Harbormaster Expected by the Board to Attend to Matters in His Own Office

Just why any dissension in the harbormaster's office can not be settled on the spot without having to refer the matter to the board of harbor commissioners, is the question which the members of that body would like to have satisfactorily answered.

A letter received from Assistant Harbormaster John Dick by the board at a meeting yesterday afternoon caused some pointed remarks to be made by several of the members. It seems that Dick had been aboard a tug, plying in the harbor. While on the vessel, Dick attempted to give orders to the skipper, whereupon he was promptly reminded as to who was master of the tug. Upon going ashore, Dick reported the matter to Harbormaster Foster, and then, through a letter, Dick reported the matter to the board, which announced itself opposed to subordinate officers coming to it with official matters over the heads of their superiors.

F. E. McStocker, a member of the board, stated that Dick told him that the harbormaster had instructed him to send a letter to the board of harbor commissioners setting forth his case. McStocker, however, favored referring the matter direct to the harbormaster as it was desirable to get his stand upon the apparent flagrant violation of the rules on the part of the captain of the tug, and with regard to the performance of duties prescribed by the rules and regulations of the port until new ones are made. McStocker also stated that if the harbormaster or his assistant had no authority on board the vessel they should keep that fact within the limits of the office, and that if they had authority it should be recognized.

Colonel McCarthy said that the harbormaster had spoken to him about the matter, setting forth that while Dick was apparently a good man, he was rather officious and had at different times gotten into trouble with captains of various vessels, who objected to his presence on board. It is said that Dick's talk was largely responsible for the recent legislative investigation of the harbormaster's office. The board has referred the matter to the harbormaster.

DID QUARTETTE BECOME PAIR?

J. Alfred Magoon, who was talking to a friend on the opposite side of the street, saw the young man dash as hurriedly down the steps of the building as he had gone up, and the next instant the automobile with its four anxious occupants disappeared at a merry clip around the corner of the street.

Further inquiry made at Soares' office early this afternoon failed to produce evidence that the two couples had again made an attempt to secure licenses. At the office on King street of Reverend Abraham Fernandez, where marriage licenses may be had, and at other license bureaus in the city, it was denied that any licenses had been granted today to passengers of the Niagara.

Although several of the Niagara passengers, when questioned by a Star-Bulletin representative, were unwilling to divulge the names of the four romancers, it was intimated that a number of people on board were aware of the seriousness of two young men prominent among the passengers. No secret was made of the fact that a considerable quantity of rice, kept on hand by the steward's department for just such occasions, had been distributed to a knowing few as the ship came into port. It is said on good authority that the facts of the double wedding to be celebrated in the Paradise of the Pacific "leaked out" in some mysterious manner yesterday afternoon, and that the four young people were closely watched as they left the dock. This fact, it is said, accounts for the haste in which the prospective brides and grooms sought Soares' office.

It is reported that the interrupted wedding party is now on its way to Haleiwa and unless licenses are stealthily secured some time this afternoon the double wedding will be delayed until the Niagara reaches British Columbia.

About five hundred tons ballast are going into the French bark Notre Dame d'Arvor, now lying at the railway wharf, preparatory to sailing for the north Pacific Coast. This vessel has been discharged of three thousand tons nitrates from South American ports. It is reported that the wind-jammer will load grain from a Sound port, destined for Europe.

POSTMASTERS IN WEARISOME WAIT

masters have never been reported from the senate committee. They are not opposed by Republican congressmen, but Delegate Kuhio has refused his approval. Kuhio objects especially to the nomination of the postmaster for Hilo. He wants another selection.

"C. S. ALBERT."

H. D. Corbett is the Hilo man whom Kuhio is opposing. Kuhio is a political associate of George L. Desha, the present Republican postmaster. The fact that the appointments have not yet been reported from committee is taken by local Democrats to prove that the tariff fight is occupying practically all the attention of the Democratic senators just now. Possibly Hawaiian patronage is being used as a political club in this case as it is in other cases.

GOVERNORSHIP STILL IN DOUBT

among themselves, and assuming an irreconcilable attitude when a piece of pie appears on the horizon.

President Wilson has not indicated a disposition to go the entire distance with Secretary Lane and for the present drop the Hawaiian governorship problem. He continues to say that an appointment may be made within a few weeks, but gives no sign as to the identity of the possible selection.

As such matters are left largely to the heads of departments it seems quite probable Secretary Lane may be permitted to have his own way. In such an event the various candidates for governor now here will have to end home for funds. It will be a long and tedious wait. The pie will be more expensive than the rates now prevailing in the senate restaurant under the new change.

Frear Needs Only to Drop a Hint.

In addition to other troubles it is certain the new governor will have to hang around some time for his commission if Governor Frear drops the slightest hint that he would like to remain in office. The Republicans surely will oppose confirmation when the nomination finally does come into the senate, unless Governor Frear declares that he must relinquish his office and will consider no other course.

The Republicans are determined to worry the Democrats over all nominations filling terms that should have been included in President Taft's patronage. The Hawaiian governorship is a striking illustration of the manner in which the Democrats arbitrarily refused to play fair and nothing would please the Republicans better than to conduct a warfare of reprisal.

Candidates Beat the Bushes.

Messrs. McCandless, Watson and Waller remain here beating the bushes to pick up a little additional influence and help their cause along in the direction of winning. Being the last to arrive, Mr. Watson has done the most hustling. His health has improved and he seems in pretty fit condition. According to his own words he will soon be in shape to run a race if it becomes necessary to do any chasing of the Japanese.

A statement has been given out by Mr. Watson's physician saying that his health is such as to make certain his ability to discharge the duties of governor without detriment to the service or injury to himself. This has served to make the candidacy of Mr. Watson more formidable. In addition he has many good friends in public life and they are active day and night in his interest. These are led by Representative Humphreys of Mississippi, who originally fled Mr. Watson's name with the president and secretary of the interior.

It is natural that McCandless and Waller feel a trifle disheartened and irritated. They have been long in the fight and sought to secure an early settlement of the middle. It was supposed that President Wilson would clean up the Hawaiian slate at an early date after assuming office, as the vacancy in the governor's office has existed since December 18, 1911. The continued delay, and the prospect of more postponement, has caused everybody to become more or less disgruntled.

SOLDIERS BUSY IN THE FIELD

Now that the period of field training is on, the troops on Oahu are getting a foretaste of the strenuous hiking that is sure to fall to their lot before the period of garrison training comes around again. Climatic conditions here are such that the soldiers could take the field at any time of the year, but the times for instruction in the varied branches of warfare are arranged for less temperate climes, and the army here divides the work as prescribed by the higher ups in Washington.

The first battalion of the Second Infantry is in camp at Red Hill, and after maneuvers that are calculated to thoroughly familiarize the officers and men with the terrain, the battalion will move to Pearl City for further exercises.

C Company, which returned from a hike to the volcano yesterday, marched out to join its battalion this morning. The men found the march from Hilo to the crater and return hard on shoe leather, and remained a day in garrison to obtain a clothing issue.

A Company of the Second, Captain Cooke, is now at the volcano, being due to arrive at the crater this morning.

At Lilehua I and K companies, First Infantry, returned this morning from a hike in the mountains, where the men were given a number of out-post problems, and the officers and non-coms drilled in map making. The companies left Schofield in a down-pour of rain, but returned in fine shape and well pleased with the three-day outing.

Companies E and F of the First foot, Captain Thomas commanding, left Schofield this morning for a trip similar to that taken by I and K. Schofield Barracks Notes.

Lieut. Richard T. Taylor, Twenty-fifth Infantry, recently appointed from civil life, who arrived on the last transport, has been assigned to I Company.

Lieut. John O'Grady, Twenty-fifth Infantry, has been relieved from general recruiting service at Columbus barracks, Ohio, and directed to join his regiment. He has been absent from the regiment about two years.

Lieut. Joseph Marmon, who recently passed through Honolulu as transport quartermaster of the Dix, has been relieved from that detail, and has been granted leave of absence of one month and fifteen days before joining his regiment.

DR. J. W. PLATNER TO VISIT IN HONOLULU

Governor Frear received a letter today from his former college classmate, Dr. John Winthrop Platner, a professor in the Harvard divinity school, stating the latter expects to arrive in Honolulu about August 22 on a tour of the world. He probably will remain here a fortnight and likely will be entertained at the governor's home.

Incidentally, Dr. Platner, who is said to be an excellent, forceful speaker may deliver several addresses during his visit. He has obtained a year's absence from his academic duties and will spend most of it visiting points of interest throughout the Orient and Europe. It will be his first visit to Hawaii.

GOING TO LONDON.

Hugo P. Frear, brother of the governor, and who is a naval architect associated with the Union Iron Works at San Francisco, has been selected as a delegate to attend a big meeting of international engineers in London in October. The meeting has been called to discuss plans for providing greater safety in marine passenger traffic, a movement resulting from the Titanic disaster early last year.

COURT DIGNITY LOWERED, AVERS ATTY. BITTING

Within the last three months federal trial juries have acquitted two men accused of murder in the first degree; one man accused of adultery and two or three on opium smuggling charges. In all save the two murder trials the assistant district attorney has conducted the prosecution alone, yet in all the evidence of guilt apparently was strong—at least strong enough to obtain indictments by the grand jury. The defense in the first murder case rested mainly on a hypnotism plea, wherein the murderer stated his victim, through mental control, compelled him to commit the capital offense. In the second murder trial self defense was the basis of the argument on which innocence was declared by the jury.

Bitting's occasion for recalling these episodes to the mind of Judge S. B. Hale was that Solomon Hau-mea, a young Hawaiian accused of incest, this morning, had entered a plea of guilty and his counsel, Jack Atkinson, begged for lenience. Bitting urged that the man be given a penalty commensurate with the crime, that the dignity of the court might be maintained—"so the people may know that this is a court of justice and not a clearing house for crime," he added.

Judge Dole continued the case until tomorrow, when sentence on the prisoner will be fixed.

FINISHES AUDIT OF BOOKS OF Y. M. C. A.

W. J. Forbes, the local accountant, this morning finished his audit of the books of the Young Men's Christian Association covering the year from May 1, 1912, until April 30, 1913, and has affixed the following statement to the ledgers:

"This is to certify that I have compared all entries of cash payments made for the year beginning May 1, 1912, to and including April 30, 1913, with the several vouchers for the same; have verified the footings and amounts forwarded and have found them to be accurate and correct. I have checked all entries for cash receipts posted from the original stub entry book, verified the footings and amounts forwarded and found them correct as of April 30, 1912."

During the past year the business department of the association has handled $53,635.44.

YOUTH, AGED EIGHTY, BENEDICK ON MAINLAND

Taking unto himself a bride at the advanced age of almost four score years, Francis Cutting, prominent in San Francisco business circles for more than half a century as banker, fruit packer and director in a dozen large corporations, according to latest mail dispatches from the Coast, has married Miss Alice Marie Duren, a school teacher in the public schools of Oakland.

The utmost secrecy was observed by the octogenarian in obtaining the wedding license and in carrying out the details of the wedding. Throughout the afternoon preceding the nuptial service, it was announced at the palatial residence of Mr. Cutting at 274 Nineteenth street that neither he nor his secretary were at home. In the evening, Cutting and his bride slipped away for their honeymoon—destination unknown.

The aged bridegroom has enormous business interests in San Francisco and as far along the Coast as Alaska. The bride is thirty years his junior.
