

PRIMARY RESULT SATISFACTORY TO KUHIO'S FRIENDS

Say Prince Will Be Strong When G. O. P. Convention Meets Next Month

Delegate Kuhio's political associates expressed the belief this morning that the Kuliotes will have little difficulty in controlling the Republican territorial convention if any issue arises that promises a fight. This opinion is an aftermath of the primary election on Saturday of delegates to the convention next month, which in turn will name the delegates to the national convention. The primary on Saturday was quiet and almost featureless. The seventh of the fourth elected a ticket which is regarded as pro-Kuhio, some of Chairman Andrews' friends being among the defeated. The sixth of the fourth named four out of its allotment of five a tie being registered for fifth, while the fourteenth of the fifth elected a "straight ticket," which will probably be for Kuhio in the event of a fight.

Few Contests. Except for these precincts there were no contests on Oahu, the fourth of the fourth having eliminated its prospective competitor by the withdrawal of all but the requisite number.

The talk of a possible fight in the convention is vague. For some time there have been rumors that the rivalry between the Kuhio and the Rice factions in the last territorial primary campaign has not been entirely eliminated and that it may break out again at this convention, but nothing definite has come to the surface. The Kuhio men have consistently said that they will not "start anything" against Rice. The issue, if it arises, is likely to come in the selection of delegates to the national convention. Both the prince and Senator Rice are candidates for places on the Hawaii delegation.

Whether there will be two, four or six delegates named by Hawaii is a question still in the air. It is recognized that if only two are named the fight for places is likely to be much fiercer than if there are four or six positions.

In the sixth precinct of the fourth district last Saturday a tie vote for one of the territorial convention delegates must be settled by action of the chief. The precinct is entitled to five seats in the territorial convention. The following delegates were elected: Joe Ale, George Kawai, John Pau and John P. Mendola.

Thomas E. Saffrey and John Kauiua were for the fifth place, each getting two votes. Notice has been issued by the club that its officers and the delegates named will meet at the Kapaemahu stables at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow to settle the tie. The meeting is a special one.

Steamer mails this week will bring the list of delegates from the outside islands. It is expected that the strength will not be impaired by the results there.

Chairman H. W. Breckons of the territorial committee, who is a member of the committee on convention arrangements, announced this morning that the convention will be held in the Skating Rink, upper Fort Street.

L. Castle, asked about a rumor concerning his name with the national committee's position, said today that he is not a candidate for the honor and knows nothing about the matter.

If, in any, excitement attended the Republican primary election held in Honolulu last Saturday to select delegates to the big territorial convention. Contests existed in only two precincts. Prior to Saturday there was a contest in the fourth of the fourth, this having been eliminated by the adoption of a harmony program.

Of the 28 precincts, 22 nominated their candidates to the convention. Those elected in the seventh of the fourth, and the number of votes they received, were William P. Paukalo, William Harbottle, 25; George Kapaemahu, 22; and James Auld, Jr., 22. Those defeated were Peter Baron, six; J. W. Cohen, five, and Clifford Spitzer, four.

The election in the 14th of the fifth ward on a straight ticket as follows: D. L. Akwai, William H. Crawford, Peter Kahlamoe, D. P. Kauhili, James

MYSTERIOUS FIRE DESTROYS PURDUE ARMORY; LOSS $20,000

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—The three-inch field gun of Battery B of Purdue University, 100 Krag rifles and 7000 rounds of ammunition of the Purdue Cadet Corps were destroyed by fire when the Purdue armory was burned. The cause of the fire has not been determined. The total loss is estimated at $20,000. The cadet equipment was the property of the United States. The armory was one of the first buildings at Purdue and was formerly used as a gymnasium.

AUTOISTS HAVE LONG, DRY RUN.

WINSTED, Conn.—The popular automobile touring route from Winsted to Pittsfield, Mass., a distance of about 70 miles, is fast going "dry," and motorists passing through this gateway to the heart of the Berkshires next season may find Winsted is the last "watering station" before they reach Pittsfield.

PORTION OF CITY LIKE TINDER BOX, ONLY DECLARES

From all accounts your fire department is very satisfactory. I intend to have a chat with Chief Thurston before I leave.

There are certain districts in your city where more water is needed. There is also a pronounced fire hazard in your Chinese quarter. What impresses me greatly is that the Orientals have no fires in their houses, but do their cooking in sheds in the back. Perhaps that accounts for so few fires, although the buildings are like tinder boxes.

How to Reduce Rates. "In the main portion of Honolulu I should say your fire hazard is less than in many cities of similar size on the mainland. Your buildings are very open, with frequent breaks. I think Honolulu is well abreast of the times in putting up fireproof buildings in the business section. Two-supply sprinkler systems would reduce insurance rates here materially.

Your city should have an absolutely up to date fire department with plenty of extra hose. Honolulu is in the position of a beleaguered city as concerns a conflagration. Help cannot be called in from outside municipalities.

You have the entire ocean to pump from. Every modern seaport city should have an auxiliary salt-water system for use in conflagrations only. I see no reason why a fire tug, paid for and maintained by the territory, should not also be purchased to protect the waterfront and shipping.

THOUSANDS OF FILIPINOS TO BE CITIZENS

be added to the poll lists as a result of the opinion delivered Saturday that they are eligible to citizenship, in the belief of J. M. Stainback, attorney-general. "They still have to pass the necessary examinations and answer to other qualifications, which will keep the majority of them from naturalization," he declared.

Questioned as to his opinion of the legal soundness of the decision, he replied, "I have not examined it thoroughly, but I believe it is in accord with numerous other decisions on record and is sound."

"It seems to me that this decision is a sort of boomerang for some of those who have been attacking the governor," declared Brig.-Gen. Samuel I. Johnson at the capitol this morning. "At any rate, the Filipino members of the guard can be fed at territorial expense now, with no legal grounds for complaint."

Governor Pinkham was standing nearby at the time, but said not a word—only smiled.

Satisfaction with the decision of Judge Clemons, in that it shows local Japanese where they stand, and gives them a chance to appeal to the supreme court of the United States if they care to do so, is expressed by Paul Steel, citizenship secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

"I do not care to enter into the justice of the decision," says Steel, "but I do feel that it has focused the whole question, even more perhaps than if the question had been decided in favor of Osawa. I think that it is only a matter of time until the supreme court will be called upon to decide the whole issue, and this case is likely to hasten that time."

"Japanese with whom I have come in contact have not paid as much attention to the question as might have been supposed, but no doubt will be interested in the decision of a supreme court."

FANCY DRESS BALL IS MAUI POLO CLUB PLAN DURING ANNUAL MEET

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence.] WAILUKU, March 26.—Plans are now on foot for the annual fancy dress ball of the Maui Racing Association, which will be given probably early in May. The affair is to be made coincident with the first polo contest of the season, which is to be played on the new Keahua field, and will be one of the most important society events of the year.

The polo game will be between the Oahu and Maui teams. The local team is already practicing hard, and has full confidence of being able to carry off the honors particularly with the splendid new grounds to practise upon. Experts who have seen the field claim that there is nothing equal to it in the way of a polo field east of New York. The stables, which will accommodate 40 horses in 16x16 foot box stalls, are something like those of the Coronado club.

WHISKY "ARF AND 'ARF"

LONDON, Eng.—The Daily Mail says: "The liquor control board is contemplating allowing the dilution of spirits by 50 per cent of water. PLEADS GUILTY TO SEVEN GROSS CHEAT CHARGES

Bright Posed as Governor's Son, Clerk, Detective and Policeman in His Time

If one charge of gross cheat is worth three months in jail, what will seven charges be worth?

This was the problem which young John Bright, Hawaiian, figured over on his fingers Saturday morning as Judge Monsarrat started down the list opposite his name on the calendar, and if he hasn't got the answer yet, he will study it out through practical analysis.

John is said by officers to be the biggest possibility in the gross cheat line in Hawaii, and by the time he got through confessing his sins to the judge Saturday morning he had probably come to some such conclusion himself.

Officers say that other charges could have been brought against him, but that they felt these seven would be enough to start with.

Said Governor's Son. Bright began his notorious career when he came to the city from Hawaii. He told people here that he was a son of Governor Baker of Hilo, and took luxurious apartments at a downtown hotel.

Though brief, his joy in that short span glittered with wine, woman and song, and with auto rides that often lasted until morning. John served time for that little deception, and again created the air of freedom. He returned to Hawaii, and had scarcely set foot on the strand of his native island when he began again. This time he was Capt. Arthur McDuffie of the Honolulu police, and as such ran bills on Japanese and Chinese hotel keepers, and borrowed money recklessly.

Following his term in jail, Bright returned to Honolulu, posing as a police officer in Nuuanu valley, was arrested, served time, and was again arrested for a similar stunt on the other side of the island.

Posed as County Clerk. Finally Bright decided to become county clerk of Hawaii. Mere detective and police life was too tame for him. He bargained with a resident of Prospect street for a beautiful home there, bought on credit a large number of dishes from A. V. Peters, and told a young Hawaiian girl on Iolani street that he would marry her.

But one of those rough places that lie in the course of true love came along in the shape of police officers on the eve of the wedding, and John remained a bachelor. His mornings, which he had previously spent at a telephone in a local hotel, calling up imaginary businessmen, were now spent in the grim corridors of the city jail.

Bright was patient. He served his time and came out again to the open air. He went to Waianae then, posed as a member of the police force, and became the toast of the town. Hawaiian families killed fat porkers and pounded out many a feast of poi for him, until at last the life grew too tame, and he decided to leave.

Told Friends to Wait. He told some of his closest friends to wait one night at the depot for him, that he would come in a machine to get them. The friends waited all night, and John walked through Waianae gap and settled down in Leliehua. Deputy Sheriff Piemer captured him in the Wahiawa district, but Bright was given a suspended sentence.

Then John took a horse and started to Honolulu, coming as far as the pumping station. Here he grew fearful of officers, and took the horse back to Red Hill, where he left it, coming in to town on foot.

In the Kaimuki district the gay detective posed again as a police officer, and fished $8.50 from a Chinaman on the ground that he had a salary of $90 a month.

"I am going to build a fine residence on 12th avenue," Bright told the gullible Chinese, "and you shall come to see me."

Started for Kaneohe. But he never carried out his promise, for the next day he went to Manoa, again as an officer, again using his old tricks. After a short stay in the valley, he took a horse from a man named Silva, and left for Kaneohe side.

On March 10 he returned to Honolulu, this time canvassing Makiki and Punahou districts, with the same old game—detective officer and police man. He whined away his time between Honolulu and Schofield Barracks where he had friends in the 25th Infantry.

Finally he came back here to settle down, rented a newly furnished room and began to dream new dreams of Honolulu districts he had not visited. One day when he was out in a fine red sweater for a morning stroll the detectives got him. He pleaded guilty to each of the seven charges on Saturday.

ANOTHER GAS OUTRAGE AND SUBMARINE HORROR

LONDON, Eng.—An official report has been made to the admiralty of an incident in the Mediterranean, in which a dead Texas mule, floating feet upward, was mistaken for a submarine. An allied patrol vessel gave chase and eventually fired a shell into the supposed U boat. The official report concludes: "On being hit the enemy retaliated with poisonous gasses."

HEALTH COMMITTEE FAVORS LEPROSARIUM FOR MAINLAND U. S.

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless.] WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—The senate committee on public health has decided to report favorably on the bill to establish a national leprosarium and a home for the lepers of the United States.

The idea of a national leprosarium in Hawaii is strongly opposed by Governor Pinkham, Delegate Kuhio and Dr. J. S. B. Pratt, president of the board of health. Although they are not inclined to talk freely on the project they intimate that they are not in favor of it, and do not feel that Hawaii should be selected for the establishment of a leprosarium.
