Tablet Is Accepted.

Commissioner of Public Instruction W. R. Farrington, in accepting the tablet on behalf of the department of public instruction, congratulated the people and the children on the evidence of their public spirit and their devotion to the right principles of American government which Abraham Lincoln interpreted and vitalized.

He called attention to President Lincoln's greeting to Hawaiian Envoys Elisha Allen, who was received by the president on July 11, 1884. Mr. Lincoln at that time spoke of Hawaii as a "near and intimate neighbor," and further "its people are free, and its laws and language and religion are largely the fruit of our own teaching and example."

Mr. Farrington then quoted from President Lincoln's declarations on education with special reference to the bond between education and manual labor. As early as March 9, 1832, Mr. Lincoln in the course of one of his first public speeches said, "Upon the subject of education, not presuming to dictate any particular plan or system, I can say that I view it as the most important subject that as a people can be engaged in." And again in the same speech he said, "For my part I desire to see the time when education—and by its means, morality, sobriety, industry and enterprise—shall become much more general than at present, and should be gratified to have it in my power to contribute something to the advancement of any measure that might have a tendency to accelerate that happy period."

Again referring to the point so often made within this territory that education leads a people away from work, Mr. Farrington while calling attention to the fact that it was Abraham Lincoln who signed the bill which made possible the great system of colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts throughout the country—the law which made the College of Hawaii possible—quoted from the president's speech made in the state of Wisconsin, as follows:

"The old general rule was that educated people did not perform manual labor. They managed to eat the bread, leaving the toil of producing it to the uneducated. This was not an insupportable evil to the working class so long as the class of drones remained very small. But now, especially in these free states nearly all are educated, quite too nearly all to leave the labor of the uneducated in any wise adequate to support the whole."

Educated People Must Labor

"It follows from this that henceforth educated people must labor.

"Otherwise, education itself would become a positive and intolerable evil. No country can sustain in idleness more than a small percentage of its numbers. The great majority must labor at something productive. From these premises the problem arises, 'How can labor and Education be most satisfactorily combined?'"

Lincoln referred to the "Mind Still" theory where mankind was supposed to be properly engaged when acting as a blind horse in a treadmill "all the better off for being blind because he could not kick understandingly."

"Free labor argues that as the Author of man makes every individual with one head and one pair of hands it was probably intended that that head and that pair of hands should cooperate as friends and that that particular head should direct and control that pair of hands. As each man has one mouth to be fed and one pair of hands to furnish food it was probably intended that that particular pair of hands should feed that particular mouth. That each head is the natural guardian, director and protector of the hands and mouth inseparably connected with it, and that being so, every head should be cultivated and improved by whatever will add to its capacity for performing its charge. In a word, Free Labor insists on Universal Education."

"The thought recurs that education cultivated thought can best be combined with agricultural labor, or any labor of the principle of thorough work that exercises fully performed, slowly work makes no price for such contributions and thorough work again renders sufficient the smallest quantity of ground to such man; and this again conforms to what must occur in a world less inclined to wars and more devoted to the arts of peace than heretofore."

"Population must increase rapidly, more rapidly than in former times, and one of the most valuable of all arts will be the art of deriving a comfortable subsistence from the smallest area of soil."

"No community whose every member possesses this art can ever be the victim of oppression in any of its forms."

"Such a community will be alike independent of crowned kings, money

KENYON BILL'S PASSAGE CHEERS WORKERS HERE

Ant-Saloon League Much Encouraged by Success of the Measure in Congress

Officers and workers of the Anti-Saloon League are jubilant today over the passage of the Kenyon bill in the house yesterday as told in dispatches from Washington.

The passage of this bill is regarded as the most signal victory for temperance that has taken place in many years. Furthermore, it is felt that the favorable action on the bill is of the most vital importance to the work for temperance in Hawaii.

Secretary Fary said this morning that Hawaii is placed in a very strong position to make a fight for prohibition in the territory, and Senator C. H. Dickey, chatting over the results of the Kenyon bill's passage, said that had such a bill been in effect when the plebiscite was held some years ago, one of the greatest arguments of the liquor men would have been destroyed.

"This Kenyon bill allows states to enforce their state laws on liquor without interference of federal laws," he said. "In other words, the states can control liquor without their work being nullified by the government itself."

The Kenyon bill is as follows:

To prohibit interstate commerce in intoxicating liquors in certain cases.

"Be it enacted, etc. That the shipment or transportation, in any manner or by any means whatsoever, of any spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor of any kind, including beer, ale or wine, from one State, Territory, or District of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, into any other State, Territory or District of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, or from any foreign country into any State, Territory or District of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, which said spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor is intended, by any person interested therein, directly or indirectly, or in any manner connected with the transaction, to be received, possessed, or kept, or in any manner used, either in the original package or otherwise, in violation of any law of such State, Territory, or District of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, enacted in the exercise of the public powers of such State, Territory, or District of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, is hereby prohibited; and any and all contracts pertaining to such transactions are hereby declared to be null and void, and no suit or action shall be maintained in any court of the United States upon any such contract or contracts, or for the enforcement or protection of any alleged right based upon or growing out of such contract or contracts, or for the protection in any manner whatsoever of such prohibited transactions.

Sec. 2. There shall be no property right in or to any such liquor while in the possession of any railway company, express company, or other common carrier, in connection with any shipment or transportation thereof in violation of this Act.

$45,000 IN BANANA CLAIMS NOW LISTED

Banana claims aggregating about $45,000 already have been recorded by the Democratic legislative committee, an almost equally large list is said to have been gathered by Senator Cecil Brown for the Republicans and in the struggle between the two parties to get bills through to repay losses incurred by householders in banana trees during the mosquito campaign it is thought the territory will be required to pay handsomely.

No one realized how many citizens of Honolulu boasted banana trees in their yards until this agitation for temperance was taken on seriously, since the class of the last political campaign, and it would appear from the number and size of the claims being received that before the health authorities undertook their mosquito campaign this particular brand of fruit comprised the same food of a considerable portion of the city's population. However, no claims that appear legitimate are being denied by the representatives of the two parties, who are receiving them rather more eagerly than legislators to obtain credit for the passage of the bill prepared by each promises to be a party vote.

TUCKER TO MAKE UP HIS MIND SOON

Land Commissioner Tucker probably will determine definitely today or tomorrow whether a new 260-acre tract of the Waialua Mill lands at Hilo may be opened for settlement as residence sites. This, if opened will be an addition to the tract recently thrown open there but which did not satisfy the demands of the citizens, many of whom asserted it was not suitable land for the purpose intended.

Governor Frear this morning gave his approval to the proposed opening, as outlined on a map which Tucker received from Hilo yesterday. The land commissioner will endeavor to hold a conference this afternoon with representative of T. H. Davies & Co., who represent the mill company here. The tract, as outlined, has been approved by a large number of Hiloites, who did not like the location of the former tract, and it is thought the company will be willing to relinquish its leasehold rights to the acreage. This, however, remains to be determined within the next few hours.

The new tract lies somewhat nearer the city of Hilo than the earlier grant, and is described as lying mauka of Hoolulu Park, running from an unsurveyed part reservation along the Waialua river toward Pune. The map was prepared under the supervision of D. E. Metzger, Surveyor Tom Cook and a number of prominent citizens of Hilo, and was given approval at a public meeting held on Tuesday of last week in that city.

If the mill company consents to its relinquishment the tract is to be opened at the earliest possible date. Such is the statement of the land commissioner, who is using all possible speed in hurrying up the project.

MRS. SCOTT HAPPY IN HOPE OF SEEING HUSBAND

Mrs. Robert Falcon Scott, for whom cable and wireless have been vainly reaching in an effort to inform her of her husband's tragic death left San Francisco with a light heart, according to Coast papers published just before she sailed for Australia on the Aorangi. She expected to be with her husband in a few days. A Coast paper says:

LOS ANGELES, February 2.—Four day's outing on an Arizona ranch and an overnight trip to the top of Mount Wilson by mule back will serve as a preface to the last lap of a 15,000 mile journey that is being made by Mrs. Robert F. Scott, wife of Captain Scott, the British Antarctic explorer.

Mrs. Scott spent a few hours in Los Angeles today after her return from San Francisco. There she will sail on Wednesday and is described as lying mauka of Hoolulu Park, running from an unsurveyed part reservation along the Waialua river toward Pune. The map was prepared under the supervision of D. E. Metzger, Surveyor Tom Cook and a number of prominent citizens of Hilo, and was given approval at a public meeting held on Tuesday of last week in that city.

ANNA ENA WEDS YOUNG BRITON

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—A romance extending over two years had its climax yesterday in the wedding of Miss Anna D. Ena, daughter of the late M. K. Ena, land-owner and president of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Co. of Honolulu, to Samuel Pierson, Jr., son of Mrs. Samuel Pierson, whose home is Sheffield, Eng. The ceremony was attended by only the nearest friends and relatives of the young people. Rev. J. D. White read the ceremony in the parlors of the Hotel Alhambra.

The young couple will make their home in Los Angeles, residing in the Wilshire district.

Monday for New Zealand to meet her intrepid husband when he returns to civilization from the race to the South Pole, which he lost to Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer. Mrs. Scott expects her husband to reach South New Zealand or Tasmania ports within the next few months and it is to join him there and hear from his own lips the details of his three years in Antarctic solitudes that she is making the trip that leads her to San Francisco on a half way round the world journey from London.

A fool boy may get over it, but a fool man is hopeless.
