

BLOCKS DEPOT DEAL

Dixie Lee Gets Temporary Injunction Against City.

VACATION OF STREET

And New Depot Would Injure Her Property.

Inez Oppenheimer, popularly known as Dixie Lee, who owns considerable property on the row on Wichita street, has commenced injunction proceedings against the city to prevent the giving of Missouri Pacific track privileges on Wichita street, as authorized in a recent action of the city council pertaining to the new depot deal.

Dixie Lee came down from Kansas City to look after her property interests and returned last night after securing a temporary injunction. It is understood that the matter of a permanent injunction will be heard by Judge Dale about February 25, when it is expected that a very quiet conflict will take place over the case.

One of Dixie Lee's tenants said the injunction petition pertained also to the building of the new depot. The petitioner claims that the building of the new depot and the vacating of Wichita street for railroad purposes would greatly decrease the value of her property and make it impossible to longer rent it to good advantage for the purposes for which the houses are now used.

A great deal of interest will doubtless center in the outcome of this suit, as it means practically a depot or no depot at Douglas avenue. If Dixie Lee wins her suit the site selected for the handsome new depot will revert back to Mayor Rose's original plans for a market house on that corner, a plan which no adjoining property holder will be apt to molest.

BUD JETERS AGAIN ARRESTED

Was Troubled With Fuller Rhodes at Salvation Army.

Bud Jeters was arrested Sunday night for creating a disturbance at the meeting of the Salvation Army on North Main street. The trial in the police court yesterday afternoon drew a motley crowd, and every seat in the court room was occupied. Bud Jeters is the young man who was arrested a few weeks ago for assaulting Emma Lewis and causing the engine to stop.

The witnesses for the army claim that Jeters came into the hall and while Emma Lewis was talking to Homer Brown about his suit Jeters got behind Brown and punched him in the back with his thumb, saying "Go ahead, beat it, you think you can stick." At this juncture Sergeant Rhodes appeared and told Jeters he must keep still or go out. They alleged that Jeters then turned and cursed Rhodes and invited him out. Jeters testified that Sergeant Rhodes then pulled a pen knife and threatened to cut him. Rhodes denied this, and the testimony of several witnesses bore him out in the denial.

Jeters was arrested for drawing a knife on him. Each of the accused conducted his own trial. Jeters was fined $5 and costs, and Rhodes was discharged. The witnesses for the army claim that Jeters came into the hall and while Emma Lewis was talking to Homer Brown about his suit Jeters got behind Brown and punched him in the back with his thumb, saying "Go ahead, beat it, you think you can stick."

Judge Mitchell in rendering his opinion stated that the Salvation Army people had a right to maintain order in their own services, and that Jeters had been once before fined for disturbing them. He said the evidence tended to show that Jeters went there to create a disturbance and had also disturbed Sergeant Rhodes' peace on the road home. He therefore thought it best to fine Jeters $5 and let his friends rush up to the dock after the trial and said they would take an appeal.

STREET FAIR DAMAGE SUIT

Sewell & Drake Sue the City for $300 for Closing Main Street.

The first damage suit to be filed on account of the street fair is that of Sewell & Drake, who conduct a wholesale and retail fish and food business on South Main street. They have sued the city for $300 damages which they allege was due to the fencing in of South Main street, and the stay back of their store, for the purpose of holding a street fair last October. The suit was filed in the city court by Amidon & Conly. The petitioners say that by preventing teams from getting in or out of the alley at the rear of the street in front of their business many of their customers were forced to quit patronizing them during the fair and they never came back. The estimated loss to their business is alleged to be $300 during the time the street and alley were blockaded, which was from October 25 to November 4. Sewell & Drake say the street fair committee had the permission of the city, and reduced them many extra courtesies during the fair in consideration of fencing in the street in front of

FIRE TEAM RUNAWAY

Chemical Engine Team Made a Dash Without a Driver

Excitement reigned supreme at Rose House No. 1 for a while Sunday morning. The fire department suddenly found itself minus a team and a chemical engine. When the alarm was turned in for the fire at Jones' barn the chemical made the run, but as it was of no use came back to the house. The engine and team were backed in and the doors left open. The driver was standing beside the team when they started out of the door, but he was unable to stop them. The runaways started north on Market and went straight up the street. Some of the boys followed them to Thirteenth street, but lost track of them there. They went back and waited for daylight, when they had no trouble in tracking them. The boys followed the truck up Market to Twenty-first, where it led east until past the stock yards and then turned north. The horses had guns only a little way north of Twenty-first street when they became tired of pulling the chemical engine, which weighs 400 pounds, and had stopped. When the boys came up to them they were standing still waiting to be taken back to the engine house.

REPAIRS AT THE CAREY

Mr. Eaton Is Putting on Some Fine Finishing Touches.

R. L. Eaton is making all kinds of repairs at the Carey hotel since he has bought the building. The former owners did not realize that any repairs as they wished to sell the property. However, as soon as Mr. Eaton got possession he commenced making repairs in all parts of the house. The kitchen was remodelled and a new cement floor laid. But most of the repairs are being made in the rooms upstairs. Every bit of the woodwork is being painted a fresh coat of varnish, and all the rooms are being repapered. In addition to this, a great deal of new furniture is being placed in the rooms and the old carpets are being taken up and new ones put down. Mr. Eaton has got himself well started in the renovating business and says he will not stop until everything is as good as new.

BIG SPAN OF MULES

Pair of Them at Fair Grounds Create Great Attention.

The biggest span of mules ever seen in Wichita are now at the fair grounds. They were brought here by Frank Weinshank, one of Kingman county's big stockmen. The two mules weigh, together, about 4,500 pounds and are seven feet high, or 7 feet 3 inches to the top of their withers. One of them is a year old and the other is only 1. Frank Timmons, the harness-maker on North Main street, is making a set of harness for the mules. It is one of the largest and finest sets ever made in the city. One of the colliers is a 24-inch and the other is 22. The harness is extra and very fancy, being trimmed with polished brass. It will cost $100.

ARGUMENTS BEGIN TODAY

Duran Damage Suit Will Go to Jury About Noon

Judge Dale gave a recess in the Duran-Rock Island damage suit yesterday to allow the attorneys to prepare their arguments and to get his instructions ready. The evidence was all in early in the day and the attorneys wanted a little time to arrange their arguments, as they had been very busy questioning the witnesses since the trial began. Many will doubtless be present to hear the speeches today, as there will be something worth listening to.

WANT THE MIDLAND

Perry, Oklahoma After Wichita's New Road.

OFFERWEALTH OF BUSINESS

Promotion Company Lately Organized at Perry.

Perry, Oklahoma, wants the Kansas Midland when the extension is built south from Wichita. The business men of that town agree to do more to get the Midland than any other town on the route and they make the statement that Perry does more business in the way of freight traffic than any other town in Oklahoma of not more than twice Perry's size. The Santa Fe got $500,000 from that station last year. Yesterday Sam E. Wadsworth and Charles E. Van Cleef, representing the Kansas, Perry and Fort Arthur promotion, came to Wichita to see what it would take to get the Midland. This company was organized only a few days ago to get after railroads, and the eleven men who compose the directory are able to get what they go after.

The primary object of the company is to get the Frisco extended from Blackwell to Perry, a distance of a little more than thirty miles. Ah along the line farmers have offered the Perry company the right of way. They have not only done that, but they have agreed to take their teams, go out and help build the grade. After they get the Frisco Perry wants the Midland, and they've got good argument.

"In Noble county and in the country for a radius of forty miles about Perry we raise everything," said Mr. Wadsworth yesterday. "We raise great fields of wheat, thousands of tons of cotton, tons of broom corn, cattle, hogs, etc. Did you know that for weeks at a time we sent cars of hogs out of Perry over the Santa Fe every day. Cattle come from the Osage nation for a hundred miles and we actually raise enough broom corn to control the market. Why, when the broom corn trust was forming last summer the combine couldn't control the product without reckoning with Geo. Massey of Perry. Massey is broom corn king. The trust sent a man to Perry to see him. I tell you this to show you how much broom corn we raise in the country about Perry. And it don't belong to any trust, either. There's not another single county on earth that can raise enough of any kind of stuff to bust any kind of a trust. If the Midland will come to Perry it will get enough business from that section to pay the expenses of keeping up the road through all Oklahoma. We'll guarantee that. That is on a direct line south of Wichita and from there the road can run over to Stillwater, another good town, and from Stillwater southeast to Okmulgee, and then it's a bee-line south to Denison and Wichita's got a road through the garden spot of Oklahoma, through the best coal region in the Indian Territory and an extra mile or so to a great state, one of the greatest in the Union in a few years and Wichita's new road has a chance to get the gold of its best portion."

WAS A LUCKY RUNAWAY

Team Belonging to C. E. Rogers Runs Two Miles Without Damage.

C. E. Rogers' little black team, attached to one of the transfer wagons, made a lively get away yesterday and ran two miles before stopping. The team started at the transfer barn on West Second street, ran east on Second to Indiana, south on Indiana to Douglas, east on Douglas to Hydraulic, south on Hydraulic to Kellogg, where they ran between two houses and had to stop. No one was in the wagon, but Mr. Rogers followed closely on horse back and caught them without trouble near Kellogg street. The only damage occurring was the breaking of one line.

TWO SMALL FIRES

Occurred Yesterday Afternoon on Wash and Wash again.

Three fires broke out yesterday afternoon. The first one was at 221 Wabash, where a small barn was burned. It was not known as how much the loss was valued or whether there was any insurance as nobody was at home when the fire occurred, and none of the neighbors assumed to know who the people were. The other fire was at 425 Washington. The house was occupied by J. Smith. The roof caught fire from a spark from the chimney, but was put out by a department before any serious damage was done.
