

HAWAII MUST WORK TO SAVE BIG DRYDOCK

San Francisco Interests Have Launched Vigorous Campaign, Says Thompson

COASTERS TRYING TO BORROW APPROPRIATION

Secretary Daniels Has Been Asked to Consider Transfer of Funds

"Hawaii had better watch her drydock interests. San Franciscans are working tooth and nail for a big ship basin there, and if it goes through, the coast will have the drydock market cornered, so to speak. The California people also want to 'borrow' our appropriation for this purpose."

So said Attorney Frank E. Thompson, who returned on the Korea this morning from a four-weeks trip to the coast, where he talked with those who are behind the campaign to secure a big naval drydock for San Francisco.

"The coast people who are pushing the drydock movement are working every minute, and they are getting results enough to make our local interests sit up and take notice," continued Mr. Thompson. "They want to 'borrow' the unexpended $2,500,000 of the appropriation for the Pearl Harbor drydock, on the grounds that by the time the naval experts decide what kind of a drydock should be built here, it would be possible to get another appropriation from Congress."

Edgar L. Painter is a former newspaper man, and an all-around hustler, who is now managing several large estates in San Francisco. Shortly after the accident to the Pearl Harbor drydock a year ago, Mr. Painter came to Oahu, and made a careful inspection of the dock site, so that the information about the Pearl Harbor accident that he is now using in behalf of the San Francisco interests is first hand, and can probably be turned to good advantage.

Walter F. Dillingham is still in Washington, watching the interests of the contractors in the adjustment of financial loss, but with San Francisco very much on the job, it looks as though Oahu might lose out in the long run, unless the territory as a whole bestir itself.

INCOME TAX BLANKS REACH LOCAL COLLECTOR

Internal Revenue Collector C. A. Cottrill yesterday received a shipment of return blanks from the department at Washington and is sending them out to individuals and corporations who are required to make returns under the federal income tax law. The amount received yesterday is scarcely more than half the total number of blanks that will be required, however, and the collector immediately called the department to duplicate the shipment.

Meantime all persons subject to the new statute's provisions who do not receive blanks in the next day or two should make application to Collector Cottrill, who will place their names on his mailing list and furnish the necessary supply as soon as the second batch of blanks arrives. While it is incumbent upon the collector to supply these blanks the taxpayers affected by the new law are held directly responsible for making proper returns, the statute not permitting them any excuse for failure to comply within the proper time.

"The trip was completed in 42 days, and I had the time of my life with my old friend, Captain Peter Johnson, now master of the Matsonia. I managed to beat him in a series of friendly games of casino and dominoes in whiling away a part of the long voyage."

There were five passengers on the Matsonia when she rounded South America. In addition to Colonel Parker, who was accompanied by his nurse, Miss Turid Barlow, Mrs. C. C. Kinsman, wife of the chief engineer, and her little daughter were included in the party.

Frank B. Adams, a millionaire clubman and extensive land owner from the Sacramento valley, was also an invited guest on the trip.

As a matter of fact, none of the persons mentioned were in reality listed as passengers. The coastwise shipping regulations stepped in and pre-

Jealousy the Cause of Double Tragedy Murder And Suicide at Seaside Hotel

MRS. STEWART KILLED BY FORMER HUSBAND, WHO ENDS OWN LIFE

Mrs. Charles A. Stewart and Arthur W. Wagner, the former husband of the woman, lie dead at the morgue this morning, the principals in a tragedy permeated with jealousy, misunderstanding and a mad love.

In the stillness of the evening at the Seaside hotel, while the guests were laughing and dining, the last and the sanguinary scene in the tragedy was enacted. A pistol held in the hand of Wagner flashed for an instant in the light thrown on it by an automobile, then five times in quick succession it barked.

The first bullet, aimed at Charles Gulick, the chauffeur whose machine they had rented, missed; the next three entered the body of the woman, killing her. The last shot he saved for himself, turning the pistol to his left temple and falling as the bullet entered his brain.

Mingling with the sharp detonations of the revolver, the scream of a wounded and dying woman, and the startled cry of guests at the hotel, a little girl's half-stifled sob for protection arose. It was the three-year-old daughter, Barbara, or "Bubbles," as she is affectionately called, of the divorced couple, Mrs. Stewart and Wagner.

Horace Le Gay, only 10 years old, son of Baron Le Gay, answered her

SAM PARKER MAKES TRIP VIA MAGELLAN

Sails Through Two Oceans as Messboy in Matsonia and Had a Royal Time

"I enjoyed the distinction of being a mess boy on what I claim to be the finest passenger and freight liner that ploughs the Pacific, when I traveled from Brooklyn, N. Y., to San Francisco, by the way of Magellan in the new Matson steamship Matsonia," said Colonel Sam Parker, looking the picture of health, as he stood at the rail of the Pacific Mail liner Korea call, ran into the firing zone mindless of the danger, caught her, thrust her behind him and boldly met the eyes of the man who turned to aim the pistol at "Bubbles" and complete what he had no doubt undertaken, the total destruction of his family.

Guests watched the little lad with fear and admiration as he silently defied the father to shoot, as he, by his acts, offered his life but refused to allow the child's to be sacrificed. Their eyes held each others in argument, plea and conflict for an instant, and then the man with a murdered body already at his feet, lowered his head. The pistol rose again and flashed in the light. He turned it to his temple. Pulling the trigger he fell, his body across that of the woman he professed to love.

The man died on the operating table; the woman died before she reached the hospital. Three bullets had entered her body, two through the breast, reaching the heart, and one, the instep of her right foot. The police ambulance was rushed to the scene and first-aid efforts were made to save the woman's life, but it was plain before the vehicle arrived that her life was lost.

She was the bride of Charles A. Stewart, the San Francisco purchasing agent for Theo. H. Davies & Company. Mrs. M. Flyper, as she was known here, met Mr. Stewart on the Sierra, arriving here January 6. They were married quietly here last Saturday. Immediately following the ceremony the bridegroom was obliged to leave for Hilo on business, where he is now. A wireless has been sent to him by his company and he will arrive here Saturday.

Wagner came to Honolulu on the Sonoma Monday night and engaged a small room at the Majestic Hotel, registering under the name of A. Woodward. He was also booked on the steamer by that name. The police have learned that wireless messages were exchanged between the two, Mrs. Stewart informing her divorced husband in such messages of her address.

BLIND-PIGGER ONCE MORE IS IN THE TOILS

Mrs. Alvira Field, a white woman of Wahiawa who is married to a negro and who has had much trouble with Liquor License Inspector Fennell was arrested again last night in company with Joe Enos, a colored soldier, in a raid led by officers from Schofield Barracks, and now faces a statutory charge preferred by U. S. District Attorney Jeff McCann.

The establishment conducted by the woman and her negro spouse has been notorious. At the present time the husband, James Field, is held in jail as an accessory to a murder committed at the place early last year, the trial of which is scheduled to begin before Circuit Judge Cooper next Monday morning. Since his incarceration the ill fame of the establishment as a "blind pig" has grown rapidly, resulting in numerous raids by Inspector Fennell. Eleven cases wherein she is accused of illicit liquor selling are pending in the circuit court now, and another case in which she is charged with selling liquor without a federal license is pending in the U. S. district court. This latter was called for hearing this morning, but was continued until next Thursday.

Officer Gray, of Wahiawa, who watched Joe Enos, a colored soldier connected with the quartermaster service at Schofield Barracks, and the woman last night reported the affair to the officer in command at the fort. In the raid that followed the authorities say they found sufficient evidence to make certain the conviction of both parties.

Just before he arrived, Mrs. Stewart confided to Baroness Le Gay that there was another man in the city who wished to marry her. She said she didn't know what to do, how to treat him. This was before her sudden marriage Saturday. But even after that she is reported to have made

SUGAR TRUST UPSETS IDEAS AT WASHINGTON

Plans of Administration Upset by Action of Latest Object of Attack by Department of Justice

PEACEFUL ADJUSTMENT PLAN IN FIRST FAILURE

By C. S. ALBERT

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The refusal of the "Sugar Trust" to come in out of the wet and be good has proven a bitter disappointment to department of justice officials. The president and other administration authorities are much cut up about it. A serious backset has been given the general idea of peaceful settlements, whereby monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade would forsake their sins and turn over a new leaf with the year 1914.

When the Telegraph and Telephone trust arranged terms of dissolution with Attorney-general McReynolds, and promised to never do it again, a popular impression prevailed that all the big combines would soon follow this example. The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company came along with pledges of reform. Negotiations had been under way for the sugar trust to follow suit and restore seeming competition among its subsidiaries. The dream of amicable adjustment was shattered when the negotiations were abruptly terminated and the trust announced

Senator Cullom of Illinois Is Nearing Death's Door

(Associated Press Cable)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senator Shelby Moore Cullom, a member of Congress from Illinois during the term of President Lincoln, is near death from the ravages of old age. A general breakdown is expected to result in death within a few weeks. The aged senator may live for a month, according to his physicians.

Shelby Moore Cullom was born at Monticello, Kentucky, November 22, 1829. He received his early education at the Rock River seminary, and in 1852 went to Springfield, Ill., to study law, in which city he has since resided, and in 1855 was admitted to the Illinois bar. In 1903 he took his LL. D. degree at the University of Illinois. He was city attorney of Springfield and continued his law practice until 1865. In 1852 he was presidential elector on the Fillmore ticket. In 1862 he was appointed by President Lincoln, with Charles A. Dana, to pass upon the accounts of the United States quartermaster and commissary accounts. He was a member of the Illinois house of representatives in 1856, 1860-1, 1872, 1873-4, and speaker in 1861 and 1873. He was also a member of the 39th and 41st congresses. In 1872 he was appointed chairman of the Illinois delegation at the Republican convention at Philadelphia, and placed General Grant in the nomination for the presidency. Mr. Cullom was a member of the commission which established the government in Hawaii and was prominent in other affairs of the United States.
