UNCERTAINTY IN SUGAR MARKET A LEADING FACTOR

Willett & Gray's Comment on Industry Shows Tendency to Decline

A rather uncertain market is the forecast of Willett & Gray's Sugar Journal for the week of October 14. The journal, which came by today's mail, has the following interesting summary:

Statistics by Special Cable.

Cuba—The entire island: Receipts, 1755 tons, against 5613 tons last week, 2000 tons last year and 4000 tons in 1913.

Exports, 27,068 tons; stock, 236,394 tons, against last year 112,000 tons.

Centrals grinding, 1 against 1 last week, none last year and 1 in 1913.

Stocks in the United States and Cuba together of 506,507 tons, against 532,822 tons last week, and 467,852 tons last year, an increase of 38,652 tons from last year.

Raw.

The improvement noted last week continued through most of the week under review.

At the close on Thursday Centrifugal sugar, 96° test, was quoted at 3.75c per lb., duty paid.

On Friday, without intermediate sales, a speculator paid 3c c. & f. basis for 10,000 bags Cubas, raising the market quotation to 4.01c per lb. On Saturday October shipment Cubas sold to Federal at 3 1/4 c. & f. (4.14c).

On Monday 28,000 bags Porto Rico, part in store and part for shipment, sold at 4.01c per lb., raising the quotation of free duty sugar from the last sale at 3 1/4 c. to 4.01c per lb. Cubas for shipment were held at 3 1/4 c. & f., and from store at 3 1/4 c. & f. without buyers at this basis.

Tuesday was "Columbus Day," and a close holiday.

On Wednesday the opening was dull, with the lowest offerings on basis of 3 1/4 c. & f. (4.08c), but buyers' views were not above 3c c. & f. (4.01c), and then only for a limited quantity, as was shown when the American took 50,000 bags at that basis and then withdrew from the market.

As we go to press further business was done at the 3c basis, leaving the market steady, with buyers at that basis. There is a report that an operator bought a small lot of Cubas, in store, at 4.04c.

It will be noted that the business thus far on the advance has been about moderate, and the market can scarcely be called settled on any new basis until considerable further business is done. The coming week will show whether the advance can be maintained, or whether lack of interest by buyers will return the market to its former declining tendency until a level is reached somewhere below 3c c. & f.

Some interest has been shown by speculators recently for new crop sugars, particularly for January shipment. Sales were made at 2 3/4 c. & f. (3.89c), then advanced to 3 1/4 c. & f. (4.08c) and declined to 3c c. & f. (4.01c).

Advices from England state that sales of new crop sugars have been made to that country to extent of 200,250,000 tons.

Cuba.

The visible production to end of September is 2,532,978 tons, or 27,357 tons less than the corresponding figure of last year of 2,560,335 tons. The receipts of the week are only 1755 tons against 8000 tons last year, although exports are 27,068 tons compared with 11,000 same week a year ago. Stocks decrease slowly and stand at 236,394 tons, or more than double the figure of 1914, which was 112,000 tons. One Central continues to work, and weather is reported as fair and unsettled, but all indications received from Cuba point to a record crop for 1915-16. Visible production to October 9 is 2,536,603 tons against 2,564,335 tons last year, or a decrease of 27,732 tons.

Java.

Our Batavia cable reports the September exports to Europe as 80,000 tons, which rather more than makes up for the July-August exports, which were shorter than anticipated. The total exports of this crop to Europe now stand at 329,000 tons. It will, no doubt, be recalled that the exports to Europe in August, 1914, were only 5490 tons, but after the large purchase by the United Kingdom soon after the outbreak of hostilities, the September shipments made up the large total of 212,546 tons. The shipments to eastern countries amounted to 136,000 tons for the month of September, 1915. The whole crop this season is being shipped in record time, the total exports to September 30 being 755,000 tons, against 600,307 tons and 705,822 tons for the two previous years, respectively.

BATTLE PROMISED TONIGHT OVER NUMBER OF CITY'S SUPERVISORS

No Important Work Accomplished at Meeting of Charter Convention Last Evening

After 40 days of wrangling and infinite settling in its seats, the Charter Convention actually got down to work last night to the extent of taking up the report of the committee of 15 and inserting several "the's," "and's" and "a's" in the text of the first five sections of the proposed charter.

Actual progress with the charter was made at the expense of Senator William Achi, who rose to his feet as soon as the deliberations had reached the provisions for the board of supervisors, and launched forth his commission plan of government in full.

After numerous unavailing efforts to interrupt the speaker, the convention settled back and heard the long speech out. Then they tabled his amendment calling for four supervisors, and the principal work of the evening had been accomplished.

Excitement started at the meeting shortly after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the notorious meeting to which several prominent men were invited to express their opinions concerning municipal government, and where they were unable to speak because a quorum of the convention which had invited them did not appear.

A. D. Castro moved that the record of the meeting be stricken from the minutes because there could be no meeting which was not composed of a majority of the delegates.

W. O. Smith then rose with emphasis. "We need record of that disgraceful and contemptible action," he declared. "We owe it to ourselves and to the public. We should in some way apologize to the general public for the ungentlemanly treatment which the majority of this convention accorded its guests."

"I object to this 'holier than thou' attitude of Mr. Smith," shouted Atkinson, who was on his feet waiting for an opportunity to talk. "I was not present at the last meeting of this body and I had a good reason for being away."

"I said that night and I say again that it looked to me like a conspiracy on the part of the majority," put in Smith in great excitement.

"Get the police and bring absent members here," suggested Achi wrathfully.

Finally the voting came on Castro's motion and it was carried almost unanimously.

Then came a long interlude in which the convention slowly waded through the first sections of the report of the committee of 15.

Finally, J. S. Kaleo rose and moved that Achi's amendment, providing for four supervisors be tabled. The motion carried by 26 yeas to 20 nays.

Immediately afterwards the section on the establishment of a board of supervisors carried without change by a vote of 27 to 19.

Tonight the convention will be held at work all the time, but it is doubtful if they cover more than one section, the next section being that which fixes the number of supervisors at eight. Almost everyone objects to this scheme and has some pet plan which he would like to introduce, a battle royal being sure to start when the minority and majority leaders clash, something which did not happen last night.

OLD TRAM-CAR DAYS REVIVED IN COURT CASE

Attorney Withington Paints a Word Picture of Pre-Electric Transportation

If Mrs. John Doe wants to catch the street car which passes her home at 2:17 o'clock in the afternoon, she is at liberty to send her Japanese boy out and ask the conductor to hold the car for a few minutes while she arranges her hat or "primps" a bit.

Chances are, however, that the conductor would not hold the car. He doubtless would politely say "There will be another along in a minute."

Therefore, if the Mrs. John Doe in question lived in Honolulu in the eighties, she probably heaves a sigh of regret and yearns for the days of the old tram cars which used to heat up and down the streets—and on the sidewalks, sometimes—during the blissful period of 25 or 30 years ago.

Honolulu probably didn't make the fuss that New York did when the last mule-drawn tram car was taken off its streets. Honolulu was pretty glad to see the tram cars go, according to the way Attorney D. L. Withington.

Attorney Withington's story was told in Judge Stuart's court during the first day's trial of the territory's injunction suit against the Rapid Transit. It came out in connection with the early history of the Rapid Transit, and how the latter company had taken over the franchise of the old tram car company, which at that time was operated almost entirely from London.

The tram cars were little and dirty. No bicycle cop ever had to chase them for breaking the speed limit. A man living in Kalihi could board a tram car in the morning, ride out to Waikiki and return home in the evening without getting off the car or changing cars. Which all goes to show, declared Attorney Withington, with what kind of a street car service the residents of Honolulu had to put up with.

Aside from waiting for prospective passengers, the little tram cars performed other humorous stunts now and then. When two cars would meet on the same track, the driver of one would promptly turn his conveyance off the track, much to the disgust of the tired mules, no doubt, and allow the other car to pass. Attorney Withington did not say whether there was ever any argument as to which car should get off the track.

One incident recalled by Attorney Withington—when incident, he said, was related by former Governor Walter F. Pease—tending to show the inefficiency of the service was this:

An attorney boarded a tram car in the neighborhood of Fort street and was proceeding out King street on his way to Waikiki. As the tram car approached the Judiciary building, the attorney remembered that he had in his pocket a legal paper which he wanted to file in the clerk's office. Upon request, the driver stopped his car and patiently waited until the attorney had filed his paper in the court house and returned to the car. Whether the other passengers objected to the delay, Attorney Withington did not say.

Attorney Withington pointed out that the tracks on which the tram cars used to run were pretty bad and, when a car would suddenly begin to run smoothly, the passengers would always know that it was off the track. When the people began to tire of the slow system of the tram cars, Clinton G. Ballentyne, "father" of the electric railway in Honolulu, came to their rescue and the present-day street car system was inaugurated.

Honolulu shed no tears at the passing of the tram cars. The residents here wanted something in the way of efficient service, Attorney Withington said.

FUN AND SOBER BUSINESS MIXED FOR ENGINEERS

The mill engineers now in convention are mingling business and social sessions in pleasant fashion. Yesterday afternoon they were the guests of the Mutual Telephone Company.

Manager F. G. Hummel taking them over the plant. They heard how the company's wireless branch is linking the South Seas, Australasia and Hawaii, and how the local and inter-island services are handled. They saw the fire-alarm scheme, the "master clock" and even the "trouble file," and as one of them laughingly remarked today, they had a glimpse of the nether world when escorted into the sulphuric battery room.

Last night was "Engineers' Night" at the Bijou and every member of the cast wore at one time or another a big red convention badge.

Tonight will be "Engineers' Night" at the Popular. The annual banquet will be held Thursday night at the Commercial Club.
