RIFLE SHOTS OF NATIONAL GUARD ARE DOING WELL

Indications That 1st Infantry Will Make Good Showing for Target Year

Although the record firing of the National Guard of Hawaii was left until the last five weeks of the target year, or rather the last five days, as Sunday is the only day on which the guardsmen use the Fort Shafter range, there is every indication that a large number of men will be entitled to wear badges. Two more shooting Sundays remain and the list appended will be largely added to before the end of the year.

The organized militia course was prescribed by the territorial military authorities for this year. It is similar to that fired by the regulars, except that 500 yards rapid fire, and the estimating distance test, are omitted. This makes the "possible" 250, the classification figures being 210 for expert marksman, 190 for sharpshooter, and 150 for marksman. All who fire the course and fail to make any of these three grades are rated as "first class" as a complete course of instruction firing, in which riflemen must make 150 out of 225 possible, is required before any soldier can fire for record. It will therefore be possible for guardsmen to qualify as first or second class up to the last Sunday of the year, on the Kakaako range, even though they do not get an opportunity to fire the record course at Shafter. The guardsmen may fire the record course three times in any single season, and a number of the officers and enlisted men whose names appear on the appended table have only fired once, and have a chance to make a higher rating this season.

Considerable credit is due Capt. J. M. Camara, recently appointed inspector of small arms practice of the 1st Infantry, N. G. H., for the satisfactory showing. Capt. Camara assumed his new duties when the target year was almost over, and worked out a system that has greatly facilitated the firing. Capt. H. P. O'Sullivan, Q. M., has also done excellent work as range officer.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medical treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.
