

AGAIN IN POLITICS

Ingalls Declares Himself for Curtis and Baker.

FOR ROOSEVELT IN 1904

Predicts a Panic That Will be the Death of Trusts.

Topeka, Kan., July 8.—The Mail and Breeze publishes the following interview with ex-Senator John J. Ingalls: Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, after an absence from Kansas of more than a year, is again at his home in Atchison, and he is at home to stay, he declares. He has been engaged in literary work in Washington since December, 1897. He has no intention of retiring from the field of literature, but he believes his work can be handled as advantageously at Atchison as at Washington, and he has reached that period of life when the comforts of the old home in Atchison offer greater attractions to him than the pomp and splendor of life in the national capital. Mr. Ingalls had three separate encounters with the grip in Washington this winter and spring. In the third and last round Mr. Ingalls was almost knocked out, but since returning to Atchison, Kansas, something in the Kansas ozone has come to his rescue and he is rapidly regaining his old-time vigor. He still has a bad throat trouble, and since returning to Atchison has remained closely at home. He has declined to be interviewed and has received but few callers. He hopes to recover the use of his throat in time to participate in the local campaign in Kansas this fall, and to fill a number of lecture engagements which he has been obliged to cancel on account of his recent illness.

At present, Mr. Ingalls' time, so far as his health permits, is fully occupied with newspaper and magazine writing. He is under contract with the millionaire publisher, William R. Hearst, to write a column each week for the New York Journal, for which service he receives greater compensation than any other newspaper writer in America. Mr. Ingalls' letter is sent by telegraph every Saturday night over a direct wire from Atchison to New York and appears in the Journal Sunday morning. He is given greater honor than other contributors to the Journal. He can write on any subject he chooses, and may express whatever opinion he pleases, no matter what the editorial policy of the Journal may be. Through the New York Journal Mr. Ingalls is addressing the largest constituency possessed by any newspaper in America. He is also writing a series of articles for the Saturday Evening Post, a Philadelphia publication recently established by the proprietor of the Ladies Home Journal, which has already achieved phenomenal success. The aviator is entertaining a proposition to take editorial charge of a Denver newspaper during the present summer season, in the event that he decides to spend the summer months in the Colorado mountains, but he is not inclined to look with favor upon this latest offer. That Mr. Ingalls' income from literary work is greater than the salary he received as United States senator no one doubts.

It is Mr. Ingalls' political plans in which the Kansas public is most interested just now. On the day of his return from the east the Atchison Globe inaugurated a boom for Ingalls as a First district congressional candidate. The Globe continues to shout for Ingalls, and the Republican leaders of Atchison, like Jim Chisham and Frank Crowell, admit that if Mr. Ingalls should be a candidate he would have the support of Atchison county probably without question, but the senator himself maintains absolute reticence on the subject. That the boom was started without his knowledge or consent there is no doubt. Very few at Atchison believe that Mr. Ingalls contemplates a race for congress. Many do believe, however, that he still cherishes an ambition to return to the United States senate, and that he will seize with great cordiality the first opportunity that presents itself. "Do you expect to be a candidate for congress in the First district?" asked the Mail and Breeze interviewer of Senator Ingalls at his home in Atchison Monday evening. "The use of my name in that connection has been without consulting me. It

It is a proposition upon which I am wholly unopposed," replied the senator. "But will you be a candidate?" "I am for Charley Curtis. I think he is a most valuable man, whose retirement from congress would be a serious loss to this state. I hope to see him re-nominated, and I hope my friends will support him. I have heard of an alleged 'agreement' at the Horton convention, but so far as I am able to learn that matter received little or no attention in this part of the district." "Then you may be a candidate for United States senator?" "I am for Mr. Baker. I understand the race is between Mr. Burton and Mr. Baker. I have nothing against Mr. Burton, but if Baker and Burton are the only gentlemen in the contest I am in favor of giving the present senator a second term."

"Then you expect to take a hand in Kansas politics?" "I certainly do," replied the senator. "When the campaign comes on I shall do my share of the work to secure Republican ascendancy in Kansas, as I have always done in the past. I am for a reorganization of the Republican party in Kansas, for a 'new deal,' as the boys say. I think we are badly in need of some new blood in Republican politics in this state."

Continuing his talk on Kansas politics, Senator Ingalls said: "The People's party that party. The Greenbackers, union laborites, anti-mopolists and kickers generally will form another opposition party. Of course in this state we have an incorrigible and implacable element that will always be hostile to the Republican party as it would be hostile to the Democratic party if it were in power. But the Populists as a party will disintegrate, and as a matter of fact, they never had any occasion to exist. I regard Kansas as a safe Republican state in the future, and if the real sentiments of the people had been expressed it always would have been a Republican state."

"McKinley's renomination is just as certain as though the decree was already registered by the national convention," said Mr. Ingalls, "and at the present time I regard the renomination of Bryan as a matter of fact, just as certain. The Democracy will blunder, as usual, and oppose the war in the Philippines as Imperialism and military domination. That will be the chief issue of the next campaign, with 16 to 1 on the side. But the trust question is really the most important and significant of all the political problems of the times in which we live. Both parties will undoubtedly incorporate in their platforms plank against the restraint of trade and the destroying of the opportunities for American citizens in the race for life. Unless the trust epidemic is arrested, at the rate things are now going we will have a financial crash within five years that will make the panic of 1893 seem insignificant. When that occurs the readjustment will take place. There is a tremendous undercurrent of indignation and alarm about the industrial situation. In the last thirty days prices of a large number of necessities and staples of life have been raised for the trusts for the purpose of increasing their inordinate profits. I think a very large proportion of the strikes of the present time are really instigated by the trusts to give them an excuse for stopping production and raising prices in order to hand."

"What is your judgment, is the solution of the trust problem?" "The practical solution of the whole matter rests with the state legislatures. The solution is taxation; just the same as the government undertook to prevent the sale of opium by taxing the product; just the same as the government must do with the state banks by imposing the 10 per cent tax. The already existing is practically sufficient. It declares all combinations in restraint of trade illegal and void. If that is supplemented by taxation the matter will be disposed of promptly. No problem is simpler than dealing with the trusts. The weapon is all forged if the party is ready to wield it."

Discussing the Philippine question, Mr. Ingalls said: "Before we get through with this war it will, in my judgment, take 10,000 men to vanquish the insurgents and properly garrison the commercial ports of these islands. I do not look for an early termination of the war, but whether long or short, I am for it. No matter what the original impulse may have been, the feeling among all patriotic Americans is to carry the war to a successful conclusion, no matter what the expenditure of life or money. Any man or any party advocating retreat, surrender or submission will be destroyed as certainly as were the Tories in the American revolution."

Mr. Ingalls is a great admirer of Governor Roosevelt and believes he is in line for the presidency when McKinley has served his second term. "Roosevelt is a man of powerful individuality," said the senator, "and he is the strongest man in America today except McKinley. His recent trip from New York to Las Vegas was triumphant and spectacular. It is Roosevelt's purpose was to sound public opinion, the result must have been gratifying. Notwithstanding his metropolitan ancestry, his wealth, his culture, there is a breezy strain of the frontiersman about him and an absence of starch and scallops and frills that endears him to the average constituency. The only man who came out of the Cuban campaign with any halo in popular estimation was Roosevelt. His was a superb exhibition of courage, endurance, fertility, pluck and patriotism. It made him governor of New York and quite likely will make him president of the United States."

"There has been an immense change in public opinion towards Kansas," said Mr. Ingalls. "The credit of the state, once impaired, has been completely restored. Kansas securities, once classed as inferior, are now in demand. There was a period of pro-vice administration when we suffered. But the people at large recognize the patriotism and intelligence of the people of Kansas and it now stands second to no state in the Union. I look for

NOT OVER FIFTY DROWNED

But 4,500 Texas Flood Sufferers Must be Fed by Charity. Austin, Texas, July 8.—Governor Sayers stated tonight to an Associated Press correspondent that, judging from all the reports he had received officially from the flooded district, there had been great loss of property, both personal and corporate, that hundreds of people had been bereft of their homes and belongings, and that at present there were in the neighborhood of 4,500 people, the majority of them being negroes, who were dependent entirely upon public charity for sustenance. The sufferings of water-bound refugees have been very great. The governor figures that the loss of life has been comparatively small, not exceeding fifty persons. The heaviest farming losses will fall upon the owners of the big plantations in the bottom, who have lost all their crops and much of their personal property and are not being protected in the distribution of charity, which is being expended only among the poor. Up to tonight Governor Sayers had received $30,000 in money contributions from this state and from the east. In addition thereto he has sent out several car loads of groceries which have been donated by different cities of the state. The situation is being well handled now, everything having got down to systematic precision, and the governor stated tonight that by tomorrow every hungry mouth in Texas would be looked after. The waters are fast subsiding and Governor Sayers is confident that he will be able to care for the poor of the state for at least a week, after which time they can secure employment in the flood-wrecked valley. St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Dallas, Texas, says: "Governor Sayers in a talk over the long-distance telephone from Austin, requests the press to state that in addition to money, all character of clothing and provisions are needed in the flood district. He suggests that parties contributing such articles communicate with him being shipments are made, in order that intelligent distribution may be had. There are from 75,000 to 100,000 persons needing relief. About $100,000 in money and supplies have been contributed, but many items that most are needed. Reports received in Dallas at noon from Denison, Paris, Teakana and other places on the Red river state that rain has been pouring in torrents for the last five hours with no prospect of stopping. It is feared that a flood in Red river may return. A telegram received today from Jullif, in Fort Bend county, says that 600 persons are in danger of drowning at that place. St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—A special to the Republic from Denison, Texas, says: The Houston and Texas Central officials state that the road between Calves and Denison will have to be virtually rebuilt, owing to the flood, and that its cost will not be less than $50,000. New York, July 8.—The National Enameling and Stamping Company, through its president, ex-Congressman F. G. Neidinger, today mailed to Governor Sayers of Texas, a check for $1,000 for the relief of the flood sufferers. St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—A special to the Republic from Caldwell, Texas, says: Estimates made by competent cotton buyers as to the loss resulting from damage to the cotton crop in Brazos district, badly hit by the recent deluge, indicate that the loss will not be less than $50,000. Well informed persons are of the opinion that this unprecedented rise in the Brazos has cost the people of Texas little less than $10,000,000. Thousands of mules have been drowned, and domestic animals have perished, ruined houses and negro quarters have been swept away, the aims are nearly all ruined and hundreds of plantation stores, carrying big stocks of general merchandise, are under water. Not a bridge has escaped and not a train has passed over the Santa Fe railroad between Brenham and Milano for a week. Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Williams

AMERICAN PLAN MADE OVER

This is All There is to Sir Julian's Arbitration Scheme. Washington, July 5.—The state department is relying upon the press reports up to this moment for the details of The Hague conference. Consequently it is not yet in possession of any official statement of the mediation and arbitration plan which is the prominent measure now before the conference. Accepting the press reports as accurate, it may be stated that the project is eminently satisfactory to our government, for it is pointed out, the arbitration scheme is nothing more than an elaboration of the simple American proposition with which our delegates were charged before they left the United States. It is true that the pending proposition is credited to Sir Julian Pauncefote, but that was because he had skillfully and with great ability elaborated the details of the American principle to meet the nice objections expected to be interposed by the European delegates. cial of the United States and Canada now in the disputed territory in Alaska, to prevent a collision. As a matter of fact, the United States and Great Britain have been actually working under a tacitly understood truce. The existence of an understanding on this point is manifested in the ready acquiescence by the United States government in the suggestion by the British foreign office that it might tend to prevent trouble if the war department abandoned its plan of sending a garrison of troops to Pyramid Harbor. On its part, the British government manifested its disposition to maintain the status quo by quietly but firmly restraining the Canadian customs officers and mounted police, who were greatly harassing American miners passing over the trail. If this spirit continues on both sides there is little reason to fear that the failure of the London negotiations will result in anything more serious than another disagreeable postponement of the final settlement. The British embassy is similarly without advice from the foreign offices as to the direction of the recent negotiations in London and the officials here positively decline to discuss any phase of the Alaskan question.

Are Entirely Free from Pelvic Catarrh.

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill.

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill., says: "Your medicine did me so much good. I believe I should have been dead by this time had I not used it. I am feeling so well now. I have not taken any medicine for four or five months. If I am ever troubled with anything of the kind again I shall take nothing but Peruna, and I can cheerfully recommend it to my friends."

any mucous surface of the body in all stages. From the slightest catarrhal attack or cold to the most chronic or pronounced case of hypertrophic form Per-na is a specific.

Men and women are subject to catarrh. Women are even more subject to catarrh than men. This is due to many causes. The chief cause is the delicacy of her organism, as compared to man. The extreme sensitiveness of the mucous lining of every organ of the woman's body is well known to physicians. This explains why, in part at least, so few women are entirely free from catarrh.

Miss Sadie Martinot, the prominent young actress, writes to Dr. Hartman in regard to Per-na, as follows: "It gives me great pleasure to recommend Per-na to members of my profession. I have found it most helpful. I consider Per-na of especial benefit to women and particularly recommend it to them. My dressing table is never without it."

Everywhere the people, especially the women, are praising Per-na as a remedy for all forms of catarrhal difficulties. Send for free catarrh book. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Per-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Per-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh" Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.
