NEWS FROM ALL THE RAILROADS

Rock Island and Frisco May Consolidate Business

REPORT TO THAT EFFECT

Items of Interest About Different Employes.

There is a well defined rumor current in railroad circles to the effect that the Rock Island is soon to abolish its passenger station here and use that of the Frisco. The change is said to be the result of the visit by Rock Island officials paid Wichita about one month ago. The most of the time spent here by the officials was in an inspection of both the Rock Island and Frisco stations.

When seen yesterday a prominent Frisco official said, in regard to the rumor: "I think it is highly probable that such a change is contemplated. Of course I know no more about the matter than you do, except what I have heard. I have my opinion of the fact that the Frisco station, while adequate to the needs of that company, would be entirely too small for the use of both."

Rumor has it that the change will be effective by July 1. Another thing that sustains the report of such a consolidation is the fact that Rock Island and Frisco have had connecting tracks built at both the north and south entrances to the city.

STRIKE IS THREATENED.
Missouri Pacific Operators Want More Money.

It was reported yesterday that there is a threatened strike among telegraph operators in the employ of the Missouri Pacific system all over the country who are members of the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

A report yesterday said that the strike was set for 9 o'clock of this morning. It did not materialize, however, although it is still expected that the strike may occur at any time.

The cause of the strike is said to be a demand for more wages. The operators ask $5 as a minimum salary and extra pay for overtime on Sunday. At present the minimum scale of wages is $3 per month and no extra pay for Sunday.

BACK FROM ST. LOUIS.
E. E. Bleckley Talks About the World's Fair.

E. E. Bleckley, traveling passenger agent for the Missouri Pacific of this city, returned yesterday from a ten days' visit in St. Louis, where he attended a meeting of thirty or forty agents from that road. The meeting was held for the purpose of discussing some very important questions concerning the passenger business. The Missouri Pacific agents are also attending the dedications of the various state buildings. Col. Bleckley said that this is the first time he has attended the dedication of the Texas building.

He said that he had the best and most enjoyable time he ever had in his life. The Chicago fair was a very small thing in comparison with the St. Louis show, according to his opinion, and he should be able to say, as he saw both of them.

He told of the many beautiful buildings with their inimitable architectural finish. These must be wonders of art and genius for Col. Bleckley did not find words to paint their beauty, and everybody knows what a vocabulary a traveling passenger agent has. But he did not get to see half of what he wished to see. He was there about a week and, in his estimation, one can only see the beginning of the fair in that time.

"All of the exhibits are not yet in place," explained Col. Bleckley, "but they are ready to be put in and everything will be in its proper position by June 4. There is more now than one can possibly see in four weeks time and as there are a great many exhibits yet to be installed there is no way of concluding just how long it will require to go through the whole thing."

Col. Bleckley took especial care not to forget to describe many of the fine buildings and the parks dedicated to all the grandeur of a poet. For one solid mile there is nothing but Pike. All kinds of shows, but nothing except perfectly clean and moral exhibitions. There are signs there to see that are equal to a trip around the world. To scenes of pleasure and fun there is no end.

When Col. Bleckley was asked when he considered the best time to go, he said that he would advise the public to go while the thing is yet fresh and the weather is not sultry and hot. He said that people are now wearing light overcoats in St. Louis. He also said that in June the fair would be in the height of its glory and everything could be seen at its best. The weather will not be so very hot and the exhibitions will be new. There will not be one single thing unfinished by June 1, and every exhibit will be in position.

To talk with Col. Bleckley about the trip is almost as good as if one had been there. But the thought of the fair and all of the wonderful things to be seen there makes one almost heartsick, for there are very few people who do not want to attend, and there are still fewer who will not take the opportunity and go.

LINK AND PIN.
Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Ayer and family of Dodge City arrived in the city last evening to spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Brown. Mr. Ayer is division superintendent of the Santa Fe at Dodge City. Mr. Brown is commercial agent for that company at this place.

Weston C. Wilson, an employe of the bridge and building department of the Santa Fe, has quit his job.

Oliver Martinson, a Santa Fe section hand, has quit his place.

The Santa Fe and Vencedora baseball clubs will cross bats today at the fair grounds.

The Santa Fe fast mail train, No. 115, due here at 8:25 a. m., was two hours behind time yesterday morning, the latest it has been in at least one year. Four engine failures caused the delay.

EVENTS AT TWO WICHITA COLLEGES

Senior Class Play Largely Attended at Fairmount

FRIENDS ANNUAL CONTEST

Miss Hazel Howes Is Awarded High Honors.

In spite of rain and storm Fairmount chapel was crowded last night to its utmost capacity. The senior class play was the attraction. Heretofore the class day exercises have been original in character and full of local hits. This year the class decided to cut loose from tradition, by presenting a Shakespeare burlesque, called the "Shakespeare Water Cure."

This play has been given in eastern colleges with great success. Its presentations by the Fairmount seniors last evening received a most favorable reception. Each part was well chosen; the costumes were excellent. Much credit for the success of the play is due to the untiring energy and ability of Mrs. Winifred W. Metcalf, who has charge of the department of expression in the college. Professor Just's orchestra supplied delightful music.

The Rev. Rockwell Harmon Potter, D. D., who will preach the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of Fairmount college at Plymouth church this evening, is the young and eloquent pastor of the historic Central Congregational church of Hartford, Conn. The church was founded by the first settlers of Connecticut in the year 1635, was organized at Dorchester, near Boston, Mass. by these founders of the state of Connecticut before they set out on their one hundred and fifty mile tramp through the forests primeval. The descendants of those heroic builders of a commonwealth form a part of the great congregation to which Dr. Potter ministers each Sunday.

The membership is larger than that of any other Congregational church in Connecticut, and includes much of the wealth of that charming New England capital.

In connection with the baccalaureate address a very fine musical program will be rendered by students of the Fairmount college school of music.

These services will begin at 8 o'clock in the following order:

Devotional.
Invocation.
Chant—The Lord's Prayer.
Responsive Reading.
"Gloria Patria."
Trio for soprano, alto and tenor—"Father Lead us by Thy Hand," from Butterfield's dramatic Oratorio, "Belshazzar"—Fairmount College Choral Society.
Scripture.
Soprano Solo, "Sound the Loud Timbrel"—Miss Milton.
Prayer.
Four part song for women's voices, "The Lord is My Shepherd"—Fairmount College Woman's Glee Club.
Announcements.
Offertory Prayer.
Hymn.
Baccalaureate Sermon—Rockwell Harmon Potter, D. D.
Prayer.
Full Chorus, "We Will Give Thee Thanks"—Fairmount College Choral Society.
Benediction.
Silent Prayer.
Amen on Piano.
Tomorrow evening the graduating exercises of the academic department will be held in the college chapel. These exercises will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY.
The scene in the senior play is laid in a water cure establishment, where several of Shakespeare's principal characters are staying for various reasons. Lady Macbeth appears first, looking like a walking arsenal, and bewails the unhappy fate of herself and her husband who are compelled to remain in that wretched establishment on account of the unfortunate prejudice against them in Scotland. They are broke, it seems, and must have money. Shylock, a dealer in old clothes comes up and she strikes him for three thousand ducats for three months. He refuses to lend her a sum, but offers to give her the desired amount if she will kill Bassanio, who is now serving a sentence on Rockwell's island. He explains his sanguinary desire by saying, "For the south I must desire just Fortia to be my wedded wife," and follows up with a semi-soliloquy in a highly tragic style and a deeply bass voice. The lady accepts his offer, and summons her husband who is down on the program as "sulky and henpecked," and turns the job over to him. He demurs, makes quite a play of virtuous reluctance, but finally consents in bearing the price to be recovered for the work, and that Shylock has given a hundred shares of Orient stock as security. Thus ends the first act.

In the second act Juliet is discovered, bewailing her unhappy marriage, for it seems that she and her husband have been discovered by both their houses, and Romeo forced to take to the stage for a living. He comes in and, after a very entertaining little family quarrel, he gives Antony's speech over the body of Caesar, with Sunday variations, ending with a collection for the benefit of the remains. As he leaves, the orchestra strikes up a dirge and in comes Hamlet in a suit of solemn black, carrying a gruesome looking skull in his hand. This difficult part is very well taken by Mr. Finley, the college orator. After soliloquizing and conversing with Mrs. Montague for a few minutes he departs in search of Ophelia.

The next to enter is Portia, who is supposed to carry the dignity of the class on her shoulders, and right well does she do it. She, too, it seems, has been unfortunate in her marriage, and she wonders how she ever came to marry Bassanio in the first place. On Juliet's behalf she is to take to the stage for a living. He comes in and, after a very entertaining little family quarrel, he gives Antony's speech over the body of Caesar, with Sunday variations, ending with a collection for the benefit of the remains. As he leaves, the orchestra strikes up a dirge and in comes Hamlet in a suit of solemn black, carrying a gruesome looking skull in his hand. This difficult part is very well taken by Mr. Finley, the college orator. After soliloquizing and conversing with Mrs. Montague for a few minutes he departs in search of Ophelia.

The third act is the marriage supper. Everything goes off quietly except for Macbeth's jumping around grabbing after an imaginary dagger, and a threatened combat between Shylock and Hamlet caused by Hamlet's interrupting Shylock in the middle of a superlatively grandiloquent address. Then came an attempt by the other three ladies to make Ophelia see the point to the story of George Washington, which must be heard to be appreciated. The play closed with a few figures of a quadrille during which the actors sang the following to the tune of "The Red, White and Blue":

Now if the great William Shakespeare has been better than we have to him. It has only been done for amusement. Our respect for the bard is the same; May the laurels of Shakespeare never wither.
May his writings forever endure,

The "Force" of Herpicide.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS.

Why is Newbro's Herpicide a success? Because it has the "Force" or capacity to produce an effect.

What is the effect? The destruction of the invisible, vine-like, microscopic growth that lodges in the sebaceous glands of the hair follicles, where its growth and development causes dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair, and later, incurable baldness.

Is Herpicide pleasant to use? Clear as crystal Newbro's Herpicide is the daintiest, most delightful and refreshing application ever prepared for the scalp. It contains no oil, grease, sediment or dye matter. Careful people who now consider it a duty to use a scalp prophylactic, to insure cleanliness and freedom from dandruff contagion, prefer Newbro's Herpicide on account of its extreme purity, exquisite fragrance and refreshing quality.

Ladies, in particular, become enthusiastic over it, because it keeps the hair light and fluffy and gives it a silken gloss.

STOPS ITCHING INSTANTLY.

THE FIRST HAIR-SAVER.

Newbro's Herpicide is the first "Hair-Saver." It was not made until the microbic and contagious nature of true dandruff was discovered. Before this discovery, approaching baldness was considered inevitable, and after it came the scalp was treated with tincture of cantharides (made from dried blistering bugs) and other irritants to make the hair "grow." Every dermatologist now recognizes the fallacy of this treatment. Save your hair while you have hair to save. Kill the dandruff germ with Newbro's Herpicide and give nature a chance; marvelous results will follow. Try it.

A POPULAR PREPARATION BECAUSE IT SATISFIES.

"Newbro's Herpicide is our most popular hair preparation."

"I think your Herpicide is one of the best tonics I ever used. It gives satisfaction to every one who has used it."

coming offended at her haughty manner, and departing in a huff, Fortia characterizes it as "a bad case of empty-headedness." Shylock comes in and entertains Portia (and incidentally the audience) with a serenade. Portia haughtily repels his advances, and their conversation is interrupted by the arrival of Hamlet whose exits and entrances are all accompanied by a dirge. He brings a letter from Macbeth, stating that he had dropped in to see Bassanio but found him murdered. This intelligence (to use her own expression, "unnatural") Fortia, but she is comforted on learning that a widow is not responsible for her husband's debts. Shylock, tottering toward her and extending a hand shaking with age, promises that his strong right hand shall aid her in distress. She explains the basket trick to him, and on his choosing the one in which was centred "Fair Portia's counterfeit," she exclaims, "Just my luck, I feared no better with Bassanio!"

After Shylock's departure Ophelia enters. She is, if anything, the "dullest" of the whole "doff" cast. On learning that Portia's husband is dead, she endeavors to console her by singing some greivous songs. After Fortia leaves, Hamlet comes in and in the intervals of conversation, he does some very artistic ghost-seeing. This was a very difficult part and was well given. Ophelia, who is described as "dull and clinging" rather annoys Hamlet, but Ophelia reminds him that she is the only relative he has not murdered. "By my goddess, 'tis true," is his reply. Finally, however, he thunders out that he never loved her, and she paints very beautifully, and Ham soliloquizes tragically. He is ultimately obliged to buy her a spring bonnet to restore peace in the family. Lady Macbeth now comes in and has her turn at seeing a ghost. Romeo and Macbeth come in soon after and have a revised and improved version of the quarrel between Brutus and Cassius, which is amacably settled. Hamlet now tells the news of the engagement of Shylock and Portia, and the company resolve to give a dinner at Shylock's expense. Curtain.
