SHIPPING & WATERFRONT NEWS VENTURA CARRIES MERE HANDFUL FROM SOUTH

The bottom seems to have dropped out of travel from Australia to San Francisco, according to advices received today by C. Brewer & Company, Oceanic agents, which stated that the Ventura, which left Sydney yesterday and is due here October 7, will have room for 125 passengers from this port to San Francisco.

To date only 35 passengers are booked out from here for the mainland on this ship. Although passenger business is light, the Pacific Mail's withdrawal has given a big impetus to the company's banana-carrying trade.

Brewer & Company's shipping department has 4000 bunches of bananas offered for shipment to the mainland on the Ventura, and a wireless from the boat as to the space available is anxiously awaited. If the Ventura's hold space is not too crowded with hides and wool shipments and copra, she can accommodate between 5000 and 6000 bunches. Bananas are ripening fast, and growers wish to get the fruit to market with the least possible delay.

The mysterious ship which anchored off port Friday night and sailed early yesterday morning was the Japanese freighter Kaituku Maru, according to Harbor Master William R. Foster. The ship turned back to make minor repairs to her pumps. The Kaituku was off port several days.

From a cablegram received late yesterday by Theo. H. Davies & Company, Canadian-Australian line agent, it is believed the Makura will not be taken off the Australia-Honolulu-Vancouver run at present. It was rumored this boat would be taken by the British government for transport use.

Of this number, 6 first-cabin, 8 second and 92 Asiatic are for Honolulu, also 2700 tons of freight. The Manchuria will not sail for San Francisco until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. She has room for 50 passengers from here.

DIX GOING TO TOW MINE PLANTER NORTHWARD

That the U. S. mine planter Mal Thomas Ringgold will be towed back to Seattle part of the way by the U. S. army transport Dix, due here between October 7 and 10, was announced today by the quartermaster's office. The vessel has been here for a month in mine practice work at Fort Armstrong.

The reason why the big boat will help out the little one is that the Ringgold has not a large enough oil-carrying capacity to supply her boilers with fuel on the entire return trip, which is harder to make than coming down from Seattle. The Ringgold came down under her own power, but was helped by the wind considerably.

Probably the Dix will tow the Ringgold half way to Seattle, and the mine planter will make the rest of the trip under her own power. Her oil capacity is nearly 1000 barrels.

The Dix was to have carried the fire-team for the military tournament and horse show at the San Francisco exposition in November, but as the trip has been called off because the transport could not make connections in time, the boat will probably run direct to Seattle from here.
