JAPANESE DENY COLORED REPORT OF AN ASSAULT

Making positive denial of a series of sensational allegations contained in a story of a criminal assault, appearing in a Japanese and also an English morning paper, Mrs. K. Hashimoto and her husband have related to Captain of Detectives Arthur McDuffie, through Interpreter Kuroda, what they claim to be the true version of the affair that took place at the home of the Japanese on Iwalei road and which they maintain has been so grossly magnified.

Emphatic in her declaration that three white soldiers, and not a trio of colored enlisted men, succeeded in forcing the way in to the house a week ago, Mrs. Hashimoto, who has been brought into prominence through what she claims is misrepresentation, told the officers yesterday afternoon that no assault was attempted or committed.

The Japanese claim that they were at work in the preparation of bean cakes, the man grinding the material while the woman was in a rear room preparing the dough for the ovens. Without a word of warning the front door of the house was thrust open and three white men, dressed in the uniform of U. S. soldiers, entered the room.

Hashimoto stated to McDuffie that one of the men insisted that he have a drink of liquor from a bottle. The Japanese demurred and as the trio of invaders attempted to enforce their demand, he complied with the request.

One of the white men, who Hashimoto states he would be unable to positively identify, saw Mrs. Hashimoto in the back room and entered the apartment. He is alleged to have taken certain liberties with the woman, though in no manner participating in a brutal assault. The husband rushed to the assistance of his wife and together they succeeded in ejecting the soldiers from the house.

Hashimoto stated to McDuffie that the same evening he approached a man on horseback whom he believed to be a mounted police officer, and told him of the actions of the men.

McDuffie, with the assistance of Sheriff Jarrett, interrogated every man connected with the mounted police squad last evening and each denied having been approached by a Japanese with any such story.

Both Japanese also deny that any display of firearms was made by the soldiers. Suspects may be brought before the Japanese with a view of possible identification.

Captain John E. Hunt of the 25th infantry, expressed much indignation at the attitude of the morning paper in persisting in its misrepresentation of the case, when seen at police station this morning, following his return from the home of Hashimoto, where

NUUANU VALLEY CLUB IS DEAD, SAYS A. F. JUDD

A hurried call to public-spirited residents of Nuuanu valley, asking them to assist at the city hall this evening to meet the supervisors with expressions of opinion upon the Queen Emma Park question, has been issued by A. F. Judd, president of the improvement club of that section.

There was no time to have a meeting of the club, one of the valley residents said this morning, so it was deemed best to request as many of the members as possible to attend the meeting of the municipal board. Mr. Judd, on being asked what position the club was taking on the points in dispute about the park, said that the club was dead.

Several Nuuanu residents seen this morning were unanimous in the opinion that the grand old trees should not be cut down. One was emphatically opposed to the idea of creating another baseball park at the place, saying it was utterly unnecessary.

There was division of opinion respecting the demand of the Daughters of Hawaii and the Outdoor Circle, that the residence of the beloved queen should be preserved both as a relic and a repository of historical mementoes.

James A. Wilder, artist and Boy Scout chieftain, wants "just a park," with the trees preserved. "The birds of the air have places to bill and coo together," said Mr. Wilder, "and ordinary human beings ought to have the same blessed privilege." He also rather favors the preservation of the old royal mansion.

He had concluded an examination of the two Japanese.

"I find that the story appearing in the Advertiser is false in about every detail, as a result of my inquiry made this morning," stated Captain Hunt. "The military authorities resent this attitude assumed by the paper in its attempting to heap unjust approbrium upon the regiment with which I am connected."

"The Japanese tell me that there was no criminal assault committed and no weapon displayed. The most important admission made by the interested parties was that the visitors were white men and not colored soldiers. I am of the belief that the three men may have been partly under the influence of liquor when they entered the house, and became familiar with the occupants." In conclusion Captain Hunt insisted that the military authorities stand ready at any and all times to do all in their power to bring offenders against law and order from their organizations to a speedy justice.

Bill Goose—"Well, Quack, I understand you are in business." Hank Duck—"Yes, I am teaching swimming by correspondence."

FOLLOW THESE DIRECTIONS WHEN USING THE MAIL

Detailed directions and precautions for addressing mail have been received by Postmaster Pratt and the postmaster believes that if they are followed in Honolulu much of the present delay and mistakes can be avoided. The letter is from the first assistant postmaster-general and reads as follows:

"Your active co-operation is requested in an effort to relieve the postal service of the burden imposed by the growing evil of incompletely and improperly addressed mail.

"The delivery of letters, especially in the large cities, is frequently delayed and oftentimes made impossible by the omission of an important part of the address, such as the street number, or room number when addressed to an office building. Not infrequently the name of the street is omitted, only the name of the post-office and state being given. Another source of trouble is the practice of giving an address at the intersection of two streets without giving the location of the corner, for in some large cities a number of carriers' routes may terminate at that point, or it may be the dividing line between the respective territories of the main post-office and a station, or between two stations, and in the absence of the notation 'N. E.', 'N. W.', etc., the distributors are unable to determine to which carrier the mail should be thrown.

"The increasing carelessness on the part of the public in addressing their mail is no doubt aided and abetted by the practice of the department in supplying deficient addresses and also by the exploitation in newspapers of the ability of some clerks to decipher 'break' addresses.

"Postmasters should advise their patrons that complete and accurate addresses are essential to prompt mail delivery and that they should co-operate with the department to the extent of seeing that all mail originated by them bears a street number, or room number in the case of an office building, in addition to the name of the city and state. Attention should also be invited to the fact that they can be of material assistance in the education of the general public with respect to this requirement by having all stationery intended for transmission in the mails printed with their complete street or office address.

"Hereafter when the delivery of mail is delayed on account of an insufficient address, that fact should be stamped on the face of the mail, and rubber stamps for this purpose, bearing the words 'Delivery delayed on account of incomplete address,' may be secured through requisition on the fourth assistant postmaster-general, division of supplies.

"Such publicity as can be effected without expense to the department should be given the suggestions outlined above."

THE OLD ROLLER TOWEL.

How dear to our hearts are the things of our childhood. When fond recollections present them to view!

The old district schoolhouse, the pall and the dipper

The same cup of gum which in turn we would chew.

No fear of a microbe forever beset us. No state board of health interfered then at all;

We bathed dirty faces in one common basin

And turned to the towel that hung on the wall.

The old roller towel, the stiff roller towel,

The germ-laden towel that hung on the wall.

Of crasis was this towel, in generous proportion.

And never was changed more than once in a week;

We turned it around and used it all over.

And for a dry spot it was idle to seek.

With use and abuse it grew grayish in color.

Acquiring an odor exceedingly rank; By Saturday night it presented a surface

As hard and unyielding as any inch plank.

The old roller towel, the stiff roller towel,

From which the fastidious foolishly shrank.

But now it is gone, vanished out of existence.

By virtue of power which the board of health holds;

No more can we bury our streaming wet faces

Within its bacterial, dangerous folds.

No longer we meet with the discolored banner,

Which hung from a roller nailed up on the wall;

On clean huckabuck initial embroidered.

We wipe away tears which intrusively fall

For old roller towels, the stiff roller towels

The germ-laden towels that hung on the wall.

"You are going to write an article on the 'dinosaurus?'" asked Mr. Penwickle.

"Yes," replied Mr. SlaySPACE.

"But you don't know a thing about it?"

"Of course not. This is to be a strictly original article and I'll bet I evolve some ideas on the dinosaurus that will make these old scientists sit up and take notice." Washington Star.
