mrs. Lease is the middle of the road Kansas Populist, but she has lost her bearings and is over in the middle of Iowa.

Governor Lewelling, presuming on the ignorance of his hearers, said that the Republicans didn't assess Pullman at all. The records must lie.

The wheels in heads have been churning long enough. What the people want to see, and will vote for is for the wheels of machinery to do the churning.

While the tariff tinkers were hard at work the industries of the country took a rest. Now let the tariff tinkers take a rest, and the industries go to work.

The people of Ohio, regardless of party, regard McKinley as an able man. But if a man in Kansas believes in protection the Populist speakers say he is a fool.

During the thirty years of Republican rule there was no prosperity in this country. You simply imagined it. If you say there was you are a "Republican liar."

There is not a purer man in the state of Kansas than Chester I. Long. But the Populists call him "a liar and a fool" because he believes in protection and reciprocity.

The Enquirer contains a "Round-up of the political field," in which it predicts that the delegation from Indiana in the next congress will be eight Republicans to five Democrats. There are now but two Republicans from that state.

IS HE?

It is the earnest conviction of many a true, honest man that a protective tariff is a good thing for this country. The same man believes honestly and truly that the question of tariff is a vital one to the prosperity of this nation.

OKLAHOMA O'BLIGES.

The Oklahoma City mills sent flour to Cuba until the Democratic congress killed reciprocity. Jo Wisby's defense of Hoke Smith's strip booths is said to be worth going miles to see.

THE CONTROL OF THE AFFAIRS OF THIS COUNTRY.

The control of the affairs of this country fell into the hands of incompetent men and they made a dismal failure of it. Those interested will have an opportunity in a few days to vote an experienced competent man who made this nation what it was, and who know how to restore it to a prosperous condition.

THE DEMOCRATS COULD HAVE FORGIVEN TULLY SCOTT FOR CAMPAIGNING IN OKLAHOMA.

There are some Democrats in Oklahoma who believe that Jo. Wisby will be elected. But they are not the Democrats who are on the inside.

SPARING THE SHOVEL CAT.

"No queerer fish swims," exclaimed the tall Missourian who was talking fish and fishing in the office of one of the downtown hotels the other evening, "and no fish that will give a more furious fun for an hour or so than our homely old shovel cat of the west."

WIT AND WISDOM.

Politeness goes a long way and always gets back on time.—Galveston News.

One can never get an insight into a man's character by looking over his head.—White.

His Meanness—She—That man is dirt mean. He—That's not very mean. If it's a corner lot.—Detroit Free Press.

Marie—Love is a life of illusions. Mand—And what is marriage? Marie—O, marriage is the death of them.—Vogue.

Avarice in old age is foolish; for what can be more absurd than to increase our provisions for the road the nearer we approach our journey's end.—Cicero.

Bliss in possession will not last; remembered joys are never past; at once the fountain, stream and sea, they were, they are, they yet shall be.—Montgomery.

Miss Query—Are you still in love with that pretty girl you used to rave about? Jack Stone—Ah, no; haven't you heard? We were married three months ago.—Scribner.

The world generally gives its admiration not to the man who does what nobody else ever attempts to do, but to the man who does best what multitudes do well.—Macaulay.

He (just returned from the east)—Do you know the Hindoo girls are taught to think of marriage as soon as they can talk? She—Really? The girls over here don't want any teaching.—Pick-Me-Up.

At the Fair.—Spectator—Call that a dwarf? Why, he is over five feet high! Proprietor of the Booth—That is just the most curious feature about him. In fact, he's the biggest dwarf in the world.—Fliegende Blatter.

"If you loads up yoh intellect wif trash literature," said Uncle Eben, "yoh wont be able to hab room for de right kind." Food for de mind is like food for de body. De most substantial kin' an' fillin'est.—Washington Star.

How much does that waste basket of yours hold, anyhow? asked a man who had been handling a lot of contributions to the managing editor. "Nothing worth talking about," said the man with the blue pencil.—Philadelphia Record.

Tin—Hailon. Tagg, what's that sign on your front door? "No admittance except on business." Tagg—There has been so many young men calling on my daughters and their visits have been so fruitless, that I have adopted this plan to reduce the surplus.—Tit-Bits.

He who never relaxes into sportiveness is a wearisome companion, but beware of him who jests at everything. Such men disparage by some ludicrous association all objects which are presented to their thoughts, and thereby render themselves incapable of any emotion which can either elevate or soften them. They bring upon their moral being an influence more withering than the blasts of the deserts.—Zeuthey.

Why It Was There. Mr. Grump—I can't see, my dear, what good that border of fur does round the hem of your skirt. Mrs. Grump—Why, it shows that I can afford it.—Pearson's.

Then He Went. He—Will you think of me when I'm gone? She (yawning)—Yes, Mr. Staylate, if you will give me an opportunity.—Answers.

An Unwelcome Intruder. First Burglar—Sh! There's a cop on the other side of the street! Second Burglar—Lay low, then! There ain't enough in this job to divide.—Puck.

The Rival Hairdressers. One of the two, by way of advertising himself, cuts his hair in the most latest manner according to the latest fashion plate; the other, on the contrary, cuts his in the most clumsy way imaginable. The first customer who entered his shop did not fail to take him to task about it.—How in the WORLD, BEING YOURSELF A TARTER, DO YOU HAVE YOUR HAIR SO LADLY CUT?

"Why, eh, the reason is simple enough. I cannot possibly cut my hair myself, but am obliged to have recourse to my colleague over the way, and he is such a duffer."

"And I suppose you cut his in turn?" "Of course. And you can judge for yourself whether he oughtn't to be satisfied."—H. Carlsson.

He Couldn't Get Away. His grace the duke had sat for several moments silent.

"Of course," the baroness was observing, absentedly, "you are a landed nobleman!" The man in whom centered all her hopes of getting into high society sighed deeply.

"Practically," he rejoined, gloomily: "I owe your old man so much money that I can't get away." Rising with a glad cry, she fell on his neck.—Detroit Tribune.

A Reasonable Explanation. Leader Lynching Party—It's been proved that this horse is St. Silas's, and you was riding on him. Now, wot you got to say before we string yeh up? Horse Thief—The horse disappeared the night of the cyclone, didn't it? "Y-e-s."

"Well, I happened along about that time, and the cyclone blew the horse out of the barn and blew me onto his back, and when I came to my senses I was forty miles away."

"Well, that's reasonable. Beg pardon for suspecting yeh."—N. Y. Weekly.

TRANS.—Will you please give me ten cents, or to get a couple of cents? "Citizen—There's a nickel. Here is better than that whacky for your stomach in the morning!"—Inter-Ocean.

CHANCE.—Did you know that Hinkley dead boy, is going to be me brother-in-law? Miss Johnson—Dear me, no. Is it a brother or sister he is to have with?—Inter-Ocean.

Mr. Colvin, the treasurer of New York state, holds the highest position of purely financial responsibility to which it is possible for a citizen of this country to be elected.

In many respects the office is second only to that of the great United States official whose secretary himself has just publicly recommended Paine's colery compound.

Now, there comes a letter of the same character from Treasurer Colvin. In the history of the most remarkable remedy this century has yet seen the fact that the ablest and most influential persons in the country and the most progressive physicians, were the first to perceive the extraordinary worth of Paine's colery compound is very significant.

The fact that today this remedy is more widely recommended, by grateful people in every walk of life, than all the other remedies in the world together, is not astonishing. It makes people well. There have appeared recently published testimonials of Mr. Colvin's private secretary, of ex-Minister to Australia Francis, of Mayor McShane of Montreal, of Miss Isabel Jennings, of President Cook of the National Teachers' Association, of General Macaulay and scores of other equally respectable women and men.

The "plain people" by thousands in every state in the union have testified to the merits of the compound. Hon. Addison B. Colvin, who likewise is given above, who was elected treasurer of New York state last fall, was born in 1828 in Gates Falls, N. Y., and was educated in the public schools, and where he has since resided. His successful career is known to all well-informed persons.

Writing to the proprietors of Paine's colery compound on July 12 last he said: "I beg to advise you that three or four years ago, when I was suffering severely with a nervous difficulty caused by too close attention to business,

I took several bottles of Paine's colery compound, and the benefit to me was considerable; in fact, since having taken the compound, I have not been called upon to use any other remedy for that difficulty. Very sincerely yours, "A. B. COLVIN, State Treasurer."

Every hard-working person should heed this truth, that the most crucial taskmaster in the world is a man's self when he is ambitious and, moreover, successful. No eight hour or ten-hour laws have ever been devised to protect such hard-worked, over-worked men against themselves.

Very many are led to their office desks, bent over books and papers for hours, in utter defiance of the simple requirements of health. The steady drain on the store of nervous energy at length shows itself in repeated headaches, neuralgia twinges, rheumatic pains, unrefreshing sleep and a loss of spirits and strength.

In all these cases there is urgent need of restoring the nervous vigor that has been heedlessly squandered. Just why the great body of really capable physicians have had the greatest confidence from the first in ordering Paine's colery compound in these cases of reduced nerve vigor and bodily strength is not only because of the immediate good results that follow, but because this great modern remedy is prepared from the formula of the ablest reputed scientists and practitioners in medicine. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college.

There are hundreds of men and women successful in their work for every one who is successful in keeping well. In many instances a fraction of the care and exactness with which they attend to their business if devoted to getting well would make them strong and well.

To quickly fill the stricken arteries and veins with ruddy blood, and to refresh the exhausted nerves is the task that Paine's colery compound at once sets at work to accomplish. It takes but a short time with a careful employment of this great nerve food to call a halt to wasting diseases and to disorders of the most urgent of the body; to dyspepsia, liver, kidney and heart difficulties and to nervous weakness.

It is, perhaps, vague to most persons what "regulating and strengthening the nerves" really means. No parts of the body undergo such rapid changes as the nervous tissues. After exertion the brain and nerves demand the promptest repair possible. The proper material must be speedily and richly brought by the blood to ensure the healthy working of these delicate parts. It is when the vigor of the body is so reduced that the nervous system cannot extract those needed elements from the body, and when the pain, watery blood can furnish but a scanty supply of building material, that the strength fails, sleep becomes broken and unrefreshing, depression seizes the mind and a general feeling of languor is the result.

Some special organs, liver, kidneys, heart, brain or stomach. Paine's colery compound regulates and strengthens the nerves, which govern and give life to every part of the body.

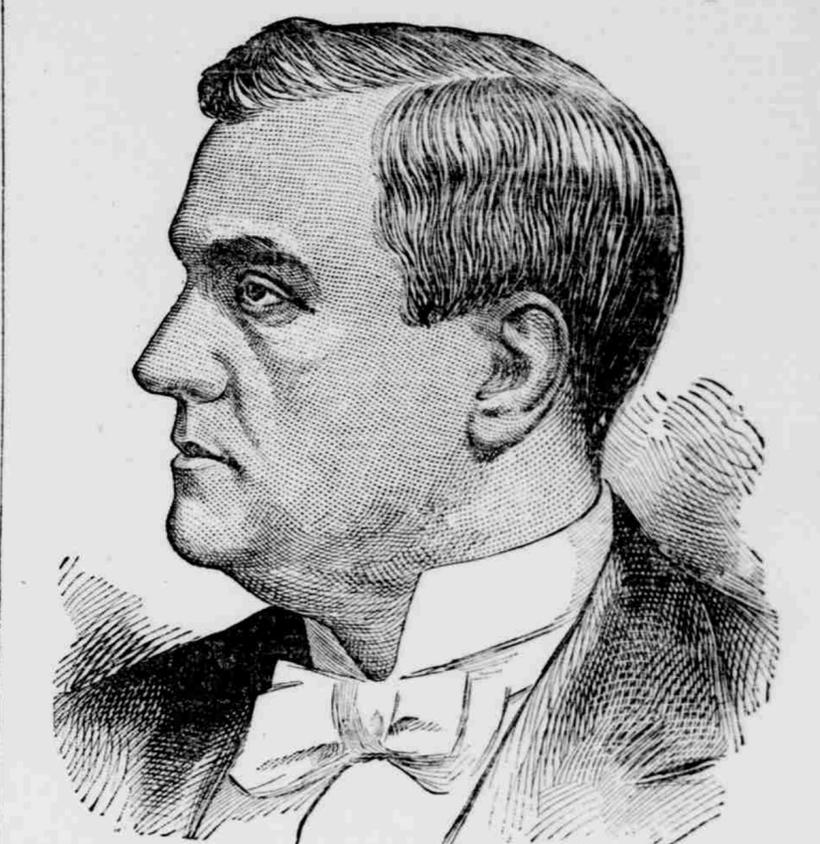

The finest branchings of the nerves everywhere accompany and work in harmony with the marvelous network of blood vessels, so that wherever a sharp prick starts a drop of blood, a pin prick tells that a nerve has also suffered. Paine's colery compound is the blood vessels even to the minutest capillaries with fresh blood, full of life, and builds up the worn-down nerves, by bathing them, to their utmost filaments, in the rich, nourishing stream.

Tired mothers, worn out by the ceaseless care of large families, and if there worried by business and responsibility, find just the refreshment to the nerves that they need so much. Overworked brainworkers, teachers, scholars, young girls in stores and offices regain the steady appearance of health in a short time by using this powerful nourishing agent, Paine's colery compound.

TREASURER OF NEW YORK STATE.

He Gives More Evidence of the Unequaled Worth of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Colvin Had Suffered From a Nervous Complaint with Which Many are Afflicted--He Tried the Remedy That Makes People Well, and His Experience Was Like That of Thousands of Others.

Mr. Colvin, the treasurer of New York state, holds the highest position of purely financial responsibility to which it is possible for a citizen of this country to be elected.

In many respects the office is second only to that of the great United States official whose secretary himself has just publicly recommended Paine's colery compound.

Now, there comes a letter of the same character from Treasurer Colvin. In the history of the most remarkable remedy this century has yet seen the fact that the ablest and most influential persons in the country and the most progressive physicians, were the first to perceive the extraordinary worth of Paine's colery compound is very significant.

The fact that today this remedy is more widely recommended, by grateful people in every walk of life, than all the other remedies in the world together, is not astonishing. It makes people well. There have appeared recently published testimonials of Mr. Colvin's private secretary, of ex-Minister to Australia Francis, of Mayor McShane of Montreal, of Miss Isabel Jennings, of President Cook of the National Teachers' Association, of General Macaulay and scores of other equally respectable women and men.

The "plain people" by thousands in every state in the union have testified to the merits of the compound. Hon. Addison B. Colvin, who likewise is given above, who was elected treasurer of New York state last fall, was born in 1828 in Gates Falls, N. Y., and was educated in the public schools, and where he has since resided. His successful career is known to all well-informed persons.

Writing to the proprietors of Paine's colery compound on July 12 last he said: "I beg to advise you that three or four years ago, when I was suffering severely with a nervous difficulty caused by too close attention to business,

I took several bottles of Paine's colery compound, and the benefit to me was considerable; in fact, since having taken the compound, I have not been called upon to use any other remedy for that difficulty. Very sincerely yours, "A. B. COLVIN, State Treasurer."

Every hard-working person should heed this truth, that the most crucial taskmaster in the world is a man's self when he is ambitious and, moreover, successful. No eight hour or ten-hour laws have ever been devised to protect such hard-worked, over-worked men against themselves.

Very many are led to their office desks, bent over books and papers for hours, in utter defiance of the simple requirements of health. The steady drain on the store of nervous energy at length shows itself in repeated headaches, neuralgia twinges, rheumatic pains, unrefreshing sleep and a loss of spirits and strength.

In all these cases there is urgent need of restoring the nervous vigor that has been heedlessly squandered. Just why the great body of really capable physicians have had the greatest confidence from the first in ordering Paine's colery compound in these cases of reduced nerve vigor and bodily strength is not only because of the immediate good results that follow, but because this great modern remedy is prepared from the formula of the ablest reputed scientists and practitioners in medicine. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college.

There are hundreds of men and women successful in their work for every one who is successful in keeping well. In many instances a fraction of the care and exactness with which they attend to their business if devoted to getting well would make them strong and well.

To quickly fill the stricken arteries and veins with ruddy blood, and to refresh the exhausted nerves is the task that Paine's colery compound at once sets at work to accomplish. It takes but a short time with a careful employment of this great nerve food to call a halt to wasting diseases and to disorders of the most urgent of the body; to dyspepsia, liver, kidney and heart difficulties and to nervous weakness.

It is, perhaps, vague to most persons what "regulating and strengthening the nerves" really means. No parts of the body undergo such rapid changes as the nervous tissues. After exertion the brain and nerves demand the promptest repair possible. The proper material must be speedily and richly brought by the blood to ensure the healthy working of these delicate parts. It is when the vigor of the body is so reduced that the nervous system cannot extract those needed elements from the body, and when the pain, watery blood can furnish but a scanty supply of building material, that the strength fails, sleep becomes broken and unrefreshing, depression seizes the mind and a general feeling of languor is the result.

Some special organs, liver, kidneys, heart, brain or stomach. Paine's colery compound regulates and strengthens the nerves, which govern and give life to every part of the body.

The finest branchings of the nerves everywhere accompany and work in harmony with the marvelous network of blood vessels, so that wherever a sharp prick starts a drop of blood, a pin prick tells that a nerve has also suffered. Paine's colery compound is the blood vessels even to the minutest capillaries with fresh blood, full of life, and builds up the worn-down nerves, by bathing them, to their utmost filaments, in the rich, nourishing stream.

Tired mothers, worn out by the ceaseless care of large families, and if there worried by business and responsibility, find just the refreshment to the nerves that they need so much. Overworked brainworkers, teachers, scholars, young girls in stores and offices regain the steady appearance of health in a short time by using this powerful nourishing agent, Paine's colery compound.

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE. 128 NORTH MAIN STREET.

PREMIUM OVERCOAT SALE. A Ten Dollar Overcoat and a nice pair Dress Kid Gloves worth $1.50, both for $8.25. These overcoats are in Kerseys, Meltons and Chinchillas. Secure one of these bargains before they are all gone. Remember and go to the Old Reliable.

STAR CLOTHING HOUSE. 128 North Main Street. ROBT. JACKS, Prop. SEE OUR NORTH WINDOW.