TOOK COIL OUT OF MACHINE TO KEEP WITNESS SECURE

McCutcheon Tells Court He Heard Aylett Confide to Scully That Ruse Worked on Poacher Hunting Trip

LUCKY TO HAVE "GOTTEN BY," SCULLY'S COMMENT

"Tabu" List of Bartenders in City Dragged Into Testimony But Questions are Ruled Out By Judge Ashford

Further sidelights were thrown on the alleged conspiracy between John T. Scully and Willmot R. Chilton in Circuit Judge Ashford's court today when H. L. McCutcheon—"Billy the Poodle"—took the witness stand and testified regarding a conversation said to have taken place at the Waikiki Inn early on the morning of June 30, 1914, between Scully, Chilton and a chauffeur named Aylett.

On June 29, Chilton, John H. Fischer and several others went over to the other side of the island on an alleged hunt for dove poachers. On the same day, the liquor board was to have investigated an application by the inn for a liquor-selling privilege. It is alleged in the complaint that Chilton and Scully conspired to "spirit" Fischer away from the meeting, at which he was to have testified.

Shortly after midnight, on the morning of June 30, Chilton and Aylett arrived at the inn, declared McCutcheon. The witness said that Aylett told Scully that, upon the arrival of the "poacher hunters" at Kailua, the coil had been taken out of the automobile, in which the trip had been made, and hidden in a stable back of the school teacher's house.

McCutcheon testified that Aylett said the coil had not been taken out so that Fischer could not get back to town.

"Scully said that he was lucky to have 'gotten by' the liquor commission," the witness added, in substance.

When Chilton entered the inn, Scully said, "I see you have gotten back," the witness testified.

McCutcheon went on to allege that Chilton told Scully he had telephoned to Honolulu to one Luddington, said to have been in the employ of the brewery, and had learned that the meeting of the liquor board "was not over yet." Chilton declared the witness, added that he again tried to telephone to Luddington, but was unable to get him.

"Chilton told Scully that he and the chauffeur had gone to sleep on the other side of the island," McCutcheon continued, "and that the others were scattered out somewhere."

It was testified yesterday that, after the party reached the other side of the island, near Kailua, Chilton and the chauffeur went towards the mountains, and the others went down by the rice fields, supposedly to look for dove poachers.

McCutcheon said that Chilton told Scully at the inn that, while the party was on the other side of the island, Fischer had expressed a willingness to go on around the island. Later, Fischer said that he wanted to get back to town, McCutcheon declared Chilton said.

"Isn't it a fact that early on the morning of June 30, 1914, while in conversation with Scully and Chilton, you were told that the dove-poacher hunt was a ruse?" queried Deputy City Attorney Carden.

"Not that I remember," answered McCutcheon.

On cross-examination, McBride asked:

IROQUOIS CHOSEN AS RESCUE SHIP TO GO TO MIDWAY ISLAND

Late this evening the naval tug Iroquois, which was one of the three navy vessels conveying the K submarines here, will leave Honolulu for Midway Island, in command of Boat-swain Frank Bruce, to bring the castaways from the wrecked American schooner O. M. Kellogg, which piled up on Maro Reef September 15.

Capt. Kittelle of the Maryland announces that the Iroquois will carry mail and supplies without charge.

Eleven days after the schooner struck the reef, the survivors, nine men and one woman, left in the ship's boat. After two days they reached Laysan, on September 28, where they chartered the sloop Helene of Max Schlemmer, starting October 4 from Laysan for Midway, which they reached yesterday morning.

Had they not found Capt. Schlemmer on Laysan, the party would have been in severe straits getting to Midway. Schlemmer went to Laysan from this port three months ago, with his son, daughter and a Japanese. The "O. M. Kellogg" was a schooner 150 feet long, of 353 tons gross. She sailed from San Francisco for Apia August 8, arriving at Samoa August 16. She departed September 2 for San Francisco, and was 13 days out when she came to grief.

Commanders and Submarines in Record-Breaking Voyage Over Pacific, And Sample of Warm Welcome They Found Waiting Here

Scenes at the naval wharf yesterday secured by Star-Bulletin staff photographer shortly after the arrival of the K type submarines from San Francisco. The picture in the upper left-hand corner is that of First Class Electrician Erby of the K-4, with Mrs. Erby and a friend. Mrs. Erby preceded her husband to Honolulu, and the meeting of the couple was a joyous one, as the picture illustrates. At the right upper, are the officers of the submarines. Below are shown the K type submarines moored at the naval wharf.

COOK SEASICK, NOTHING TO EAT FOR FIRST DAY

Then Electric Stove on K-7 Burned Out, Otherwise Trip Fine, Says Commander

All Honolulu is proud today of the big achievement of the K submarines, in making the record-breaking journey of 2180 miles under their own power. The trip is a new record of achievement in the history of the American navy and as one of the officers on the Alert expressed it this morning, "ought to stop some of the knocking about our submarines not being able to go anywhere."

Most of the time today was put in by the crews of the K-3, K-4, K-7 and K-8, in cleaning up the ships and removing the stains of travel from the four big under-sea craft. It was a big relief to both the men and officers of the boats to put their feet on solid land yesterday afternoon, after living on board the plunging, tossing craft for 11 days. The crews and officers will probably "take it easy" until Monday, resting up from the exhausting cruise.

The cruiser Maryland, which docked at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, started taking on 800 tons of coal at 8 o'clock this morning, and finished about noon.

Cmdr. Freeman's Statement. Cmdr. F. N. Freeman of the torpedo flotilla, soon after landing yesterday, gave out the following brief comment of the trip:

"We had rough weather just after leaving San Francisco, but after getting well away from the coast we had only the usual trade winds and swelling sea. The first day out our cook on the K-7 got sick and the electric stove burned out so we went hungry, but after that all went well.

"We have just completed the longest submarine run in the history of the American navy, 2180 miles. The previous record was held by sister ships of these now in Honolulu, but theirs was a run of only 1000 miles and was a coastwise run from Key West to New York, which is very different from a cruise in the open sea with no handy harbors to put into in case of need.

"The engines of the K-7 never stop."

WIRELESS PHONE BRINGS TONE OF FRIENDS' VOICES

Every Night for Two Weeks L. Espenschied Has Heard Messages From Virginia

Every night for the last two weeks Lloyd Espenschied, who is conducting tests of the wireless telephone for the American Telegraph and Telephone Company at the government station at Pearl Harbor, has listened to words spoken into the receiver of the wireless telephone at Arlington, Va. The voice from Arlington crosses great mountain ranges, traverses a continent and leaps across the Pacific ocean, yet it comes to Honolulu clear and distinct.

"I cannot speak to Arlington, because I have no sending apparatus," Mr. Espenschied said, in explaining the wireless "phone," but I can hear nearly every word spoken there. The sentences come to me here more clearly, in fact, than a message over the wire would come from across the street. So clear is the wireless telephone that I recognize the voices of friends, and after talking with some one who does not give me a name, I frequently cable the name to Arlington, after I have identified the voice. So far I have picked the right person in every instance."

Mr. Espenschied believes that there is but one serious problem to be solved now before wireless telephony takes its place as an important factor in the commercial world. This is the interference of lightning with the waves on which the human voice is carried. Five years ago the problem of overcoming lightning interference looked to be impossible of solution, but after long experimentation a method of putting an end to this interference is almost certain to be announced in the near future.

"When lightning interference is eliminated," said Mr. Espenschied today, "the last obstacle to the commercial use of wireless phones will have been overcome. There will still remain one feature which is objectionable in some instances—the impossibility of carrying on private conversation by wireless. The nature of the element used to transmit the voice

LONG BRANCH AS SUMMER CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—President Wilson will not establish the "summer capital" next year at Cornish, N. H. He has decided to spend the summer at Long Branch, N. J., at the former home of John McCall, a very handsome house. He insists on paying the high rent which has been asked, but it will probably be given to charity by the owners, who wish to charge the president nothing.

FILIPINOS PAY DEATH PENALTY; BRAVE TO LAST

Three Men Hanged at Territorial Prison for Murder of Japanese on Kauai

Hanged this morning, shortly after 8 o'clock, in the yards of the territorial prison, Juan Coronel, Feliciano Hirano and Ponciano Colaste have paid for the crime of murder which they committed upon a Japanese vegetable gardener named Wada on the 16th of last June, near Kilauea, Kauai.

Every detail of the execution was carried through without a flaw, less than 50 minutes elapsing from the time the trap was sprung under Coronel and Hirano until Colaste, the last of the three, was declared dead by Dr. Moore, prison surgeon, and Dr. Cress of the Marine Hospital Corps.

All three of the doomed men bore up well. Coronel and Hirano came out upon the platform together, walking unaided. They faced the crowd for but a moment before being turned, and standing there they looked mere boys. Hirano was 21 years of age, Coronel a year older. Hardly four minutes passed after the two ascended the scaffold until the trap was sprung.

Hirano was pronounced dead 13 minutes after the fall. Coronel's heart ceased beating after 18 and one-half minutes. Colaste, who came third and alone, bore up well save for one brief moment when his knees gave way beneath him. He regained his standing position, and immediately afterwards the trap was sprung. Colaste was pronounced dead exactly 19 minutes after the falling of the trap. He was 26 years of age.

"All three of the boys were resigned to their death," said Father Valentin.

Bulgaria and Serbia Now in Dispute as to Which Violated Neutrality; British Submarine Sinks Destroyer in Baltic Entrance

LONDON, England, Oct. 15.—Official.—The total British casualties at the Dardanelles, since the beginning of the attack on the straits and on Gallipoli peninsula and up to October 9, number 96,899. The number killed are 18,957, of whom 1185 were officers.

The announcement of these great losses followed a speech in the House of Lords last night by Lord Milner, in which he attacked the wisdom of the Dardanelles campaign, characterized the expedition as "hopeless" and suggested that the British troops be withdrawn from Gallipoli.

"Lord Milner is an old-time general. He was former under-secretary of finance in Egypt; governor of the Cape of Good Hope; governor of Transvaal and Orange River Colony; and high commissioner for South Africa."

The Serbian resistance has not been able to hold back the German advance. The Germans stormed Zieznik, south of Belgrade, and eastward the heights on both sides of the Ziderska river have been taken. The German attack against Pozarevaz makes progress. The road from Pozarevaz to Gradizate has been passed in a southern direction.

SERBS, DRIVEN OUT OF BELGRADE, NOW HOPING FOR ALLIES' ASSISTANCE

LONDON, England, Oct. 15.—The Serbian army, driven out of Belgrade and pressed back by the Austro-German invaders, is clinging desperately to the heights above Belgrade and awaiting assistance from the Allies. LONDON, England, Oct. 15.—Official announcement is that Serbia has declared war on Bulgaria.

The Bulgarian general staff in a statement made in Sofia and telegraphed here, accuses the Serbians of initiating the offensive against Bulgaria and thereby violating the latter country's neutrality. Bulgaria defends her own action in entering the war, declaring she was forced to it by Serbia's violation of neutrality.

GREECE FORMALLY SAYS WILL NOT AID SERBIA NOW; TREATY INVALID

LONDON, England, Oct. 15.—In a note to the Powers, Greece formally announced her definite decision not to intervene in the war on behalf of Serbia at present. Greece holds that she is not bound by the Balkan treaty to aid Serbia now as the new Balkan situation affects so many other countries that the treaty is not binding.
