

BULLETIN

OLD FATHER TIME, head bent and shoulders drooping, stood on the threshold of the Door of the World. With his flowing beard he hid the quiver of his lips but his eyes betrayed his sadness. He turned reluctantly and looked back into the World, then, stepping slowly, dragged his great scythe behind him. Before the Door closed, though, a little, curly-headed boy came bounding in, bringing with him a new and glorious year. He called it 1915.

There were no tears shed for the Old Man but a great noise rose, all over the World, for its people proclaimed proudly "A King is born; long live the King." And so 1915 is here to stay twelve months, and from the expression on the face of the curly-headed, smiling little youth, those months will bring Prosperity, Happiness and Peace to the World.

But before he gave them this new and shining year the little lad raised his hand and said: "Waste no time on small resolutions that you will break as soon as you have made them, but resolve to cast away from your thoughts Hate and its child, War; and where this monster was made room for Love, and the little things will follow. Then I will give you a New Year which each day will unfold great blessings."

The World acquiesced and the year in the silver and pink of its dawn was given to its people.

Mr. and Mrs. Tenney Entertain.

An elaborate affair of Thursday evening was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Tenney entertained at the Country Club. After the dinner the guests took part in the ball at the club and merrily danced the New Year in and the Old Year out.

The flowers in the table decorations were African daisies, blended from the palest of pinks to the deepest shades of the blossoms, and mingling with the daisies were fluffy bows and butterflies of tulle of harmonizing shades. Hand-painted place cards marked the seat of each guest, including Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. George Collins, Miss Violet McKee, Miss Mary Lucas, Miss Harriet Lucas, Miss Jessie Kennedy, Miss Ruth Soper, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, Mrs. Helen Noonan, Miss Rose Herbert, Mr. Charles Herbert, Mr. Robert Curvis, Mr. Arthur Hough, Mr. Theodore Lansing, Mr. "Kelly" Henshaw, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Argabrite, Mr. Hobie Walker, Mr. Fred Wichman and the host and hostess.

A Skating Party.

One of the informal affairs of the week, in which the members of the Punahou Academy set participated, was the skating party at the rink on Wednesday afternoon. The young folks were chaperoned by Mrs. Charles E. Bromwell, among those present were Mrs. Charles Bromwell, Miss Mildred Bromwell, Miss Ima Woods, Miss Margaret Young, Miss Rachel Woods, Miss Clemence Gifford, Miss Louise Girvin, Miss Mildred Chapin, Miss Inez Gibson, Miss Margaret Hawk, Miss Dorothy Hawk, George Bromley, George Lindley, Ernest Mott-Smith, Stanley Mott-Smith, John Gifford, Donald Ferguson, Frank Winter, Gene Smith, Arthur Brown and Lorin Thurston.

Lieut. and Mrs. C. E. Smith Entertained.

Lieut. and Mrs. C. E. Smith entertained informally at dinner on Thursday evening at the Naval Station for a number of the service set.

Following the supper the guests motored to the armory where they paid their respects to the governor and later to the Country Club where they watched the old year out and the new year in. The party included Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Furer, Lieut. and Mrs. Jerome Pillow, Miss Betty Case, Lieut. Ellis Lando, Ensign B. O. Willis, Lieut. Cochran and the host and hostess.

Captain and Mrs. Waller Entertain.

Captain and Mrs. Carr W. Waller entertained at one of the informal theater parties at the Bijou Theater on Monday evening during the first performance of the Army Relief benefit. Their guests included Captain and Mrs. Norris Stayton, Lieut. and Mrs. E. J. O'Hara, Miss Della Holmes, Lieut. and Mrs. Rollin Tilton, Major and Mrs. M. M. Kimmel, Captain L. C. Mudd, Lieut. Coleman Jenkins, Lieut. George Van Deusen. Following the theater party Lieut. and Mrs. Waller entertained at supper at their home at Fort De Russy.

At the Country Club.

After spending many delightful evenings at the gatherings of one of the dancing clubs receiving instruction from Mr. Robert Couvain the members have decided to disband, and this evening will give a dance at the Country Club. Many of them are inviting guests and it is expected that the affair will be one of the largest of the week.

Mrs. C. S. Bromwell has invited as her guests, Miss Nora Sturgeon, Miss Betty Case, Miss Lila McDonald, Miss Helen Alexander, Major Matthew De Laney, Mr. Robert Couvain, Lieut. Leo Welsh, Lieut. William C. Rose and Lieut. Ellis Lando.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Macfarlane Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Macfarlane chose a novel way to entertain about 30 of their friends when they invited them to a Chinese dinner to be followed by a dance. The affair was given at the Macfarlane's beautiful home on Pensacola street on New Year's eve, and the guests lingered long after 1914 had faded into 1915.

The decorations were in red, the brightly colored Chinese papers and lanterns having been arranged through the house. On the table a centerpiece of Chinese fruit was the only ornament. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Chinnworth, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Rawlins, Mr. and Mrs. George Devey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shingle, Miss Marjorie Froeth, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Campbell, Mrs. E. Froeth, Dr. and Mrs. George Straub, Mr. and Mrs. Robins, Mr. and Mrs. William Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Macfarlane, Mrs. Brune, Mrs. Mary Beckley, Miss Alice Macfarlane, "Sonny" Macfarlane, Mr. Ralph Clark, Mr. John McCrosson and the host and hostess.

Miss Myra Angus Entertains.

Miss Myra Angus was hostess at a delightfully informal affair on Tuesday afternoon when she entertained a few friends at tea. The decorations were in pink and green and were of an effective combination of pink begonias and maidenhair fern. Her guests included Mrs. Edward B. Loomis, Mrs. George David, Miss Jordan, Mrs. M. T. Clez, Miss Jean Angus, Miss Marjorie Froeth, Miss Blanche Soper, Miss Cotton, Miss Florence Hoffman and Miss Vance.

An Interesting Engagement.

An engagement which was announced this week which interested Honolulu society folk was that of Miss Gladys Evans Thomas and Mr. Robert Armiger Young. Miss Thomas came here some time ago from her home in Santa Cruz, California, and has many friends in the islands. Mr. Young is a son of Alexander Young and is well known throughout the islands. His home is on Hawaii though for several weeks past he has been in Honolulu. No definite date has been set for the wedding but it will probably take place sometime in the spring or summer.

Dinner at the Country Club.

Prior to the dance at the Country Club on New Year's eve Miss Mildred Bromwell entertained at dinner at the club. Her guests included members of the Academy set and they were chaperoned by Mrs. Charles Bromwell and Maj. and Mrs. F. W. Coe. Covers were laid for Miss Margaret Young, Miss Clemence Gifford, Mrs. Charles S. Bromwell, Maj. and Mrs. F. W. Coe, Messrs. John Gifford, Lorin Thurston, John O'Dowda and the hostess.

TALES OUT OF SCHOOL

Honolulu, January 1, 1914.

Dear Polly:—The New Year has been here but a few minutes and the spirit moves me to write. I have just watched the Old Year step down from its golden throne and in its place is now seated a pink and white little child and the wide sash around his waist is inscribed "1915." Of course all this is in my mind's fancy, but it truly is a new year. I can hear the horns and whistles shrieking all over the town. The New Year is being hailed with glee.

I felt just a little throb in my throat when the clock struck twelve. The past year has been filled with happiness for me and its face when turned to me was filled only with gladness. On the other side of the world, though, it will always be remembered with horror for the greatest war in the history of the civilized nations opened in 1914.

It really is a relief to feel that the Christmas holidays are over, for as usual they were a strain on everyone. I shared in the bounties of the season, though, for my room is fairly filled with beautiful gifts.

Christmas makes me think. One of the girls who just returned from the mainland related an amusing episode of Christmas week in San Francisco.

As in Honolulu they have the Salvation Army charity box and Santa Claus in San Francisco, and during Christmas week many of the unemployed men secure temporary positions as old Santa. At the Ferry building one man stopped at this post on a cold windy day and evidently it hurt his feelings to see so many coins devoted to charity. At any rate he became cold and "borrowed" ten cents and visiting a nearby saloon satisfied his thirst with whisky. Again and again he did this and the fact that the charity box did not fill quickly did not bother him in the least. But his career as Santa Claus came to an abrupt end. In the afternoon he was seen walking up Market street waving his beard in one hand and his tripod and basket dangling over his shoulder. It is needless to say where he was sheltered that evening.

I received a letter the other day from a Honolulu woman who is residing in Switzerland. She says that the war has had dreadful effects upon the people there, particularly in a financial way. Every day landlords turn people out into the streets because they have not enough money to pay their rent and as a result there are hundreds of people of all nationalities camped on the sidewalks, many of them freezing in the extreme cold. This is particularly so with the young students who have relied entirely upon their monthly stipend. She mentioned particularly the young men whose circumstances have been greatly reduced since Turkey has taken a part in the European conflict. They are Americans whose relatives are in Turkey. The Turkish government is so unjust that only the property of the Ottoman is safe and these young men like all other Americans in Turkey have to pretend that they are Turks or all their property will be seized.

I met Albert Carpy the other day and he told me how the "nature man" story originated. Just because he enjoyed spending his summers in the mountains a newspaper friend of his on a San Francisco paper called him the millionaire nature man, and wherever he goes he finds that the cognomen has preceded him. The other day Mr. Carpy received a call from William Pester, the real nature man, and one of the boys who saw the host greet his visitor says that there was a decided contrast in their appearances. Mr. Pester in his costume fashioned from a sugar bag looked quite different from the immaculate Carpy, whose clothes have the appearance of having come out of an exclusive tailor's shop. Mr. Carpy wouldn't tell just what prompted his visitor to call on him and I have wondered if he offered to teach him the secrets of living close to nature, receiving as a reward for his kindness a share of the young millionaire's fortune.

It looks as though Marco and Fanchon Wolf are here to stay for some time yet. They are teaching dancing aside from their exhibitions. Do you know, nothing would give me more pleasure than to gather together all the young society men here, and give them a few lessons in politeness. I won't say etiquette. I noticed at the army relief entertainments at the Bijou this week there was a large preponderance of men at each of the performances, and all over the theater there were groups of four and five young men. They gladly accept the invitations of the maids and matrons to attend all the social functions, but when it comes to a place where they must pay the expenses for two he usually renigs, and stays at home or goes stag.

Gracious, Polly, the roosters are crowing already, and if I don't get a few winks of sleep I shan't be up in time for breakfast.

Best love,

PEGGY.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Taylor to Return to Honolulu.

After spending a little more than a year on the mainland Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Taylor will return to Honolulu in the Matsonia next week. For the past year Mr. Taylor has been in charge of the Hawaii Promotion Committee's rooms in San Francisco and has been the resident fair commissioner representing Hawaii.

Revelry at Country Club.

There was merry revelry at the Country Club on Thursday evening when the "four hundred," the grown-ups and young folks, danced 1914 into the past and made 1915 the present.

Thousands of brightly colored serpents were suspended from the ceiling to the pillars on the club lawn and while red flowers and green ferns and vines were much in evidence. As the night faded into morning some one produced confetti and as the chimes and whistles were heard from the heart of the city confetti streamers were loosed, while horns echoed the celebration, at the Country Club. There were many catchy songs sung and witty toasts made appropriate to the occasion.

Early in the evening the club presented an attractive scene as many of the tables were seated with merry diners. Later on the guests amused themselves motoring from the Country Club to the Armory and had what they called a progressive dance.

Refreshments were served throughout the evening and at 11 o'clock many of the guests ordered a buffet supper.

There were many beautiful gowns noticed at the affair.

Mrs. Faxen Lishop wore a stunning costume of purple, chiffon over crimson satin.

Mrs. Thomas E. Wall was lovely in apricot satin trimmed with cream lace.

Mrs. A. Hocking wore lavender chiffon brocaded in lavender over an under dress of white satin.

A dainty gown was that worn by Miss Sara Lucas. It was a combination of filmy chiffon and shadow lace.

Miss Florence Hoffman was daintily attired in one of the new ruffled creations. The bodice was a basque of pink satin fashioned with the lace cape and the short skirt was of fluffy dresden taffeta ruffles.

Miss Betty Case was in yellow satin with a broad sash of green.

Mrs. Frank Halstead wore a handsome creation in gray and white. The gray chiffon over dress was ornamented with cut steel beads.

Miss Ruth McChesney wore a girlish costume of soft white material and a wide pink girdle.

Mrs. E. E. Bodge was in a yellow gown trimmed with white lace.

Mrs. William Love was lovely in white satin.

Exceptionally beautiful was the gown worn by Miss Jessie Kennedy, who recently returned from the mainland. It was of deep blue material ornamented with silver beads and touches of red.

Miss Catherine Lenihan was attractive in a blue frock fashioned with the accordion pleats which are so popular this winter.

Miss Lila McDonald wore an effective costume of white chiffon with a white satin basque.

Mrs. Frank Thompson was stunning in a costume of sulphur yellow with old rose trimmings.

Mrs. William Lymer wore carise with trimmings of black.

Miss Peggy Center was pretty in a combination of soft white and blue material with touches of pink.

Mrs. Luther James, wife of Lieut. Luther James, was attractive in a yellow gown ornamented with silver lace.

Mrs. Walter Macfarlane was lovely in white satin with trimmings of gold.

Mrs. E. J. O'Hara was attractive in a costume of pink satin.
