

ONLY NINE BOYS EXCUSED FROM MILITARY DRILL

Punahou Academy and Preparatory Each Organize Two Companies

Of the 228 boys in Punahou Academy and Punahou preparatory school who are eligible to take the course of military instruction inaugurated for the first time this afternoon, only nine have been exempted from this new work at the request of their parents. Two of the boys exempted are the sons of Rev. A. A. Ebersole, associate pastor of Central Union church, who bitterly opposed military instruction for Punahou when a public hearing was given the proposed project.

The first drill for the academy boys was to be held on Alexander Field at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon, weather permitting. The academy students have been divided into two companies of 52 boys each, known as A company and B company. The officer in charge of each company will serve one week, and he will have two assistants who will be on duty for a similar period. Officers in Charge.

Theodore Awana has been selected as officer in charge of Company A, his assistants being John Gifford and David Withington. The officer in charge of Company B is Kenneth Emory, who has George Bromley and Ernest Mott-Smith as assistants.

The next instruction will be given Monday, January 17, at which time the boys will take the field with new officers in charge. In the academy, as well as in the preparatory school, enthusiasm over the new course of instruction is manifest, says President A. F. Griffiths. It is the idea of the trustees of the school to give the course a try-out until the end of the present school year, at which time it will be decided whether the instruction shall be continued.

There are 116 students in the preparatory school who have signed up to take the instruction, and two companies already have been formed. Only one preparatory student was exempted at the request of his parents.

Vertner Lydgate is the officer in charge of A company at the preparatory school, his assistants being Ed Peaper and Charles Hughes. Company B is in charge of Ernest Gray with Douglas Crozier and Henry Deane as assistants. The present plan is to make the instruction at the preparatory school pre-military with special drills by Capt. E. K. Massee, judge advocate general of the Hawaiian department, U. S. A., who has been selected by the college as general instructor.

No Regulation Rifles.

According to President Griffiths the school failed in its attempt to secure the regulation Springfield rifles from the government for use by the students. It may be, however, that the school will be able to secure from the Rock Island arsenal a number of "Craig-Jorgensen" rifles, which have been discarded by the U. S. Army, and which are of the type now in use at the Kamehameha schools.

A typical athletic suit has been chosen as the style of uniform for the students to wear during drill hours. This consists of white duck trousers, athletic shirt and white hat. No specification has been made regarding shoes.

At the preparatory school, emphasis will be laid on setting-up exercises, woodcraft and watercraft. This work will be on the same principle as that detailed to Boy Scouts, but the school wishes it understood that it will not be a Boy Scout organization.

Drills and exercises will be held every Monday and Thursday afternoon. The preparatory boys will assemble at 2:30 o'clock and the academy students at 3:20 o'clock.

HOCHI IS URGING ALL JAPANESE TO BOOST CARNIVAL

Editorial Says It is Duty to Help Big February Event; Nation Out of Mourning

Hearty participation by all Japanese in Honolulu in the Mid-Pacific Carnival next month is urged in an editorial published last evening in that newspaper. The Hochi editorial takes a different ground from that of the Shimpo, which brought up the question of alleged anti-Japanese feeling on the part of Governor Pinkham. Says the Hochi:

"It is the duty of all Japanese residents to unite and help the Carnival, and work as hard as in past years to make it a success. We opposed Japanese participation in the celebration last year, because our nation was then in mourning owing to the death of our beloved Mikado. Our brethren at that time were fighting the Germans at Tientsin, and we felt that it would not be right for us to celebrate at such a time.

"We find good opportunity this year, however, to celebrate, and there are many reasons why we should take part in the Carnival. One of the main reasons is that the United States sent a warship to attend the coronation of Emperor Yoshihito last fall, and expressed warm friendship for the people of Japan."

One Paragraph Omitted.

Alleging that the Star-Bulletin, in its translation of the Shimpo editorial misconstrued the matter, the morning paper today published a letter and a translation signed by K. Hattori, editor of the Shimpo.

In the translation published in the morning paper the following paragraph, translated for the Star-Bulletin, was omitted:

"Governor Pinkham is made a target of criticism among the whites of the community and there are many who denounce the unfair ways of the executive. Many are engaged in the movement to expel him from the position that he now holds. If the Japanese committee will take this opportunity to complain of his partiality, then the white community will understand the grievance of the Japanese against Governor Pinkham."

preme court and back again, was brought to a close, at least temporarily, in Circuit Judge Ashford's court today. After deliberating about four minutes, a jury found Overbay guilty of embezzlement.

It has been several months since the Overbay case first made its appearance in police court where, after a few continuances and a brief trial, the defendant was found guilty and sentenced to serve six months in jail and pay the costs. Overbay appealed. From circuit court the case went to the supreme court on reserved questions, only to be handed back to the lower tribunal for trial.

According to the testimony, three $10 gold pieces were picked up in a Walkiki-bound Rapid Transit car on the night of August 6 by a Portuguese woman. She handed the money to Overbay, who was in charge of the car, with the understanding that the street car company would advertise for the owner. It was testified that Overbay made no report of the finding of the money, nor did he turn it in at the company's office.

Overbay acted as his own attorney during the trial today, but asked only a few questions. At the close of the case he addressed a few remarks to the jury. Upon the suggestion of the court, Overbay noted an exception to the verdict of the jury and moved for a new trial. His bail was increased to $500 and he was given until 4 o'clock this afternoon to raise the money. He is scheduled to be sentenced at 9 o'clock next Saturday morning.

MILLER, CHICAGO ABSCONDER, MAY BE IN HONOLULU

Man Who Left Windy City With $140,000 Thought to Have Started This Way

known as "W. Y. Miller," the same name given when he was married a second time in New York, in 1905. The name which appears on the letter box of his Grand boulevard apartment, however, is Willard Waldorf Miller.

"Mr. Miller was divorced from my mother," said his 18-year-old daughter, Ruth, in an interview. "My mother died of a broken heart. It was his infatuation for Bessie Malloy that killed her. His second wife was formerly Miss Martha Aldrich; daughter of former Congressman J. Aldrich of Chicago."

A few days ago ex-Congressman Aldrich started New York by tendering a banquet in honor of his second wife, Mrs. Mariska Aldrich, prima donna of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, who had divorced him two months previously.

Mrs. Martha Aldrich Miller is a great-granddaughter of Mayor Sherman, who built the old Sherman house of Chicago, and a granddaughter of the late Gen. Frank Sherman. It was while in Chicago that Mrs. Miller No. 2 learned of her husband's infatuation for the Twenty-third street waitress.

"Fund W" Recovery Plot?

A rumor that the disappearance of Miller and the money is a part of a plot of persons involved in the old "Fund W" swindle to recover some of the million said to have been reaped by Miller's father, the late W. W. Miller, Sr., was scoffed at by bank officials in Chicago.

They also laughed at the idea that Mrs. Miller, Sr., had knowledge of the withdrawal of the money. The banks maintain the attitude that it is an affair between mother and son, and one in which they are not interested further than to question the broker regarding his transactions.

Attorney D. O. Dunbar, counsel for the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, denied he had held a conference with Mrs. Miller.

"We do not wish to discuss the matter," he said. "Whatever has happened is of no interest to any one save Mrs. Miller and her son."

Came to Honolulu?

That Mrs. Bessie Malloy Miller had been heard to say she and Miller were going to Honolulu was learned from Miss Carol Osmond of 914 East Forty-second place, by a Chicago newspaper.

"I knew Bessie and Mr. Miller for several years," she said. "I knew they took out marriage licenses in Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois, but I do not know whether they were ever legally married or not. I understand they took out so many licenses because of a conflict in the divorce laws of the various states. I received a letter from Bessie on November 15 saying they were going to San Francisco and probably would go farther. She often had spoken of going to Honolulu."

Attorney A. S. Trude was among Chicagoans who recalled the "Fund W" swindle, the chief Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford, in which were John Fleming, Frank Loring and W. W. Miller, although there was a group of lesser lights, including Dan Loring, a brother of Frank, and Hiram Peabody.

"In this connection there is a singular outstanding fact. Nearly all of the principals in the great swindle, which embraced its victims in many parts of the United States and Canada, were taken by death, either soon after the expose by the government or subsequently.

Some Results of Swindle.

"It was through the firm of Fleming & McLean that the swindle was worked. Dan Loring and Peabody were acquitted, but Fleming and Frank Loring went to trial before Judge Blodgett.

"It was Dan Loring who came forward at the preliminary hearing and insisted that $280,000 of the ill-gotten gains of the concern be returned to the victims. This sum, represented by drafts and other paper, was recovered by Chief Postoffice Inspector Ray when he raided their safety deposit boxes in Chicago.

"Fleming and Frank Loring were given terms of one year each in the county jail and were fined $5000. President Arthur pardoned them after they had served a few months. Miller gained his freedom by his action in turning states evidence. Mrs. Miller also figured as a witness against Fleming and Loring."
