California Political 'Straw'

If President Wilson and his party have been pleasing the people of this country as well as many think they have, it ought to show in the registration of voters which is going on in California. That state gave Mr. Wilson two Presidential electors and came within a few hundred votes of giving him all the rest. It is a commonwealth of advanced interests are comparatively small, and its people have good reason to be interested in anything which promises to cut down the high cost of living.

Yet in California, so far, the registration puts the Democrats in third place. The Republicans lead, by a significant margin, and the Progressives stand second. The Democrats trail along behind both of the parties which have made the protective tariff system a part of their creed.

Does this look like winning the country over to Democratic plans and principles? Does it show any such gain in popular favor as Democratic leaders claim that their party has made? If the Democratic vote is to be no better than third in such a State as California what possible chance has the president's party except through the continued division of its natural opponents in the country at large?

It is perfectly clear that the Republicans and the Progressives have only to get together to take immediate command of the destinies of the nation and of nearly all of the states, except in the South. With that certainty in prospect they will not long be kept apart to play the game of Democratic leaders and bosses—Cleveland Leader.
