W. R. C. SALES. Ladies Made Good Profit on Easter Business. There were sales and sales at Easter tide, and of course, W. R. C. No. 49 had one. Two, in fact, for their sale of useful and fancy articles was held in Tapp's store, while the food sale was in Eary's shoe store. The display in Tapp's window was a fine one; among the many useful articles a very pretty quilt of blue and white challenged attention at once. It had been pieced by Mrs. Mary Smith of Canton, Ill., and presented to the corps. The "Patriotic Workers" lined and quilted it beautifully. Mrs. Smith spent a good part of last summer in this city and was a frequent visitor at the corps. The presentation of the quilt proved that she had enjoyed those visits as did also the ladies of the corps. They fully appreciate Mrs. Smith's good will towards them.

Among the fancy articles, too numerous to mention, were some pin cushions in the form of tiny pumpkins. In color and shape they were perfect imitations of nature, but the items were no limitation. They were the real product of the pumpkin field.

A neat little sum was netted by these sales and the members of W. R. C. No. 49 hereby gratefully acknowledge the earnestness and kindness of Messrs. Tapp and Eary, who so cordially gave space for the Easter sales.

W. R. C. No. 49 is growing, not only in point of members, but in interest and the patriotic work is very promising.

A FABLE UP TO DATE. A man who had not visited the home of his youth for 25 years concluded that he would like to go back and take a look over the old stumps around. He figured that he would like to see the time of his life visiting the place where he had pastured when he was a gosling, for he did not realize that Old Time had been busy right along since he had been gone. When he left his happy childhood home he had more hair on his head than some farmers have hay, and the color of it was like that of a crow's wing. At that time also he could put one hand on the top of an eight rail fence and clear the top rail by six inches. His face at that time was smooth and soft like the buckskin that is used to clean jewelry, and there was no hump to his shoulders. As a matter of fact he was considered a looker from away back and half the girls in the neighborhood seemed to be stuck on him, at least that was his private opinion, and there was no way to prove the contrary. He also recollected the girls he used to know; there was a jay black, who had cheeks like an Elberta peach and lips like May cherries. She had a willowy form and brown hair that was just a trifle wavy and her eyes sparkled like dewdrops. Daisy was a sure enough peach and she used to be his solid one in the days that were gone. And there was Pearl McLane, who was petite and jolly and had a dimple in each cheek. It was the recollection of the man who was going back to mingle with the scenes of his youth that brought with the scenes also recalled Mabel, who was a bright brunette, and Carrie, who was a lovely blonde, and Lou, who had soft brown eyes and teeth like mother of pearl. Then there were a lot of young fellows he used to know—Jim and Jack and Harry and Al and Bill and Art. He recollected just how they looked and figured that he would know them as soon as he clapped his eyes on them.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS. Being the mother of ten children and having taken Wine of Cardui for a good many years while my children were being born, I feel that I can speak with authority as to its merits. When I first married my health was not all that I could wish and I began taking Wine of Cardui before my first baby was born. It acted so well that a few months before each child was born I took Wine of Cardui and for a couple of months after the birth and it always relieved the pains and restored me to good health. I am enjoying splendid health today and I feel that it is all due to Wine of Cardui. Susana Merkle. Many women's lives are unhappy on account of the dread of the dangers of childbirth, especially if they have been afflicted with menstrual irregularities or bearing down pains. Wine of Cardui relieves these troubles permanently and gives a woman health, and a perfectly healthy woman has nothing to fear from bearing children. Wine of Cardui prepares a mother for an easy and natural delivery and a quick recovery. Theodor's Black-Draught, the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui, relieves the patient of stomach troubles and constipation which are so common during pregnancy. No expectant mother should neglect to take Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught. All Druggists Sell These Medicines.
