NO PROTESTS ARE FILED; PINKHAM CONFIDENT

PRESIDENT PUNISHING BOURBONS

Failure to Harmonize Cause of Surprise Nomination

[Special Star-Bulletin Cable]
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 25.—By nominating L. E. Pinkham for governor of Hawaii President Wilson is punishing the Democrats of the territory for their failure to harmonize and agree upon a candidate for the office. Watson's friends in the senate are very indignant over the appointment and may fight the confirmation. While there are many expressions of ill-feeling over the nomination, no protests have been received in official circles. Pinkham still is in Washington and expresses himself as confident that the nomination will be confirmed.
C. S. ALBERT.

KENT CONFIDENT

Washington, D. C., July 24.
I congratulate the islands on appointment as Governor of constructive and disinterested friend. No possible trouble concerning confirmation.
KENT.

METZGER AND IRWIN GREATLY SURPRISED

[Special Star-Bulletin Wire]
HILO, July 25.—Metzger says he is very much surprised to learn that Pinkham has been nominated governor and that he felt absolutely certain that E. M. Watson would secure the plum.
Archer Irwin says, "If Pinkham is appointed it serves the Honolulu Republican organization right for butting in. It should have been McCandless."

Following the general surprise at the receipt of a cable from Washington to the Star-Bulletin, yesterday, announcing the nomination of L. E. Pinkham for governor of Hawaii, general sentiment is swinging into line and getting on the "Pinkham" bandwagon. That he is the man for the job is almost the unanimous opinion today.

Cablegrams of congratulation have been forwarded to Mr. Pinkham in Washington, while local friends have received confirmation of the news of his appointment, as given them by the Star-Bulletin.

Rumors that protests have been filed against the appointment fall of confirmation either in Honolulu or in Washington. So far as can be learned, the decision of the president will be allowed to stand with any open dissension being registered.

That D. E. Metzger will be named territorial secretary continues the talk of Mrs. Grundy and the fact that Messrs. Pinkham and Metzger were business associates in the well boring business is given by the knowing ones as a reason for such an appointment being made.

Another candidate mentioned for the secretaryship is Dr. James H. Raymond and his many friends are of the opinion that his chances for the position are as bright as those of anyone this far suggested.

Dr. C. B. Cooper strongly denies that he is a candidate for the secretaryship or any other office in the gift of the governor. He states that his private practice keeps him sufficiently busy and that he is seeking no political job.

On every hand today the sentiment is expressed that Hawaii should not oppose the appointment of Pinkham

CIVILIAN EXPERT MAY MAKE NEXT DRYDOCK INVESTIGATION

Decision Reached Through Differences of Opinion in Findings of Navy Engineers—Secretary Daniels Staunch Exponent of Pearl Harbor's Practicability as Site

Word was received here yesterday afternoon that a further investigation of the Pearl Harbor drydock situation was to be made on the ground, and that the engineering puzzle which has tied up work on the big ship basin would be tackled by still another expert or experts, probably civilians, before any final decision was reached as to the resumption of the work, and the distribution of financial responsibility for the disaster. This is in line with the rumored intention of Secretary Daniels to employ outside help on the drydock problem, owing to the inability of the navy civil engineers to agree in their reports. The new investigation will begin here some time next month.

The Star-Bulletin's Washington correspondent, amplifying by mail a cable special of July 12, states that three reports were considered by the secretary of the navy, and that a number of conflicting statements were found, which must be reconciled before definite action can be taken. It was not generally known here that Civil Engineer Harris, who came here with Admiral Stanford several months ago, had made a separate report on the feasibility of the present site and specifications, although there was a rumor current here during his visit that he might be acting under special instructions from the navy department. Apparently he made such a report, and apparently the respondent, amplifying by mail a cable special of July 12, states that three reports were considered by the secretary of the navy, and that a number of conflicting statements were found, which must be reconciled before definite action can be taken.

BARON IN JAIL SAYS HIS MIND PERFECT BLANK

Comes to Life in Camp No. 2; Arraigned in Court and Is Given Continuance

"My mind has been a perfect blank for the past seventy hours," was the dramatic declaration of "Baron G. von Woellwarth, who sauntered into the central police station at five o'clock this morning, and expressed a desire to remain there until he could have a word with Deputy Sheriff Rose or Chief of Detectives McDuffie.

The "baron," alias Schmidt, alias Smith, who some days previous was a more or less central figure in a series of delightful dinners and pleasant social functions, at the haunts frequented by Honolulu's great and near great, was quite content to partake of the humble but substantial fare supplied at the police station mess.

"Give me a little time and I can fix this thing up to the satisfaction of all concerned," was the remark offered by the alleged baron to a rather perplexed

Because one of their number had been discharged, sixty Japanese laborers employed in the construction of the new Marconi wireless station at Koko Head, went on a strike yesterday afternoon and refused to return to work unless their fellow workman was reinstated. The engineers in charge of the work, after a consultation with Resident Engineer N. H. Slaughter, discharged the entire gang and left for Honolulu, where a new force was soon recruited.

In speaking of the advancement of the work on the new station, Mr. Slaughter said this morning: "A temporary outfit has been erected at the new station which consists of a small wireless equipment operated by a gasoline engine, the set having been installed to experiment on a small scale, one operator being em-

FATAL ACCIDENT AT ARMORY SUBJECT OF INVESTIGATION

Star-Bulletin Finds Architects and Contractors Exchanged Professions as to Safety in Construction—Work on Plan Considered Less Preferable Went Ahead to Avoid Delay—Are Present Plans Safe?

Walter F. Woods, co-partner of Gus Anderson, testified before the coroner's jury this afternoon that he considered the steel pillars on the armory job too light to support the trusses for the roof and that he and Anderson had protested against what they declared was a weakness and a danger. He said the work was stopped and then started again, and that the architects had said it was all right to go ahead. He had always considered the job unsafe, he testified.

Johnson, a fellow workman on the job when Anderson was killed, and who narrowly missed death himself, testified to practically the same things. He also said he considered the supporting steel pillars too light, and that to stiffen them temporary wooden braces had been fastened down the sides.

The coroner's jury is composed of Walter Jarrett, L. Gay, Levi Perkins, J. Campbell, E. Norrie and Charles Gindler.

The jury adjourned at 3 o'clock this afternoon until Monday and went over to the armory site to look at the scene of the accident.

That Gus Anderson fell to his death yesterday morning on a structural steel job carried on against the protests of the architects and against the judgment of the contractors is a development in the fatal armory accident that the coroner's jury has been called upon to investigate this afternoon.

The coroner's jury begins its investigation at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Deputy Sheriff Rose has been furnished with the names of material witnesses whose stories of affairs leading up to the accident will be gone into.

As the result of these statements, a serious question as to the safety of the armory structure, as designed and now being put up, has arisen and may form one of the features of the jury probe.

A statement made to the Star-Bulletin last night by Lee B. Turner, one of the steel construction crew employed on the armory job, led to the discovery today that official correspondence has passed between the archi-
