creant to the vital interests of all the United States, and especially of Hawaii. I feel that lasting prosperity can only come for our people on the lines indicated in the national Progressive platform two years ago.

"In Hawaii particularly I wish that federal assistance could be given to you for your great problem of road-building.

"It has been my good fortune to know intimately Mr. George B. Carter, who served as Governor under me. Through him I have been kept in touch with your needs and I earnestly hope you can have some man of his stamp and his qualities authoritatively to state those needs and authoritatively to put your position before the people at Washington. In the end Hawaii will doubtless have to be a state and undertake the burdens of statehood, and it is peculiarly necessary that she should now fit herself for the task in every way. I hope that in your system of education you will never forget that industrial education is a prime necessity. We can have a high type of public life only if there is a high type of self-reliant, self-supporting private citizens.

"Sincerely yours, (Signed)

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT. "Francis J. Green, Esq., editor the Progressive News, Honolulu, Hawaii."

MARAMA AND NIAGARA, WITH STEAM UP, WAIT ORDERS FOR SAILING

Ready to sail at a moment's notice, their steam up and waiting only for the word of release from the British admiralty, the two Canadian-Australasian liners, Niagara and Marama, are still in this port, dodging the same position they did yesterday. The Niagara is swinging at her anchor in the outer harbor, and the Marama is docked at Pier 15. Up to the time of going to press, no word had been received by the British consul from the admiralty on the time either of the steamers should be allowed to leave port to start on the remainder of the voyage. Theo. H. Davies & Company were unwilling to make a prediction this morning on the sailing of the Niagara or the Marama. Along the waterfront the belief is general that both the steamers will be dispatched this evening at about dusk.

POLITICAL NOTES

Democratic city and county office candidates went to Koolau late yesterday for a meeting last night. Pauoa, valley, Kakaako and Morris Lane, Palama, were the scenes of large Republican political meetings last night.

George G. Guild, well-known business man and active Republican, is being urged to enter the race for supervisor.

Many of the voters say that Robert Horner should be elected supervisor. He is a business man who has the time to spare for public office.

Wireless news from Hilo says that Kuhio, McCandless and Palmer Woods have all been campaigning hard. McCandless took the steamer Mauna Kea yesterday for Honolulu.

Tonight's the night for the big Republican rally at Aala park. Robert W. Breckons will preside and 30 or 40 candidates are down to speak, the speeches being limited to a very few minutes. A large crowd is expected to attend.

Manley G. K. Hopkins, deputy tax assessor of Honolulu, has come out for the nomination for treasurer on the Democratic ticket. He is opposing M. H. Drummond. Hopkins is campaigning on a platform of efficiency and his friends say he will easily win the Democratic nomination on his present line-up.

AD CLUB READY TO OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR ADDITIONAL PROMOTION FUNDS

bers that every firm or individual in Hawaii who profits through the tourist should contribute its, his or her proportion to the expense of running the Promotion Committee.

"The prepared list has been graduated according to the benefits derived by the anticipated donors. The firm or individual who shows big profits through the tourist travel will naturally be expected to donate more than the smaller gainer. However, none will be overlooked. We expect everybody to do his share.

"The Ad club will guarantee that a portion, at least, of the additional funds secured will be expended in Honolulu, making our attractions more accessible and better known to the tourist.

"It may be interesting to note the amount of money spent in Honolulu by the tourists during the past few years. Of course, these figures are an approximation but as nearly as they can be arrived at they are:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Amount. 1911: $1,875,000; 1912: 2,250,000; 1913: 3,000,000

"The work of the Promotion Committee undoubtedly has had much to do with this steady increase but had the committee been in receipt of larger funds there is no doubt but that the expenditure of the tourist would have reached a much larger figure.

"The Ad club committee wishes to impress upon the public of Honolulu that its efforts are for the benefit of all and that the proper time to strike is NOW. With Europe racked with war the tourist will turn Hawaiiward provided they are advised that they can be given the care and attention that the tourist demands. We can attend to that and it is up to us to do it."

"The personnel of the committee representing the Ad club includes: Judge Sanford B. Dole, F. B. Damon, Ed Towse, J. W. Jones, H. L. Strange, J. F. Child, A. K. Ozawa and Chuck Hoy.

MANLEY HOPKINS IS A CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER

Manley G. K. Hopkins, in announcing his candidacy for city and county treasurer on the Democratic ticket, says:

"To the voters of the City and County of Honolulu: "Acquiescing to the continuous solicitation of many friends and voters of this city and county, I hereby declare that I will seek nomination as a candidate for the office of City and County Treasurer on the Democratic ticket at the primary election to be held in September next.

"Having served as chief clerk in the office of the city treasurer for a period of five and one-half years at the inception of county government in Hawaii, my record in the said office is an open book to the electorate, and if in its judgment the same has been satisfactory, I ask that you give me your support in the coming primary election.

"I make no promises other than to say that if elected I will conduct the said office honestly, efficiently and with the care and attention he people have a right to expect from a public servant.

"Yours very respectfully, "MANLEY G. K. HOPKINS."

CHINESE MOBILIZATION ORDERED ACCORDING TO CABLE TO JAPANESE PAPER

(Special cable to the Nippon.) TOKIO, Japan, Aug. 15.—According to a dispatch received here this morning from Peking, President Yuan Shih-Kai has determined that this shall maintain neutrality in the Far East, has ordered the immediate mobilization of the Chinese army. The troops have been divided into four divisions and will be sent to the Shantung peninsula, upon which is located Wei-hai-wei, the British naval station, and Tsing-Tau, the German naval base. It is believed that this act is taken with a possible prevention of fighting between the British and the Germans on Chinese territory.

JUDGE ASHFORD'S COMMISSION SIGNED

Attorney Clarence W. Asford this afternoon received a cablegram from Attorney-general James B. Reynolds to the effect that his commission as first judge of the first circuit of the territory had been signed. President Wilson on July nominated Mr. Ashford for the vacant judgeship, at the same time appointing William S. Edings for judge of the second circuit. The nomination came as a distinct surprise, it being believed generally that the action of the president was largely due to advice given by W. M. O'Leary, special assistant for the department of justice who recently visited Honolulu.

JAMES O'NEIL NEXT ATTRACTION AT THE POPULAR

James O'Neil in "The Count of Monte Christo" will be the next attraction at the Popular theater, opening a week's engagement with the matinee next Wednesday.

"The Count of Monte Christo" needs no introduction to any audience in the world. James O'Neil, that superb American actor, needs none to any who have followed matters theatrical for the past several decades. A stronger combination than O'Neil and "The Count" is hard to imagine. A strong manly play with a strong manly actor as the star should provide an evening of rare entertainment.

Continuing this evening, Monday and Tuesday evenings, "The Two Sergeants," a military drama adapted from the French, will continue on the boards. This play has drawn record crowds to the Popular during its engagement and has established firmly the new home of Blair's Greater Photo Plays.

REPUBLICAN PRECINCT CLUBS TAKE NOTICE

In accordance with the rules of the Republican party of the territory of Hawaii, each precinct club in the City and County of Honolulu is notified that it must call a meeting for Thursday, September 3, 1914, at the hour of 7:30 p. m., to make nominations for members of the county committee to be voted for at a primary to be held on Saturday, September 12, 1914, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

R. M. DUNCAN, Acting Chairman, Republican County Committee, City and County of Honolulu, Aug. 15-Sept. 2, 11.

HARBOR NOTES

The Mauna Kea gets out this afternoon at 3 o'clock for Hilo and way ports.

She reported that there are 12,075 bags of sugar at Punaluu awaiting shipment.

The Mauna Kea will sail at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Hilo and way ports. She has a large passenger list and a heavy cargo of freight.

The inter-island steamer Helene arrived from Napoohoo this morning bringing as her cargo 9600 bags of sugar, 75 head of cattle and 3 calves.

Reporting a smooth passage, the inter-island steamer Mauna Kea arrived this morning from Hilo. She brought as freight one automobile, 18 tons of ice, 120 bags of corn, 100 bags of empty bottles, 103 bundles Ohia crates, 71 bundles Ohia, 69 packages Ohia, 35 bags potatoes, 10 bags cabbage, 10 crates chickens and 206 sundry packages.

FELIPE ANGELES VILLA'S ANGEL IS OPINION OF OBSERVANT WRITER

By ALLENE TUPPER WILKES.

He didn't look much like an angel nor yet like a fighting man when I saw him for the first time in the little town of Magdalena, Sonora. Slim, silent, tightly buttoned up in a cinnamon brown sweater, there was not a brass button or insignia on him. He had just come from France to volunteer as a common soldier in the army of the Constitutionalists, though he had held the rank of brigadier-general in the standing army of Mexico.

Felipe Angeles was graduated from the Military College at Chapultepec. When still a boy he became an instructor in the Academy and later its president. He is considered an authority on artillery tactics and has twice been sent by the Mexican government on military commissions to France.

Under Madero he went to the state of Morelos to put down an uprising led by Zapata, with the surprising result that the people who fought became his friends and looked to him for relief from the destitute state into which a previous military suppression had thrown them. He was called back to the City of Mexico by the revolt of Felix Diaz. In the capital he faced the problem of defending the city and his president while under the command of a superior officer who was no longer loyal. He escaped assassination because of his popularity with the army, but his protest at the killing of Madero caused him to be thrown into prison, and afterwards sent out of the country.

This is the soldier who came last autumn to offer his services to Carranza. As military adviser of so high an order was not going begging in Sonora, he was made "subsecretario de Guerra y Jefe de Artilleria."

He had not yet begun to play the role of good angel, though there were many poor souls in Morelos who would have taken oath it was his real character. His success in this part became known to some of us on the safer side of the Rio Grande, when he was sent to help Villa in the siege of Torreon.

These two men, so widely different in type—Villa, the one time bandit, and Angeles, the military expert, became the closest friends, drawn together by a common hatred. With Angeles it was hatred of the treachery done by the man in power at the City of Mexico, with Villa hatred of the injustice the class which this man represented had for years imposed on the whole country. To both the hope of future prosperity in Mexico lay in the destruction of the old order. It was only in their methods that they differed, and just here did Felipe Angeles become Francisco Villa's good angel.

"I will never let him leave me," wrote Villa, and the natural leader became the pupil of the teacher.

"Angeles is the most powerful influence for good behind General Villa," writes an American from the border. Says another, "If you are looking for strong men on whom the future of Mexico may depend, keep your eye on General Felipe Angeles. He is not only enthused with the highest ideals of the Constitutionalists, but he has had superior educational and social advantages which fit him for equal association with the best men of any country."

Americans have reason to think well of him, for when our soldiers took possession of Vera Cruz the Federal officers at Santiago, fellow students and pupils of his in the Military Academy at Chapultepec, wrote asking him to join the Federal army in defending the honor of Mexico against the "specter of the north." General Angeles answered:

"Your telegram says that we are on the eve of a race war. This is false. We are, however, in great danger of being drawn into a terrible war by Huerta in order that he may stop by Huerta in order that he may stop the great triumph which will soon be ours—we of the Democratic party of Mexico. If you are patriots, you could with but two words bring peace to Mexico. You could say to Huerta, 'Stop here.' He continues that he does not expect they will utter these words, and he trusts to the greatness of President Wilson, the good sense of the American people, and the patriotism of the directors of the Democratic party of Mexico, to bring peace to his unhappy country.

Just how hard it must have been for him to take this stand against his former classmates and pupils, I realize when I think of the last talk I had with him before leaving Mexico. It was carried on in a remarkable mixture of Spanish, French and English, for my knowledge of any one of the languages seemed to be in adverse ratio to his.

We were trying out a new touring car that had just come down from Nogales. Captain Salinas Carranza, the aviator who was wounded a few days ago at Mazatlan, drove very fast, and as it had rained the day before the roads were fearful. We rushed through puddles and streams without slowing up at all, and General Angeles proposed that the car be christened "Anadja" because it swam so well. We hear a great deal about the reckless horseback riding in the southwest. They drive their cars the same way, going at full speed over any and every obstruction. A gallop across country is nothing to the wild exhilaration of dashing across the desert or up and down hill in a big car, once you have gotten used to the bumps.

General Angeles, who is small, bounded about at a great rate but seemed to enjoy it. Conversation under the circumstances was impossible, but we finally got Captain Salinas to slow up, and the General Angeles thawed out enough to talk about himself, a thing I had never heard him do before. I knew he must be distressing to him to go over the events of this last year, and I have not questioned him. Now we are at the gates of the Republic.

trying to get to the palace in a machine with soldiers shooting at him from the windows and behind buildings. He finally climbed into a milk cart, but the bullets came so fast that milk was soon streaming from the bullet holes made in the milk cans, so he got out and walked.

He spoke very seriously of the problems confronting the Constitutionalists, and was not half so certain of the final outcome as many of the other officers. Somehow, for that very reason, he seemed more impressive, as a man who had given his mind and body to a cause whatever was to be the outcome.

He told me of his wife and family left behind in Paris, then of the boys at Chapultepec, the Military Academy that corresponds to our West Point. In Mexico the age of entrance is younger than in ours. Many of the students are children of fourteen and fifteen years; yet they are brave soldiers, as the world has known since their tragic defense of Chapultepec in '47.

We came back to Magdalena in the late afternoon, running slowly. There was a crimson glow over everything. General Angeles asked me why it was that anything so beautiful should make us grave instead of happy; then Captain Salinas told him of the death of one of the young officers at Guadalupe.

"That is sad, yes," answered General Angeles, "but to me there are some things more terrifying than death. If we live to reach the City of Mexico, I may find myself drawn up in battle against my former pupils. Of that I cannot bear to think."

Perhaps this is an explanation of why I found Felipe Angeles the saddest of all the Constitutional Jefes, though there are many things in Mexico just now to make an angel weep.

JUDGE KINGSBURY IS ENTERTAINED AT SMOKER BY MAUI ELKS LODGE

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence) WAILUKU, Maui, August 14.—Maui Elks gave Judge Kingsbury a most enjoyable smoker at the Maui Hotel last Tuesday evening. The affair was most informal, but one that all the local members of the organization present thoroughly enjoyed. Cards and dominoes were the games played. The music by a local orchestra was exceedingly good and was much enjoyed. A handsome leather travelling bag was presented Judge Kingsbury by Hugh Howell in behalf of the Maui Elks. In a most appropriate speech Mr. Howell said that the local brethren did not give him the bag to use merely on his trip away, but the real purpose of the bag was that he might have it handy for his return to Maui. Loud applause greeted this speech and the other equally earnest remarks made by C. D. Lufkin and F. P. Rosecrans. The guest of honor responded to the speeches. Those present at the smoker were Judge Kingsbury, E. R. Bevin, W. J. Cooper, D. Conway, D. T. Carey, J. Fantom, Hugh Howell, C. Hansen, C. D. Lufkin, Capt. E. H. Parker, D. Quill, F. P. Rosecrans, Wm. Walsh and E. J. Walker.

Mrs. Kingsbury was spending the evening with Mrs. J. C. Villiers. At about half past eleven when the smoker broke up, the whole body of Elks went to the rectory and serenaded the wife of the judge. She shook hands with each visitor and the cheers for her were loud and long.

TRIO OF ASPIRANTS FOR DELEGATESHIP HONORS MEET IN HILO

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence) HILO, Aug. 13.—Politics and war are sharing the honors in Hilo at present. While the big cannons roar in Europe and on the oceans, the big guns of the different political parties are doing some roaring preparatory to the battle of September 12. The primaries will provide some good fighting and the candidates of the various organizations are on the job day and night.

In Hilo last Thursday morning there were three of the candidates for the delegateship. Prince Kuhio, Palmer Woods and L. L. McCandless were to be seen on the streets. All three have many personal friends and they were to be seen greeting people all the morning.

The prince, who came in on the Mauna Kea, having joined the steamer at Lahaina, was in good form when he reached Hilo. He had little to say beyond announcing that he was proceeding to Pahala in order to address some meetings there. It was said that the delegate is going to the district to patch up some holes that have been made in the Republican fence by Link.

Palmer Woods said that he is going to make a whirlwind campaign and that he will cover all the island before he returns to Oahu. The latest aspirant for delegateship honors expresses himself as confident of polling a good number of votes, and says that Kuhio will be his strongest district, although he considers he will poll well all over Hawaii.

L. L. McCandless, who has been covering the island thoroughly for some time past, held a Democratic rally on Wednesday evening.

PALMER WOODS GOING STRONG ON BIG ISLAND

Friends Here Are Informed That He Will Give McCandless Bad Beating on Hawaii

Supporters in Honolulu of Palmer P. Woods were gratified to hear from their candidate that he is having great success on Hawaii at the outset of his campaign.

Senator R. H. Makekua is said to have come out strongly for Woods and to be ready to take the stump for him. Makekua has informed local Woods men that Woods will beat McCandless three to one on Hawaii.

Meanwhile the Oahu campaign is going briskly along and Albert Harris, one of Woods' organization men here, said today that many Democrats have joined the Woods element.

SILVER "PIGS" ARE SHIPPED ON S. S. MONGOLIA

Using a big truck and a number of guards, seven tons of silver bars or "pigs" valued at over $100,000 were taken from the Hawaiian Trust Company yesterday afternoon and placed on the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia to be taken to Manila.

Consigned originally to ports in China, the silver was left here by the Nippon Maru several days ago, on the theory that it would be dangerous to transport further the silver in a vessel flying the flag of a country that possibly would become involved in the European war.

San Francisco banks were the consignors of the silver. Arrangements were made with them yesterday to put the silver on the Mongolia. It will be deposited in Manila to place in China. Since the hostilities opened the price of silver has gone up considerably. The bars were weighed to a hundredth of an ounce, numbered and each one bears the name of the refiner. There are 154 such bars.

Voiles are promised for another season, so say the manufacturers who are planning the styles for next summer. According to these people, whose business it is to look forward a year to the styles, and to whom the fashions of the present time are an old story, the voiles which have been so favored for several seasons have a material remains in vogue so long as voiles have come, the manufacturers try to make changes and improvements in them each year, and it is said that those which will be favored a year from now will be very soft and

MARAMA BOOKING TRANSFERRED TO KOREA

Just a few minutes after 10 o'clock this morning the Pacific Mail liner Korea sailed for San Francisco. A number of passengers who had expected to sail on the Marama changed their tickets to allow them passage on the Korea, as the time of the Marama's departure is very uncertain.

The Mongolia got away yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock for the Orient, taking on but a few passengers here. Several tons of bar silver were put on the Mongolia here to be taken to Manila. The metal, which has a value of $100,000, was left here in the custody of the Hawaiian Trust Company, being taken off the Nippon Maru when the war opened. It was originally consigned to China, but its destination has been changed to Manila.

PERSONALITIES

MR. AND MRS. H. E. WESTERVELT of South Bend, Indiana, their two daughters, Mildred and Helene, and Miss Alice Summers, also of South Bend, sailed on the Korea today. They toured Japan with the Hawaiian party, of which the Rev. W. D. Westervelt, a brother, was a member.

FEDERAL JUDGE CHARLES F. CLEMONS AND MRS. CLEMONS left on the Korea today. Judge Clemons goes to Washington, having been called there by cable messages regarding federal court affairs. He is on a leave of absence the duration of which is uncertain. His visit is believed to have political significance.

RICHARD H. TRENT, who has been contemplating a trip to the Northwest and Canada, left this morning on the Korea. He originally expected to take the Marama, but the uncertainty of that vessel's sailing decided him to go by the California route. His trip is for a vacation only, and has no business significance. It was stated at his office this morning, transparent and will drape well. Even in the cottons it is said that they will look much like silk.

Artificial silk is mixed with some of the voiles and this admits of a variety of stripes and designs of all kinds. Large checks in black and white effects are shown in voiles and one of the novelties is a fabric with alternating stripes in voile and crepe. This will be welcome to housewives who will save in laundry for voile requires little ironing when it is alone and with the crepe weave an iron will be almost unnecessary, but the variety in the combination of weaves will make a charming combination.
