In the senate today Senator Pristow introduced resolutions for the initiative and recall of judicial officers.

The subcommittee on commerce heard representatives of capital and labor on the proposed seaman's involuntary servitude bill.

The court of impeachment began taking testimony in the trial of Judge Archibald.

The chairman of the joint commission appointed to investigate foreign purchase of American tobacco, announced that the commission would meet Thursday.

In the house today the annual report of the secretary of the treasury was read.

Chairman Padgett, of the naval affairs committee, introduced a bill to confer the title of admiral on commanders-in-chief of Atlantic and Pacific battleship fleets.

The New York delegation in caucus decided to oppose the Burnett immigration bill prescribing the literacy test for immigrants.

The Crago bill to pension Spanish war veterans, widows and children passed.

Representative Sulzer introduced a bill for the relocation of the New York city pier State line in Hudson River.

The peace plenipotentiaries representing Turkey, Bulgaria, Serbia and Montenegro will begin their work in London on Friday of this week. The armistice, signed at eight o'clock last evening in the village of Baghatche, took the revised form drafted by Dr. S. Danef. It contains the following conditions:

"1. The belligerent armies shall remain in the position they at present occupy.
"2. The besieged forts shall not be re-occupied.
"3. The re-occupying of the Bulgarian army in the field shall be carried out by way of the Black Sea and Adrianople, commencing ten days after the signing of the armistice.
"4. The negotiations for peace shall begin in London, December 16."

Russia has retorted to the rattling of the German sword in the Balkan war tangle. She has declared that she will not permit a repetition of the methods used when Austria occupied Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Should Greece persist in her refusal to adhere to the armistice signed yesterday it would necessarily throw Bulgaria more closely into the embrace of Serbia and give fresh encouragement to the Serbian resistance to the European powers, who are practically unanimous in condemning the Serbian demands.

Intervention by Roumania, it is believed would inevitably compel Russia to take drastic action on behalf of the Slavs in the Balkans.

Announcing that the country is in danger of a panic as long as the present banking and currency system remains unchanged, and urging the adoption of a system affording greater protection, Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, made his annual report to congress today.

"The present system not only will not prevent a panic, but when a certain point is reached will make it inevitable," declares Secretary MacVeagh.

The locking up of large sums in the treasury vaults, he asserted, is both unscientific and unreasonable.

Prince Taro Katsura, one of Japan's foremost statesmen, will be called upon by His Majesty the Emperor to succeed Premier Marquis Kinnouchi Saionji, whose entire cabinet resigned in a body today. The resignations were handed over to the Emperor by the retiring premier, who personally called, again today at the palace.

Charles Sumner Bird, who was the defeated Progressive candidate for Governor of Massachusetts at the recent election, in an address at the Progress banquet, last night, quoted Theodore Roosevelt as saying that he would not again be a candidate for the Presidency.

Announcement was officially made today of the appointment of John E. Trask, secretary and manager of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, to the post of chief of the fine arts department of the Panama International Exposition.

A SAILOR'S KNOT
By EDWARD N. WENTWORTH

The president of the bank sent for me and said:

"Mr. Hemingway, we must send $20,000 to the Third National bank of Cop-perton and get it there before 3 o'clock. I wish you and Williams to take it, dividing the amount between you. You will go by an automobile, for which I have sent, to be here in ten minutes from Anderson's garage. You and Williams will, of course, go armed, but I don't think there is any danger since I see no reason why any one should know that you carry money."

It was very well for the president to say that no one would know we carried money, but the bank was continually sending out funds, and Williams and I were known as the bank's messengers. We didn't know who of the force employed in the bank might be dishonest and knowing when funds were taken to other places would supply information to crooks that would cause a robbery.

I had carried funds so often with me that I had come to be known as the well it is at last broken.

However, Williams and I started, each with $10,000 on our persons. Our chauffeur we had had often before and had every confidence in him. We rolled out of town and onto the road to Coperton, some twenty-five miles distant.

Some ten miles of the distance had been done, when, coming to a sharp bend in the road, our driver slowed up to make the turn and a man jumped onto the footboard on each side, each man holding a cocked revolver at our heads. A third man covered the driver and ordered him to stop.

Of course we had no time to draw and defend ourselves, and the chauffeur was unarmed. The first thing the robbers, who were masked, did was to take away our revolvers and the next to go through us and relieve us of the bills. Then they took us into a thick wood beside the road and, whipping out a strong cord, proceeded to bind us so thoroughly that we could not move hand or foot. Then they put gags in our mouths and left the three of us to get out of the scrape as best we could.

Now, I had been to sea from eight-ten to twenty on a sailing vessel and knew something about the calling of a sailor. There was one circumstance and only one that told me the man who tied me had been a seaman.

When he bound me he tied the cord in a knot that every sailor uses continually and no one but a sailor would think of using. Fortunately for me, I couldn't talk for the gag in my mouth or I should have called the attention of the others to the fact. As it was I soon bethought myself that a large reward would be paid by the bank for the discovery of the robbers and with the crew I possessed I might more easily win the reward myself. So I determined to keep my counsel and as soon as we were released to hunt for a sailor or one who had been a sailor who was spending money freely.

The chauffeur, who had some false teeth in his head, by dint of working his jaws contrived to loosen them, which loosened his gag also, and he soon got both teeth and gag out of his way. So when we heard the sound of wheels passing on the road he set up a shout, which brought a man into the wood. The chauffeur told him our story, and taking his knife, he cut the cords that bound us. This enabled me to preserve the knot that was used in my case, and I stuffed it into my pocket for evidence.

I confess I didn't feel any especial tenderness for the president of the bank, who I thought should have found better ways of sending money about than the one adopted. I not only had the obloquy of having been robbed, of having some suspicion cast upon me of being in league with the robbers, but I had run a risk of being murdered. Therefore I resolved on an effort to get something out of the occurrence.

I wrote or telephoned the police of the neighboring towns to look out for any one of a sailor cut who was spending money. I was soon notified of a man who was ashore temporarily, who had got a $100 bill changed. I slipped away to the town where the fellow was, darkened my complexion, met him in a saloon, pretended to be drunk and asked him to drink with me. We had not been long together before he changed another bill of large denomination, which I believed had been carried by either Williams or me. I left him at his boarding house, but returned when he was asleep and before he awakened from his drunken stupor had found $10,500 of the bank's money.

When he got righted again I promised him light punishment if he would peach on his comrades. He agreed, and it turned out that the others were ex-convicts, who had got hold of the sailor while ashore and led him into the robbery. All the money except a few hundred dollars was recovered, and I captured a reward of $3,000. As soon as I had received it, I left the service of the bank and do not intend to go back as messenger to that or any other institution. Their methods of exchanging funds I consider out of date and very dangerous. And I have no desire ever again to expose myself to the temptation offered to robbers since my retirement my wife says the ceasing from worry about me is delightful.
