LOCAL CHINESE MAKE NO EFFORT TO HELP REBELS

Four Hundred Attend Big Rally Held By Nationalist Party; No Attempt Will Be Made to Raise Funds for Some Time

CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION FIRST STEP IN HONOLULU

Shanghai Trouble Only Skirmish, Fung Chee You Tells Hearers, But "Big Skirmish" is Yet to Come; Will Celebrate Saturday

Funds to aid the revolution against Yuan Shih-Kai, which is now gathering headway in China, will not be sought in Honolulu at present and even the local ardent supporters of the republican faction will not attempt to give any financial support to the cause of the rebels until all Chinese in Honolulu have been won over to the cause of the republic.

At the big rally held Saturday night under the auspices of the National Party no formal action of any kind was taken—no resolutions passed or funds solicited. The new plan of the local National Party heads is to carry on a campaign of education, and so win over Yuan Shih-Kai's local sympathizers to the cause of the republic, after which an attempt will be made to raise a monster fund in Hawaii to help to fight the monarchial party.

"China as a republic and China as a monarchy are two different things," said Fung Chee You, the speaker of the evening at the National Party Christmas entertainment on Saturday evening at the party hall on Hotel street.

"The success of republics throughout the world has been the goal for the people of China to look to. Educated people who are not looking for an easy position know that a republic is best for China. The improvement in the past few years has made the statement an obvious truth."

Mr. You told the members present that Dr. Sun Yat Sen had wired to the commander of the Suifu in Shanghai harbor to attack the arsenal during the recent Shanghai skirmish. The speaker stated that Yuan Shih-Kai knew of the plot and ordered the ship to go to Chefoo.

"The Shanghai trouble was only a skirmish," said the speaker, "but the big fight is yet to come in China." Another meeting Saturday.

McCarn Sends Out S. O. S. For One Lost Ticket

"The Missing Ticket, or How Jeff McCarn Nearly Became a Stowaway" would be a good title for a movie version of the thrilling experiences befalling the former U. S. district attorney who sailed last night on the Great Northern.

Mr. McCarn forgot his ticket in the hurry of departure. He didn't remember about it until this morning, when Pursuer John S. Ford asked him for it. As he couldn't produce the highly necessary scrap of paper, Mr. McCarn was in quite an embarrassing situation.

He sent a radio message to friends here, asking them to go up to a certain place and look for the ticket, so the pursuer could be notified that he had really bought one. Mr. McCarn's friends had, however, already managed to rush the ticket on board the ship.

They hurried down to Pier 6 just as the liner was backing out into the stream at 11 o'clock last night. Finding a launch, they got the ticket alongside and handed it to a ship's officer before the liner had started down the channel. Mr. McCarn, however, didn't find this out until after he had sent out his S. O. S. this morning.

LOS ANGELES AT WORK TO ASSURE GREAT NORTHERN

Businessmen of Southern California City Hope to Guarantee Sufficient Freight

BRUNSWIG IS DELIGHTED WITH ISLAND CONDITIONS

Coast Chamber of Commerce Representative Talks of Opportunities for Trade

Los Angeles businessmen are getting together in an effort to guarantee enough freight for the Great Northern to keep the liner on the run to Hilo and Honolulu, according to news from the City of the Angels.

Lucien N. Brunswig, who came here on the Great Northern's initial trip as the official representative of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, returned to the coast strongly believing that trade relations with Hawaii could be developed enough to make the schedule a commercial success.

The Los Angeles Examiner prints the following concerning his views: "With the Great Northern, tentatively at least, linking southern California and the rapidly developing islands of Hawaii together, and the opportunity to capture a portion of the valuable trade of the 'Paradise of the Pacific' at last in the hands of the merchants and manufacturers of this city, it behooves the men of affairs of Los Angeles to be up and doing if they are not to lose a remarkable chance, as asserts Lucien N. Brunswig, president of the Brunswig Drug Company, who, following a trip to Hawaii as the official representative of the local Chamber of Commerce, is back in the city."

"Mr. Brunswig sailed on the Great Northern November 27. In Hilo, which he describes as a splendid, progressive city, and in Honolulu, he was the recipient of many courtesies. He met and talked with many Hawaiians who have a grasp on the economic situation and he studied conditions himself. He is filled with enthusiasm regarding the trade possibilities afforded Los Angeles, and fearful lest, unwittingly, the men of this community allow their opportunity to slip away from them. Said he:

Need Los Angeles Products.
"The people of the islands need our products, and they are most desirous of sharing their trade, now monopolized by San Francisco. Back of this willingness to buy from us are three very excellent reasons: First, they realize the tremendous benefits to be derived from competition; second, everybody wishes to see the Great Northern continue her trips. Unless she carries a certain amount of tonnage in freight, it is probable that her trips from here will be discontinued about May. Third, Hawaii, like southern California, is a tourist country. The islanders wish our friendship and hearty cooperation, so that those who visit us will be sent on to them and vice versa."

"Mr. Brunswig, by the way, started the ball rolling by establishing a sales office in Honolulu and Hilo, which, in a way, is a branch of the Brunswig Drug Company here. With a compe-

NORTON COMPLETES REST HOUSE PLANS FOR HILO TOURISTS

This morning L. de Vis-Norton, publicity representative of Hawaii, completed the design for the new public rest house bungalow which will be erected in a central location in Hilo. The bungalow will contain a number of rooms for the tourist.

According to the plans the home of the publicity commission will contain a writing room, a reading room, a library, information bureau, rest room and a lobby for visitors to the island of Hawaii. According to Mr. Norton the bungalow will be constructed to suit the needs of the tourist, and the plans have been drawn up with that in view. "It will be a place where the tourists can go to read, write and rest. They will be welcome at all times," said Mr. Norton today.

CHRISTMAS DAY DOWNPOUR BEAT NOVEMBER STORM

More Than Four Inches of Rain in Last Three Days, Record of Weather Man

WIND BLOWS AT 41 MILES AN HOUR XMAS MORNING

Is Now Veering in Favorable Direction, and Barometer is Rising Slowly

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless] NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 27.—New York and New England states are recovering from the snow and wind storm which has been sweeping this section. The wind reached 90 miles an hour and was accompanied by thunder and lightning. Telegraph poles were leveled, railroads crippled for eight hours in and around this city, and severe damage was done to shipping and buildings.

"With the barometer rising slowly, and the wind coming in from the southeast pretty steadily things look good for a favorable change in the weather," said A. M. Hamrick, government meteorologist, at noon today. "However," Mr. Hamrick added, "there is likelihood of some rain yet before we can say the storm is entirely over."

For a short period the storm of Christmas Day was bigger than the heavy downfall of November, but it did not last as long as the November storm. Also the wind was much heavier, reaching on Christmas morning about three hours after midnight, the rate of 41 miles an hour. Up to noon today a total of 4.09 inches of rain had fallen during the wet period which began on Christmas Eve, with a heavy thunderstorm. The first flash of lightning that evening came at 8:50 o'clock, the intensity of the storm coming on at about 10 o'clock, and dying out at 11:30. Another storm came up the next morning, beginning about 5 o'clock.

The following figures compiled by Mr. Hamrick will show how hard it rained in five-minute periods during the heaviest part of the storm near noon on Christmas day:

Five minutes .033 inch.
Ten minutes .055 inch.
Fifteen minutes .079 inch.
Twenty minutes .093 inch.
Twenty-five minutes 1.06 inches.
Thirty minutes 1.12 inches.

The above covers the half-hour period from 11:50 a. m. to 12:20 p. m. There was a pause in the fury of the storm from 12:20 to 12:35 p. m., only 0.06 inch falling during that time. It began again at 12:35 p. m. and the accumulated amounts at the end of each five-minute period during the

MAJOR WILL NOT OUST ENGINEER FOR 'BIG FIVE'

Mayor Lane is not giving very serious consideration to the recent talk by various supervisors in caucus meetings relative to the dismissal of office of City Engineer Whitehouse. The mayor said today that there is little likelihood that he will dismiss the engineer without the approval of the entire board.

"You may say for me," the mayor told the Star-Bulletin, "that I have no intention at the present time of putting Engineer Whitehouse out of office. I have favored the idea of separating the engineer from the road department ever since I came into office. In fact that was one of the things that I advocated in my first message to the board, but I do not now intend to dismiss the engineer."

"I regard Whitehouse as an efficient engineer," continues the mayor. "Any one who has followed the meetings of the board and knows of the reports on the various projects that he sends in, must acknowledge this."

Whitehouse smiled when approached on the question, and remarked that he is waiting to see the votes of the so-called "big five" who want him put out. He doubts if there are that many who intend to vote against him. "I consider it a step in the right direction if the supervisors carry through the plan they proposed yesterday of separating the two offices," says the engineer. "With all the improvement projects that are coming up in the near future it is going to keep one man pretty busy taking care of this part of the work."

GERMAN OFFICIAL CABLEGRAMS ENEMY EFFORTS REPULSED, SAY TEUTON ADVICES

Official Cablegrams Declare Attempts to Take Position Meet Failure; Little But Minor Activity Reported

Various aspects of the many campaigns in which German and Austrian forces are engaged are given in cablegrams from official German sources received over the week-end. They are as follows:

FRIDAY.
"German Headquarters' Report, Dec. 24.—On the west front the enemy's artillery fire in some places, especially in the Vosges, was active. The French were also ejected from a trench section on the north slope of the mountain."

SUNDAY.
"German Headquarters' Report, Dec. 26.—On account of the continuous rain on the larger part of the west front there is but little activity. Operations are more active north of Albert, in some parts of Champagne and in the Vosges, north of Sinnheim. On the east front German patrols in the Duesenburg district were successful against stronger Russian reconnoitering detachments. Northwest of Czartarysk and near Berestiany, southeast of Kolki, such detachments were repulsed."

TODAY.
"German Headquarters, Dec. 27.—North of Neuville, on the west front, a hole blasted by the French has been occupied by the Germans. The enemy's blasting at the Combre height did but little damage to our positions."

GRAVITY OF ANCONA INCIDENT LIKELY TO BE HEIGHTENED BY LATER INSTANCES OF SINKING

U. S. CONSUL BRISTOW AT PORT SAID OFFICIALLY STATES YASAKA MARU SUNK WITHOUT WARNING—MAY INFLUENCE JAPAN TO ENTER WAR MORE ACTIVELY—AGED SERBIAN KING, BROKEN IN HEALTH, REFUGEE IN ITALY

[Associated Press Service by Federal Wireless] LONDON, Eng., Dec. 27.—Eighty passengers perished in the sinking of the Ville de La Ciotat.

Yasaka Maru Sunk Unwarned; May Bring Japan More Fully Into War

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 27.—That the Yasaka Maru, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner sunk last week in the eastern Mediterranean, was torpedoed without warning, is the official statement of U. S. Consul Bristow, made to the state department by cable from Port Said.

Consul Bristow, who has been conducting an investigation of the sinking of the Japanese steamer, cables that the Yasaka Maru was neither warned by the submarine commander nor did she attempt to escape when attacked. This is the first official information which has reached the United States regarding an incident which will probably be the subject of diplomatic correspondence by the United States.

Furthermore, it is surrounded with wide possibilities, even to the extent of bringing new factors into the war. It has been suggested as one of these possibilities that Japan answer the attack upon one of her vessels by fuller participation in the war. It is suggested that Japan should send an army to Europe as a summary answer to this destruction of a liner flying her flag and carrying her subjects.

Aged Serbian King Refugee In Italy; No Money For His Room

BRINDISI, Italy, Dec. 27.—King Peter of Serbia, the aged monarch now bereft of a country, arrived here today, broken in health and seeking refuge from the inexorable invasion of the Teuton-Bulgarian forces. He was brought to Brindisi aboard an Italian cruiser and it is hoped that his health will be recuperated here. So weak was he that he was carried ashore.

King Peter left the remnants of the Serbian army at the urgent entreaty of his son, Crown Prince Alexander, who suggested that his father leave the country, preserve his strength, return to Serbia and head the reorganized army. He is in such reduced circumstances that he asked the price of a room where he wished to stay, saying that he had no gold to pay for it.

"I am no longer king," he said. "The crown prince now commands, I obey. I must live to see the victory of my people and the triumph of our just cause."

The aged king presents a tragic figure. Though broken, his spirit is undiminished and he looks forward to the day when the Allies will regain the country now in the hands of the enemy.
