The right that is based on thousands upon thousands of enthusiastic letters from distinguished men and women of many lands, who have felt the uplift of its rejuvenating action.

Such is our "right to say"—such is the basis of our sincere conviction that Sanatogen will help those whose nerves have been weakened by overwork, worry or illness—whose digestion and powers of assimilation have become deranged—who have lost their grip on life. In other words we have—

The right that is based on the needs of the nervous system itself.

The right of the nerves—and not least those that directly affect the digestion—is based on the need of nourishment. If the nerves are to perform their functions, if they are to be strong, healthy nerves, they must be fed. If any strain disturbs their natural absorption of food from the daily diet, the nerves suffer all the distresses and reactions of hunger.

Sanatogen is the special food of the nerves in this crisis.

Sanatogen is a scientific combination of the very food elements required by the impoverished nerves and it goes directly to their rescue.

By feeding to the nerves the body elements they need Sanatogen restores to them their vital balance of natural strength and thus in the most logical way helps to give back to the body the full vigor of health.

Our "right to say" is your assurance of help.

Your nerves have a right to Sanatogen.

HOUSE DEFEATS AINAHAU BILL

In the hardest fought forensic battle on the floor of the house during the present session, the Ainaahu bill was defeated late yesterday afternoon.

One of those who switched at the last moment was Speaker Holstein, who for the second time that day and the third time in the session, had taken the floor.

Strangely enough, in defeating the Ainaahu bill, the house turned against its two recognized leaders, Dr. Archer Irwin of the minority or Democratic contingent, and Speaker Holstein of the majority.

Holstein, discussing the legal, practical phase of the situation, created a mild sensation by charging Archie Robertson with lobbying on the floor of the house.

Robertson, who up to this time had taken no part in any of the public discussions of Ainaahu and had declined to vote on it, took the floor, declaring he arose to defend himself against the speaker's accusation.

He recalled the fact that two years ago Holstein also fought the Ainaahu bill. During the present session, and before the speaker had changed his mind, Robertson said he had been again called into Holstein's office and informed that if he wanted to keep the territory from taking over the Clegg-horn property he "must get out and do some missionary work."

"And that, Mr. Speaker," said Robertson, "is just what I've been doing. I've been following the advice Mr. Holstein gave me. Moreover, I haven't found anything in the books that prohibits lobbying."

Robertson also thought it peculiar that the speaker had so abruptly undergone a change of opinion concerning the desirability of the Ainaahu bill. Replying to this, Holstein said he was convinced two years ago the supervisors did not want Ainaahu.

Holstein added that, like his colleague from Kona, Representative Kawewehi, he believed "a wise man changed his mind, but a fool never."

At that, Kawewehi gained the floor. He acknowledged he had expressed the sentiment just accredited him.

"Whereas, The sugar industry in the Territory of Hawaii is a legitimate industry, representing largely an investment of the savings of thousands of families; and

"Whereas, A material reduction in the rate of sugar tariff will seriously injure, and abolition will destroy the said sugar industry in the Territory of Hawaii; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, The Hawaii National Democratic League, duly affiliated with the National League of Democratic Clubs, having implicit faith and confidence in the administration, and in its counsels, hereby respectfully petitions the congress of the United States and especially the Democratic members thereof, not to abolish the tariff on sugar nor reduce the rate to such extent as will cause serious injury to our industry.

TRAIL CLOSED, COMMUTERS KICK. Declaring that residents on Pacific Heights have been forced to take a circuitous route to the car line because a property owner along the Nuuanu stream has closed up the nearest trail, A. B. Arleigh called upon the attorney general yesterday afternoon. Arleigh asserts that the territory has a public interest in the land and that this was violated by the new purchaser. Attorney General Thayer could not see it in his power to take steps leading to official intervention and advised Arleigh to make use, if he is of the opinion that a public interest exists in the trail, of the right of injunction against the closing of it.

ADVENTIST FILES ANOTHER BRIEF

Joaquin Gomes da Silva, Seventh Day Adventist and candidate for American citizenship, in contesting the claims of United States District Attorney Breckons that he should be denied citizenship papers because his religion forbids that he serve his country on Saturday has again filed a brief in support of his cause in the United States district court. It is now up to Judge Clemons to decide whether or not the man who holds Saturday as the Sabbath day shall be forced for this reason to remain an alien.

In the brief filed yesterday da Silva takes up the two main points advanced by the United States district attorney and answers them both in a way that arouses the respect and admiration of the federal officials. A unique fact in connection with da Silva's brief is the fact that he has brought to light a hitherto neglected statute which provides that no man who has prejudices of a religious nature against going to war shall be forced to take up arms in the defense of his country. Silva further points out that the fact that he would not serve on a jury impounded on Saturday is no valid reason for denying him citizenship.

KAIMUKI LIGHTED UP, ENJOYS BAND MUSIC

Even the band boys made an early appearance, coming two and three cars before the time to begin the concert, to see Frank Cooke's bonfire lighted on Wilhelmina Rise last night. The torch was applied about ten minutes before the band began playing at Liliuokalani School. There was a row of piles in flame at once, giving the appearance of a field of stacked wheat burning. If the fires had been on top of each other, they would have made a pillar of flame hundreds of feet high. As it was the illumination was fine, visible from elevated ground all over the country this side of the mountains. Where the flames were shut out by obstacles to the view, the ruddy

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO FATHER DAMIEN

Brother Joseph Dutton, manager of the Baldwin Home at Kalawao, Molokai, has paid a splendid tribute to the work of the late Father Damien at the Molokai leper settlement, through a letter to Father Francis, a priest residing in Syracuse, New York. Father Francis visited with Brother Dutton a short time ago and on his return home wrote in praise of the work done at the leper settlement after Father Damien's death. In reply to this letter, Brother Dutton not only dealt with the success of the work which is now being carried on at the settlement, but of the great amount of work accomplished by Father Damien.

NO FUNDS FOR INDIGENT SICK

In a communication addressed to the board of supervisors, Dr. James T. Wayson, city physician, has again brought up the old problem as to whether the city or the territory should bear the expense of patients from the Girls' Industrial School, who are admitted to the Queen's Hospital.

LOCAL BOURBONS IN SUGAR FIGHT

The Hawaii National Democratic League is squarely against the proposed free sugar bill. The league held a largely attended meeting last night at Democratic headquarters and passed the following resolutions: 'Whereas, The Democratic party in national convention assembled, emphatically declared in its platform of principles: 'We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry.'
