HENCULTURE, FOR THE BENEFIT OF THOSE BUYING AND SELLING EGGS

A lot of people who have chickens are complaining, at the present time about low prices. Two months ago when their hens were on strike, eggs were retailing in Honolulu for as much as 75 cents per dozen. Now grocers and other dealers are offering them for as low as 40 cents. The wholesale price is from 5 to 10 cents lower than this. Almost every chicken in Hawaii is laying eggs now, which explains the reduced prices, and there are also a lot of eggs coming in from California, which tend to hold down prices. These last are not storage eggs, but are brought down on the decks of steamers, and were fresh when they left the mainland. Of course they are inferior to new laid island eggs—that is to some island eggs.

On the outside islands eggs are a crum just now at 25 cents a dozen, and the same is true of some eggs produced here on Oahu. But the fault is more with the owners of the hens than with the market. Comparatively few understand their business, or know what constitutes a really good egg. Of course hens that are compelled to subsist on refuse, cannot produce a high grade product. The flavor of such eggs is always inferior and these are the eggs that the consumer soon tires of as a steady diet. But perhaps the greatest fault is to be found in the method of caring for the eggs before they are marketed.

Unless the poultry keeper has his hens separated from the cocks, he cannot keep an egg over three days in this climate and still have it fresh, and a week should put it past all possibility as human food. The reason is that the living germ in the egg will begin to develop during the heat of the day almost as soon as the egg is laid. At night the germ is chilled and dies, and putrefaction immediately sets in, and the egg is "stale." Eggs produced from hens kept apart from cocks are non-fertile and will keep, under like conditions, very much longer. In fact, the unfertile eggs which are tested out of the incubators after being held for six or seven days at a temperature of 102 or 103 degrees, are sometimes sold as fresh eggs by unscrupulous poultrymen, and except that the contents are shrunken to some extent by evaporation, can scarcely be distinguished from a fresh laid egg. In reality there is nothing really wrong with such eggs, and they could readily be used for cooking purposes. On the other hand, a fertile egg under such circumstances, contains the embryo of a chick in well advanced stage, so that it may be easily seen through the shell, and it has some power of movement.

For highest quality, eggs should be collected from the nests at least once a day, and twice is better. They should be kept in as cool a place as possible, and should not be held over three or four days before marketing. Even then they should be in containers which will permit of their being turned over once each day, to prevent the yolk from settling to one side and perhaps sticking to the shell.

The fresher the egg the more difficult it is to remove the shell when hard boiled—and vice versa. When the shell slips off practically whole, it is safe to say that the egg is some days old even though it may be perfectly good. Also the fresher the egg the easier it is to poach. It isn't an easy thing to poach a cold storage egg—in fact it is almost impossible to do so without breaking the yolk.

FOLLOWS JAPANESE WIFE FROM HONOLULU HOME

[By Latest Mail]
SAN FRANCISCO.—In pursuit of his Japanese wife, who, he claims, ran away from their home in Honolulu, taking their 2-year-old child, John Morgan, connected with the Hawaiian Construction Company, arrived here and left immediately for Watsonville, where the woman is said to have been located by the police.

According to Detectives Wiskotchill and Barron, Morgan cabled about a month ago, giving meager details of the alleged elopement and asking the local department to watch the woman. The detectives say they followed instructions and ascertained that Mrs. Morgan had been seen in company with a Japanese dentist in the vicinity of Watsonville.

Fort Shafter Notes

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]
FORT SHAFTER, March 3.—At the regimental dinner of the 2d which takes place tonight in the sixth floor dining room of the Young hotel, the following list of formal toasts will be proposed:

The Regiment. Reply by Colonel Francis H. French.

The Day We Celebrate. Captain William R. Gibson.

What I Know About Infantry—at home. Lieut. Alfred J. Booth.

The Eternal Bachelor. Major H. O. Williams.

Incidents with the 2d at Santiago. Major M. J. Lenihan.

The Battle of Chancellorsville, from cut in front. Maj. Peter E. Marquart, 12th infantry.

Colonel French will preside at the dinner and Maj. Ernesto V. Smith will perform the duty of toastmaster. It is expected that every officer of the regiment not on duty or on sick report will attend in order that the plan of having an annual dinner will be properly inaugurated with a percentage of those available. The committee of arrangements consisting of Capt. B. H. Watkins, Robert McCleave and William R. Gibson, has completed all plans for an enjoyable affair.

The baseball race in the 13th company league at Shafter continues with undiminished interest though the attendance has fallen off a bit for the games scheduled between the teams that are pulling along in the lower strata. At that the tail-enders frequently slip a surprise over on some of the higher-ups, as, for example, in the last meeting between the teams of C and E, when the latter was on the long end of a 6 to 0 score. And the topnotcher nine of D also had a disagreeable jolt handed to it at the hands—or bats—of L, when those two hooked up last. But though the race is close as regards the leaders, it looks as if Lieut. Lyman and the men of D who support Peed in the box for that team should carry off the handsome cup to be awarded the winners in the long series.

New material will undoubtedly be discovered among the big draft of recruits due here on the 13th and surprises may be the order of the day when the rookies get into the game. G company is undoubtedly out to get a pitcher to replace the lost star, Kelley, and the signal corps team is wondering and hoping that a second "Chief" Robinson may come in and stiffen up the infield as Robinson certainly did.

The standing of the teams to include Sunday's games is as follows:

Company—	P. W.	L. P.
D	19	15
C	19	14
Signal Corps	18	12
M	18	11
H	18	11
G	16	8
A	18	9
B	18	9
I	16	7
K	19	7
E	18	6
F	17	5

Mr. Isaac O. Upham of San Francisco was the guest of Major and Mrs. Ernesto V. Smith of the garrison for the week end and, with Captain and Mrs. Charles S. Lincoln and Lieutenant and Mrs. Franklin P. Jackson, made up a supper party for Sunday evening at the Smiths' quarters. Mr. Upham is visiting in Honolulu but will sail for the Orient on the 11th and will later complete a tour of the world. He is an enthusiast on photography and exhibited to the supper party some wonderful prints from his own negatives. The subjects ranged through many lands and included views of the Taj Mahal, Khyber Pass, scenes in Java, Japan and Siam.

Captain and Mrs. McCleave and Captain and Mrs. Bell of the garrison, have sent out cards for a reception in honor of Major and Mrs. Peter E. Marquart. The affair will take place on Thursday, the 5th, from 5 to 6 and will give the many friends of the Marquarts an opportunity to wish them bon voyage on the journey that takes those popular people away from the regiment with which they have been so long identified. Major and Mrs. Marquart will sail on the Logan for San Francisco and their future station will be the Presidio, serving with the 12th infantry.

Upon the recommendation of the commanding officer Company A, 2d infantry, the following appointments are made in that company, by special orders No. 19, headquarters 2d infantry, March 1, 1914: To be corporals, Privates Stephen Pasztor and William E. Bayley, vice Cash, reduced, and Barr, promoted, respectively.
