DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE WILL HAVE CLASSES IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE

(By Latest Mail)
WASHINGTON, D. C.—A plan whereby ten or more farmers or farm women can form home classes in agriculture or domestic science and receive the textbooks, lectures, lantern slides, laboratory and cooking equipment necessary to conduct them has been devised by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with agricultural colleges of certain states.

The object of the plan is to make accessible at home, to men and women who have not the time or means to attend the regular courses at the colleges, practical short courses in agriculture and home management specially adapted to their districts. These courses, which will consist of 15 to 20 lectures, and will consume five or more weeks, can be arranged to suit the spare time and convenience of each group of people.

The courses to be offered at first are poultry raising, fruit growing, soils, cheese manufacturing, dairying, butter-making and farm bookkeeping; and for the women especially, courses in the preparation, cooking and use of vegetable and cereal foods. The department will supply lectures and lantern slides covering these subjects and the states which have agreed to cooperate in the plan will lend to each group laboratory and cooking apparatus valued at $100 and a reference library. The textbooks and lectures will be made so complete that each group can safely appoint one of its members as study leader to direct the work of the course.

When a group has decided to take up the work the state which cooperates sends an agent with the department's representative to organize a sample class and assist the leader whom they elect in laying out the work and in showing him the best methods of procedure. The classes commonly are held from 8:00 to 12:00 in the morning and from 1:00 to 4:00 in the afternoon, two or three days each week. The sessions are not held every day, so that the members will have time to attend to their farm duties in between the sessions, as well as before and after the instruction period. The classes meet commonly at the most convenient farmhouse. During the morning hours text book work is done. In the afternoon laboratory work is conducted and the women who have elected to take the domestic science courses have practical lessons in cooking.

As soon as a class is established, the state organizer withdraws to start a class in some other district. The work thereafter is left in charge of the leader, who receives assistance by mail from the college or the department in carrying on the work.

As there is no regularly paid instructor, classes can be carried on all over the state as rapidly as the college organizer can visit the groups, and as quickly as the laboratory sets supplied by the college become available. The local leader will preside during the reading of the lectures and references, for which full texts and lantern slides are supplied by the department. He will also be responsible for the laboratory equipment. Every one who completes the course will receive a certificate from the state college.

Not all of the states have yet agreed to cooperate in this plan. Last winter experiments along these lines were carried out successfully in Pennsylvania, and this has stimulated an interest in the method in other states. In one of the Pennsylvania classes more men applied than could be accommodated, and all of the 20 men and 15 women who began the course completed it. Pennsylvania is now arranging for more classes, while Massachusetts, Michigan, Vermont and Florida expect to take up the work. Other states such as Maine, New York, New Jersey and Delaware have signified their willingness to cooperate.

Ordinarily a college in a state usually applies to the department seeking its cooperation, when sufficient interest has been shown in the plan in several communities where ten or more people have sought the instruction. For financial reasons, certain colleges are not so able to engage in the work as others.

The advantage claimed for the new home courses with local leaders and laboratory equipment over the ordinary correspondence courses is that only a small percentage of those who take

NATIONAL FLAG IS ADOPTED BY ICELAND

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 17.—A band of Icelandic patriots have designed a national flag which they propose to fly not only over Iceland but on all vessels registered in that country. If they had been content to make their flag a strictly local affair, for which permission had already been granted by the Danish king, all would have been well. But the Danish parliament has now taken up the question of the marine flag on account of the activities of the Icelandic "independence" party.

The people of Denmark are of a divided opinion as to Iceland. Some feel that the Icelanders are acting in a very ungrateful way in view of past favors, and others that to give Iceland its freedom would rid the country of a source of useless expense.

Iceland's new flag is of a navy blue field, marked with a white cross whose arms extend to the four sides, and a cardinal red cross of half the size set within the white cross.

It was not until after the state council approved the Icelandic home flag, following negotiations between the

Some Horse Sense—

It stands to reason that if a person wants something—and then reads an ad, which tells just where to get the object desired, a sale will be made.
And Vice Versa—

If a person has something of value to sell there certainly must be some one who wants that very thing.

Consequently—

Since both classes recognize the daily newspaper as the most widely circulated—and read—medium for making public the desires of people—whether it be to buy or sell, the person with ordinary horse sense will
