

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria. Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better." JOHN J. LEPPA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy." A. F. FEELEY, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm." EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments." J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

NO SCARCITY OF WATER FELT ALONG UPPER SLOPES OF HAWAII

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILO, August 26.—Although there is a scarcity of rain along the lower slopes of this island there is no scarcity on the upper slopes this is evident from the fact that during the last week there has been an average fall of three and a half inches a day. This is according to the report that has been turned in by the department of water research.

One of the officers in charge stated yesterday that the drought that is affecting the lower slopes has not been felt at all on the mountain tops and where the headwaters of all the streams are. "We did not know that there had been any drought," he stated "until we heard the report from the town. Where we are working, along the higher slopes, there has been rain every day and during the last week we had an average fall of three and a half inches a day."

From this it is evident that there will be no chance of the droughty conditions that prevail along the coast from time to time affecting the main streams that find their way down here and which are used for power purposes at the present time and which will be used by the new electric railroad that Conness hopes to start here within the next year.

Barron is enthusiastic over the matter and many of the people to whom he has spoken also think favorably of the scheme. One of the main assets in connection with the property and from which Barron hopes to make a pile of money is the fine growing timber.

He estimates that there are millions of feet there and that this could be sold for a good price which would add to his fund necessary to plant the cane and to get all the other necessary operations under way. Barron hopes to be able to raise the necessary money right in the islands when he comes back again and will have the board of directors here if he is successful in his promotion work.

Barron was a successful farmer in Wisconsin for many years and made a success of the business there. He then went to Florida and took up orange growing. He was just getting along well with this when a frost came along and nipped his trees and broke him. He came to the islands and since he has been here has squared all his debts. He is looked on as a thoroughly capable man and as one who should make a big success of any agricultural venture he goes in for.

He has already tried to interest several of the Hilo people in the scheme and leaves for the Coast in a couple of weeks when he will look up a number of his friends there and try to get them interested in the scheme.

He will make the trip to Cuba, where he has friends and will look very carefully over the ground and make his estimates of cost so that when he comes back here again he will be able to answer any questions that may be put to him.

Altogether, the money which comes to Pearl Harbor through the present naval appropriation bill amounts to the vast sum of $1,894,500. This is practically every cent that was asked for in the estimates, and Civil Engineer Gayler, in charge of the construction work, is more than pleased with the result of Congress' deliberations in this particular instance.

A board of naval officers, recently appointed by Admiral Cowles to determine the just changes in the contract price for the drydock, for the 200-foot extension and the richer mixture of the concrete contents, has convened and is now formulating a report. This board consisted of Civil Engineer E. R. Gayler, president, and Civil Engineers Kirby Smith and C. A. Bostrom. In round figures it will cost about $100,000 more to lay the richer concrete under water, the mixture being the result of hundreds of tests covering a period of several months, when it looked as though the right combination to hold down the bottom was not to be found.

However, the final result has stood every test, and while it adds greatly to the cost of the dock, it has become an absolute necessity to its successful completion. The original specifications called for a mixture of one part cement, three sand and six crushed rock. The new mixture is 1-2-3 1/2, and one-third of the sand has to be brought from the Coast.

From now on work on the drydock will be rushed, as the contractors have been going slow until they learned definitely whether the appropriation for the extension would go through. Concrete pouring will be continued steadily, and with the industrial buildings nearly completed, the marine barracks and quarters well under way, and the general storekeeper's and public works offices soon to be moved to the harbor, the station will be actually in use within a short time.

A block in the business section of Akron, Ohio, was destroyed by fire. The estimated loss is between $200,000 and $400,000.

HAWAII MAN PLANNING BIG DEAL IN CUBA

Former Wisconsin Farmer Preparing to Promote Cuban Plantation Locally

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILO, August 26.—A sugar plantation in Cuba consisting of 40,000 acres of land and capitalized with Hawaiian money is the daring scheme proposed by James H. Barron, at the present time bookkeeper for the E. H. Holmes department store here, and before that, farmer in Wisconsin and orange rancher in Florida. The land is an old grant, at the present time belonging to the Cubans and which can be secured for $8 per acre. There are twenty-five thousand acres of it classed as A1 cane land, ten thousand acres under valuable timber and five thousand acres of good pasture land. The railroad runs within eight miles of the property.

Barron's plan is to go to Cuba and secure an option on the property at $8 an acre. He will then return to the islands and get busy with the promotion end of the scheme. He plans to charge the shareholders $10 per acre, thus giving him enough capital to work with during the first year and to see him through until he has the first returns coming in.

Going to Coast. He has already tried to interest several of the Hilo people in the scheme and leaves for the Coast in a couple of weeks when he will look up a number of his friends there and try to get them interested in the scheme.

He will make the trip to Cuba, where he has friends and will look very carefully over the ground and make his estimates of cost so that when he comes back here again he will be able to answer any questions that may be put to him.

TAKING FERTILIZER OUT OF ATMOSPHERE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 12.—Chilean nitrates now imported into this country in vast quantities for fertilizers may be driven out of American markets if the invention of Professor William Eyde of Norway is developed.

His method, which extracts nitrogen from the air, was first announced at a meeting of the international congress of applied chemistry in London three years ago, and will be one of the most important topics to be discussed at the eighth annual convention of the congress to be held here September 4th.

Eyde's process is now being turned to practical account in South Carolina, and is said to produce fertilizer superior to and cheaper than the Chilean nitrates.

POLITICAL NEWS AND NOTES

Threatened with a Democratic victory at the polls in November and an avalanche of patronage which may possibly be at the disposal of Democratic leaders to distribute, chiefs of the local wing of the party, after canvassing the names of those eligible to fill offices which they fondly hope will be vacant the fourth of next March, announce that with the exception of the governorship, there are not enough Democrats in good standing or otherwise now in the islands to fill the various places.

"Of course," said one of the leaders this morning, "there are a number of secret Democrats who may come in the open when the future of the party is assured. Take my own precinct for instance. I have been an officer of the Democratic club there for a number of years and we could never figure out more than 25 persons whom we knew to be Democrats in the precinct, and there were only 25 Hawaiian voters, yet every election the precinct polled from 75 to 85 Democratic votes. Now, if these 'blind' Democrats come out from under cover, we may be able to make up a list. I imagine that after the November elections there will be any number of Democrats in the islands."

"The failure of Link McCandless to touch on immigration in his statement of principles issued yesterday morning, indicates that he has learned the bitter lesson taught him two years ago, most thoroughly," said a prominent Republican this morning. At a meeting of the Sixteenth precinct Republican Club held at Wahiawa, last Friday evening, W. M. Templeton was nominated for delegate to the Territorial convention, and A. W. Eames, Jr., for delegate to the county and district convention.

"No I have not made any arrangements for meetings as yet," said Link McCandless this morning. "The central committee will meet tonight and will probably announce such arrangements. The campaign is in the hands of the members of that body."

"I am going to attend a band concert tonight and have no intention of going to Maui at the present time," said Kuhio this morning.

PEARL HARBOR

of Oahu is not to be jeopardized. This is evidenced in a cable received by Admiral Cowles yesterday afternoon, stating that every item in the naval appropriation bill relating to Pearl Harbor, was contained in the bill as passed the other day.

This means that there is now enough money actually appropriated to complete and enlarge the drydock, erect the buildings, barracks and quarters, and equip the naval station with the necessary shops and machinery.

The limit cost of the drydock has been increased from $2,700,000 to $3,486,500, an increase of $786,500, which will be amply sufficient to extend the dock from 800 to 1000 feet, and to stand the cost of the increase in contract price due to the richer cement to be used. Of this amount $2,300,000 was previously appropriated, and $1,050,000 is carried in the present bill, leaving the comparatively small sum of $186,000 still to be appropriated.

Altogether, the money which comes to Pearl Harbor through the present naval appropriation bill amounts to the vast sum of $1,894,500. This is practically every cent that was asked for in the estimates, and Civil Engineer Gayler, in charge of the construction work, is more than pleased with the result of Congress' deliberations in this particular instance.

C. Brewer & Co. were the intending purchasers, he called the business off, as he said he would have no dealings with the missionaries."

Then, until old age was surely bearing him down to the grave, he refused all offers to sell the ranch. In the meantime, like a bolt from the blue, came a retainer to the late Paul Neumann from a woman calling herself Madame d'Herblay in New York, to sue the gallant colonel for moneys she advanced to him during the Civil War. He resisted the suit to the last ditch—a motion for rehearing in the Supreme Court, being that same—his plea being that his pursuer was an imposer. As to that, the woman was able to present as exhibits a bunch of letters yellow from the troubled sixties, addressed to her in terms of most devoted attachment and written and signed in Col. Norris' undoubted handwriting. Anybody desirous of reviving the Norris-d'Herblay "romance" need only make research in the court files.

Final judgment was entered for Madame d'Herblay against Col. Norris and settlement was made thereof in the shape of two promissory notes making $64,000.

Next thing Col. Norris sells Kahuku Ranch for $1 and affection to a neighbor, Charles Gardner Macomber, while the notes are still unpaid and the subject of a suit for recovery brought by Madame d'Herblay against the estate, Col. Norris having died two years ago.

The proposed American budget, while varying widely from the English budget, because of the difference in the structure of the two governments, will be designed to present to Congress and the people a detailed understandable program of business the ensuing year, committing the President to definitely expressed lines of public policy. The estimates will be explained in detail, classified and compared with previous appropriations and expenditures, and show the relation of probable expenditures with probable revenues for the ensuing year.

The present method of submitting estimates to Congress, identical from year to year without detailed information showing a definite program, is regarded by President Taft, Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh and the Economy Commission as unsystematic, unscientific and antiquated. The first budget will be drawn by the Economy Commission, which recently recommended its adoption.

BUDGET FORM FOR ESTIMATES

WASHINGTON, August 12.—As an object lesson to Congress to demonstrate his belief in the advantages of the budget system for making estimates and appropriations for the Federal Government, President Taft, it was learned today, will send next year's estimates to Congress, in budget form, to accompany the regular book of estimates which the Secretary of the Treasury is required by law to submit. The entire Cabinet has been instructed to prepare estimates under both plans.

WOMAN SAVED BY ETHICS OF LAWYER

ATLANTA, Ga., August 8.—An amazing aftermath of the Grace case came today, when Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, who led the prosecution of Mrs. Daisy Grace, said that while lying abed in his apartment a few doors from the Grace home, he heard the shot that wounded Grace and that it was fired between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Grace and the defense declared that Grace was not shot until after 11 o'clock. On this plea the whole defense was built.

Solicitor Dorsey said he would have gone on the witness stand to give this evidence, which would have destroyed Mrs. Grace's story, but was advised not to do so by eminent judges for ethical reasons.

Eugene Grace was brought here today for an X-ray examination preparatory to an operation for removing the bullet that paralyzed him. Grace believes he will recover the use of his legs if the bullet is removed.

REDWOOD VISITED BY MODERN JESSE JAMES
REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Aug. 12.—In true Jesse James fashion, a lone bandit, armed with two revolvers, rode into Redwood at noon today, held up the Genochio Hotel and then galloped off into the hills. Although posses were quickly organized and every corner of the county scoured, the desperado is still at large.
Shortly before the noon hour John Goularte, the clerk, was in the office alone. He saw a man wearing a sombrero hat ride up and tie his horse outside. A few minutes after he heard someone walk in the room. He turned quickly around and found himself looking into the muzzles of two guns. The robber told him to turn over the money in the till, which amounted to about $4 in change, and to remain in the room and not say a word.
Goularte summoned Antoine Genochio, Jr., the son of the proprietor. He seized a shotgun, but the robber had disappeared. The authorities were quickly notified, and three posses headed by Sheriff J. H. Mansfield, Deputy Sheriff John Shields and Chief of Police James Coleman started out in automobiles on the three different roads leading out of Redwood City, but found no trace of the desperado.

board of supervisors?" was asked Frank W. Kruger this morning. "I have nothing to say for publication at this time," declared Kruger. "Will you act accordingly and stay with your recognized leader on the board?" was again asked.

"I can say nothing," vouched Kruger. "Here is an instance where silence is golden."

Kruger's place of business was the mecca where politicians of both Republican and Democratic faith made pilgrimages this morning. Supervisor Amama, a consistent supporter of the Murray policies on the board was an early visitor. Charles Murray, brother of the supervisor who has now retired under fire, was another caller, presumably for the purpose of conferring with Kruger concerning his attitude to be taken in the coming campaign. His Honor Joe Fern drifted into the "watch works" presided over by Hanawaki, there to hold a private interview lasting several minutes.

Credited With Power

Kruger, as chairman of the health and sanitation committee, has been credited in certain circles with having under his control a block of votes mainly from Kakaako and Kewalo district wherein is located the headquarters of the city and county garbage plant. Kruger is also declared as having been building up a political machine at the city fish market through his influence with the corps of inspectors stationed there.

On the other hand the prediction was freely made this morning that not only Kruger but Amama as well would be "persuaded" to step down and out from further participation in the running of the city and county government.

The business center of Corfu, N. Y., was swept by fire. The loss is estimated at $30,000.
