BETTER LIFE BELTS NEEDED

LONDON.—June 24.—Following the Empress of Ireland disaster and the statement that floating masses were discovered in the water "which on examination proved to be people with heads drooping beneath the surface, hanging limply in lifebelts," the board of trade is seriously considering a proposal only to approve life jackets which automatically turn the person encased onto their backs and prevent their heads from falling into the water. Such jackets would prevent the drowning of persons through fainting in the water, which is believed to have been a frequent cause of loss of life.
