

THINK STEAMERS FROM COAST WILL COME IN CROWDED

Agents of All Lines Look for Big Lists of Arrivals Before Carnival Opens

With the Lurline bringing 53 cabin passengers tomorrow from San Francisco, a capacity passenger list, Castle & Cooke, Ltd., local Matson agents, believe every Matson steamer from tomorrow until the Mid-Pacific Carnival opens, will bring large numbers of tourists.

The Wilhelmina, following the Lurline, is expected to have a capacity list of cabin passengers, and the Ma-noa, due to arrive February 22, the second day of the Carnival, will undoubtedly be crowded.

Although no advices have yet been received concerning advance bookings on the Oceanic steamer Sierra, due to leave San Francisco tomorrow, D. H. Gilmore of Brewer & Company's passenger department, said today he expects a large number of passengers to be reported by radio from the steamer.

Bookings out are light at present, indicating that the large number of tourists now in Honolulu intend to remain over for the Carnival.

Castle & Cooke's passenger department this morning reported only 100 passengers booked for the Matsonia, sailing at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning for San Francisco. The steamer can carry 250 cabin passengers. For the Ventura, sailing tomorrow afternoon, only 30 are booked.

"I am pretty sure the Makura will bring a large number of tourists from Victoria and Vancouver February 23, for the Carnival," said Wentworth M. Buchanan, of Theo. H. Davies & Company's passenger department, this morning. "The Niagara brought us a good many more than usual and the spring travel season will begin up there shortly, too."

Both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific will bring big passenger lists to Honolulu February 21 and 22. The Great Northern is booked full, which means she will bring close to 700 passengers and Northern Pacific bookings are also heavy.

TWO INNOCENT PEOPLE MAY BE IN PRISON HERE

Documents From Philippines May Lead to Pardon or New Trial; Had Another Wife

If documents which recently arrived here in a letter from the Philippines prove to be authentic, the case of Malicio Pacaro and Benigna Dagoma, who are now serving sentence in Oahu prison, may be reopened, District Attorney Horace W. Vaughan said today.

Malicio was convicted of a statutory offense, while Benigna was sent to prison for bigamy. The complainant was Pasqual Dagoman, who alleged that his wife, Benigna, had run off with and married Malicio without having first secured a divorce.

According to the attorney for the defendants, the letter which has been received shows that when Pasqual married Benigna the marriage was illegal, therefore making the latter's marriage with Malicio a legal one, and not holding Benigna open to having committed bigamy.

"If the attorney for the defendants can convince me that the documents in the letter are authentic, I shall be glad to reopen the case, and either the sentence set aside or have the man and woman pardoned," says District Attorney Vaughan.

FINAL SERVICES FOR MR. STACKER THIS AFTERNOON

Well Known Newspaperman Died Yesterday After Illness of Many Months

Funeral services for James Thompson Stacker were to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the family residence in King street, under the direction of the First Church of Christ, Scientist. The remains were to be cremated.

Mr. Stacker, who had been a resident of Hawaii for about 26 years, and who was one of the best known newspaper and advertising men in the territory, died at his home in King street shortly before noon yesterday, following an illness which had lasted for several months. The illness was the result of a complication of diseases which kept Mr. Stacker confined to his bed much of the time.

Mr. Stacker survived his wife by less than a month, Mrs. Stacker having died on January 11, this year, following an illness which lasted just one week. Mrs. Stacker was Mary Kelley, the couple having been married in Honolulu.

James Thompson Stacker was born in New York city in 1855, and received his early education in the schools of that city. He had a leaning toward things literary and, when about 33 years old, came West, locating in Walla Walla, Wash., where he worked for several years as a reporter on the daily papers.

Leaving Walla Walla, Mr. Stacker bought an interest in a small newspaper in Port Townsend, Washington, which he finally sold. For the next few years he remained in newspaper work on the Pacific coast, and then drifted into Canada, where he resumed his literary efforts in Montreal.

Here 26 Years Ago. He came to Hawaii 26 years ago, becoming identified with the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company and later with the Hawaiian Hardware Company. When the latter company stopped business, Mr. Stacker again entered the journalistic field and did general reporting work on the local papers.

In the early 90's he became editor of the Evening Bulletin, owned by A. V. Gear and B. L. Finney, and later became editor of the Hawaii Herald, a feature of which was the "Coffee Shop," maintained by him in which men and events were discussed with more freedom and lightness than might be expected in the editorial columns.

Returning to Honolulu several years later, Mr. Stacker became advertising manager for the Advertiser. He had shown cleverness in this line while bookkeeper for the Hawaiian Hardware Company, and his promotion was looked upon as a worthy one. He was associated with the Advertiser until the day of his death, although he practically gave up the advertising management, owing to failing health, about a year ago.

He is survived by two daughters, Miriam C. and Ruth Wayson Stacker, and by two sons, Edward T. and Samuel K., the former residing on the coast, the latter in school here. Other than these, he has no known living relatives.

Wanted, a Baby! See Walter Doyle at Bijou Tonight

J. Walter Doyle, though not a family man, wants a baby. He is not particular whether it is a boy or a girl, but it must be a haole and not more than two or three months old. Furthermore, it must be at the Bijou theater tonight by 7 o'clock.

The baby has a small but important role in the sketch that Allen Duane and Edna Keeley are putting on for the first time here. They have been married but a year, in the playlet, hence it is quite essential. Manager Doyle insists that the baby be of a discreetly young age. He tried the police matron today but without results, as the candidates at the station were not suitable.

"A late 1915 model will do, but a 1916 model will be better, and the Klaxon is really not necessary as equipment," said Doyle this afternoon. So it is probable that tonight some Honolulu infant will be seen for the first time on any stage.

The case of Ah Poi, charged with having opium in possession, is scheduled to go to trial in federal court at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.
