A supply vessel, was sighted. The liner has assumed a dull war-gray in place of the original brilliant red and white.
With the exception of four days the China was favored with pleasant weather. Captain Thompson attempted to make port last evening but was held back because of heavy seas. The China brought three cabin; three second class and 66 Asiatic steerage passengers for Honolulu. Proceeding through to San Francisco at 5 o'clock this evening are 79 cabin, 17 second class and 100 steerage travelers. Among the passengers for the mainland are a large number of missionaries. The China carries more than a score of children.
The vessel will be discharged of 689 tons of Oriental freight while 1760 tons of produce from China and Japan is en route to the mainland.
About 20 cabin passengers will join the China at Honolulu.

U. S. EXPORTING LARGE AMOUNT OF REFINED SUGAR

By C. S. ALBERT
[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4.—The remarkable gain in the exportation from the United States of refined sugar is demonstrated by figures compiled in the department of commerce. It is shown by this tabulation that during the month of September, 1914, there were sent from American ports an aggregate of 52,290,773 pounds of refined sugar.
For the month of September, 1913, the total exportations of sugar were but 3,324,540 pounds.
The volume of sugar exportation has increased 12 times in a year. This is due to the war in Europe, which has caused the large demand and material advance in prices for the product.
During the nine months ending with September, 1914, but 35,750,000 pounds of refined sugar were exported.
For the same period in 1914 the aggregate of sugar exportations reached 118,866,000 pounds.
The total for the nine months of this year as indicated is but little under the corresponding period of the year 1910, which set a new high record. The nine months' total in 1910 reached 143,000,000 pounds. The entire amount exported during the year 1910 was 152,000,000 pounds.
According to these computations sugar may be expected to establish a new high water mark in the near future, both as regards amount of exportations and prices obtained for the product.

N. G. H. RANGE OBSTRUCTED, IS PRESENT CLAIM

Merchant Vessels Anchored Off Kakaako Butts Interfere With Practice

That target work of the National Guard of Hawaii, and of the coast artillery companies which use the Kakaako rifle range, is being seriously interfered with by the anchoring of vessels in line with the butts is the contention made by officers of the guard to whose attention the general situation has been called several times recently. The guardmen do the greater part of their target work on Sundays, this being the only day that most of the men can give to the duty. The importance of range practice is being continually urged by the federal government, and it is a serious handicap to be forced to give up a day's practice, as was the case a week or so ago, owing to the obstruction of a vessel on line with the range.

The matter of keeping the range clear has come to the front again through the report of the captain of the Japanese liner Kiyu Maru who notified the agents of the line that last Sunday a number of bullets struck the deck of his vessel, and that he was obliged to order the passengers and crew below for safety. While expressing great surprise at the captain's statement, guard officers came back with the Kiyu doing on the range when the harbor master had given assurance that federal and territorial military work would not be interfered with in future.

Collector of Customs M. A. Franklin stated last night that it was the desire of the port officials to assist the territorial military authorities in every way possible, and that distinct regulations as to anchorage would be enforced.

Col. J. W. Jones, the adjutant general, N. G. H., expressed extreme regret that there had been any misunderstanding, but called attention to certain facts regarding the obstruction of the range.

Col. Jones said last night: "This afternoon at 4 o'clock I received a letter from Castle & Cooke, the agents for the T. K. K. line, stating that the captain of the Kiyu Maru had reported that during Sunday over 100 bullets were picked up on the deck of his vessel while she lay at anchor off the rifle range, and that he had found it necessary to order all his passengers and crew below decks for safety. Without commenting on the surprise which this statement occasions, this office regrets that even one bullet should strike, let alone find lodgment on the vessel. Unquestionably the bullets which struck the vessel had floated from the water and were practically spent bullets."

"The surprise, however, is just as great from another viewpoint and that is, that the vessel should be anchored there after the assurance of the harbor master, who called at my office some three or four weeks ago, after it having been called to his attention that the work of the guard was being obstructed by the anchorage of a German vessel in a position somewhat similar, that the pilots would be given definite instructions not to anchor vessels opposite the rifle range, or where the deflection of the bullets might do possible damage. One of the employees of this department was sent to the rifle range at the request of the harbor master to point out the firing point and direction of fire, upon the assurance of the harbor master that he would take a compass to the range and take the correct bearings for the information of the pilots of this harbor, and would, thereafter, give them instructions to so anchor vessels that they would not be in danger and would not impede the work on the range. He stated at that time that he fully appreciated that the work of the guard was that of the federal government in the matter of preparation, and was informed that the firing of the guard was held on Sundays almost exclusively, because of the fact that it was impossible to get the men to the range on other days of the week, and that on week days, particularly at this season, the range would be used by men from Forts Ruger, De Russy, Kamehameha and Armstrong, and the revenue cutter service. Capt. Foster further stated that if conditions of anchorage inside and outside of the harbor became so congested that an anchorage off the rifle range would be required, that this office would be first notified. This office has received no such notification."

FREDERICK MUIR RETURNS HOME WITH PARASITES

Sugar Planters' Entomologist Back From Expedition Through Orient

Frederick W. Muir, associate entomologist of the experiment station of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, returned in the China from an extended Oriental tour in quest of beneficial parasites. He paid but a brief visit to the station this morning, when he informed the Star-Bulletin that the results of his trip could not be fully determined for some time yet.

Besides his work for the planters, Mr. Muir kept an eye out for such parasites as might be useful to the entomological division of the board of agriculture and forestry. At different times during his absence he forwarded consignments of beneficial insects to the territorial entomologist, who duly mentioned them in his monthly reports with statements as to their survival of the passage or otherwise. Some of the parasites were found in the Philippines.
