FIREWORKS AT MEETING OF HARBOR BOARD

For half an hour yesterday afternoon the board of harbor commissioners was entertained by a hot debate between Commissioner F. B. McStocker and Customs Collector E. R. Stackable.

The forensic struggle involved the old question of the fuel oil pipe line, that was laid last summer through the federal government's lot between the Oceanic and Allen & Robinson wharves.

The pipe line was laid without permission from the war department last year, despite Stackable's protest that such request should be obtained.

Then he and Commissioner McStocker launched into what apparently was a re-vamp of the old dispute of last year.

board would assume responsibility for the work entailed.

Harbor Master Foster and Pilot Bennett explained to the board that the offer of the Young Brothers to supply a launch for the harbor pilots, in lieu of the two four-oared whaleboats now in commission, would not be practicable.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—A dozen chickens in a coop at the city market today found that they were not immune from the usual effects of drinking the brand of whiskey dispensed in the north end district of this city.

Soon afterward the roosters began to crow noisily, the pullets flapped their wings and it was evident all the fowls were drunk.

OVER-NIGHT FEDERAL WIRELESS To the Advertiser

Democratic members of the senate finance committee this afternoon started framing amendments to the Underwood tariff bill.

The report on Hawaiian labor conditions, made by Commissioner General of Immigration Keefe last year, alleged to have been suppressed by former Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel, which the house last week ordered to be printed as a public document on request of Representative Parker.

Keefe declares that "labor conditions in Hawaii are very bad," wages should be increased, employees' housing should be bettered and company stores put under management.

Many declared they were brought to the islands under misstatements as to conditions and wish to return but cannot earn enough money for passage to Manila.

The publication of the report is designed to weaken the cause of the Hawaiian planters in their fight against the free sugar clause of the Underwood bill.

War more serious than the Balkan Turkish struggle and which menaces the peace of Europe as that conflict never did, is feared as the result of schemes which today have practically disintegrated the alliance between Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece.

Servia's demands on Bulgaria for a rectification of their agreement on territorial matters is regarded as practically an ultimatum and while there is no fighting today, Bulgaria and Greece are maintaining what really is a state of war about Salonika.

Telegrams from Vienna state that eighty thousand Bulgarians, ready and eager for more fighting, are massed about Sofia and it is regarded as certain that the Bulgarian cabinet will reject the demands of Servia for cessation of territory won by Bulgarian arms.

The Mir, an inspired Sofia newspaper, declares flatly that Servian demands constitute an ultimatum which Bulgaria cannot grant.

Theodore Roosevelt took the stand at Marksville, Mich., today in Judge Richard Flannigan's court as his own witness in his suit for $10,000 punitive damages against George A. Newell, a newspaper editor, who accused the former president of "lying and cursing in a most disgusting way," further declaring that "he gets drunk too, and that not infrequently."

Roosevelt said: "I have never drunk a cocktail or a highball in my life. I never drank whisky or brandy except under the advice of a physician. I do not like the taste of either. I do not smoke or drink, for I dislike both. I do not drink red wines. The only wines I ever drink are white wines, Madeira, champagne or occasionally, a glass of sherry.

DIVORCED WIFE NURSES SPOUSE OF WIFE NO. 2

New York—Mrs. Cornelia Dawborne Peck, divorced wife of Professor Harry Theron Peck, is making a desperate effort to nurse her former husband back to mental and physical health, through prayer and constant attention in order that she may restore him to his present wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dubois Peck, the woman who supplanted her.

Mrs. Peck, the first, is drawing heavily upon the money that she received from her former husband in the form of alimony to aid in restoring his health.

Mrs. Peck and her former husband, one time one of the leaders in the faculty of Columbia university, are in a little bungalow in Greenwich village, Sound Beach, Conn. Three weeks ago, the first wife of Professor Peck went to his bedside when she learned that he was dying in an Ithaca hospital.

"When I reached the hospital the death rattle was in Professor Peck's throat," said Mrs. Cornelia Peck. "His physicians said he could not live more than three days. I am a believer in Christian Science and I have had Professor Peck treated by a practitioner.

"Four nineteen days I remained at his bedside, determined to break the power of death which dominated the mind of my husband. From the pitiable wreck which I found him, his mind so emaciated that it looked like a skeleton, I have nursed him to a point where he is nearly a whole of body and re-learning like a child the things he lost through the unnatural philosophy with which he was oppressed.

"I have never met Professor Peck's wife. She may come here and visit me a little later—but she must tell me so that I can go away. I feel sorry for her and I have asked Dr. Frederick Crane to assist her—not so he can help her husband, for I shall provide for him until he is fully restored to health. Then I shall return him to her."

Professor Peck presented by the shadow of his former self as he slowly followed his former wife about the apple orchard of their little temporary home.

"What time is it, dear?" asked Mrs. Peck in a soft tone.

"A quarter before six," answered Professor Peck, and his face lighted up with the expression of a child who has learned a new lesson.

"That's right," said Mrs. Peck, "but now is the reading lesson coming long?"

Then the first Mrs. Peck opened a black leather bound book and the former Anthony, professor of Latin, read lowly and with the hesitancy of a child.

"God is in heaven. All is right with the world."
