INTEREST GROWS STEADILY IN BABY WEEK; ATTENDANCE LARGE

Usefulness of Examinations Already Shown in Attention Called to Afflictions

With from 600 to 800 people daily attending the Baby Week activities at its headquarters, Palama Settlement, the men and women who are putting weeks of hard work into the preliminaries and the actual duties of the week itself, declare that the idea has been abundantly justified.

No better argument for the permanent baby welfare station demanded by the workers behind Baby Week is required than the fact that during the examinations yesterday, two slight curvatures of the spine, one bad case of eczema and one case of beriberi were discovered in the sixty-odd babies examined. And it is a singular fact that all of these cases occurred in families in comfortable circumstances. The truth of the matter is that there are so many things that can happen to a baby that unless a thorough examination such as is being given in this scoring contest is given to babies, some ailments or affliction may be present in a baby with a possibility of escaping notice until the defect is aggravated and perhaps permanent injury results.

To Save Lives. "A permanent child welfare station is in fact a baby life-saving station," said James A. Rath, head worker at Palama, yesterday, "and it is the only solution of this high mortality in children problem."

The test for each period of a child's age, divided into six months' intervals, is standard, and the idea is to see whether a baby or child of a certain age reaches or falls behind standard. Play objects, pictures, questions and answers, articles contained in the home, paper and pencil for children, old enough to use them and draw crude representations, are all used in these tests, and the advancement of the mentality of each child is gauged by the alertness with which he satisfies the requirements of the standard of his age.

Babies Very Young.

The age of the babies examined yesterday was on the average considerably less than the average age of the babies examined Monday. This helped to make the examinations more difficult and more trying to the physicians, nurse, and volunteer helpers, as the helpless little infants couldn't understand any of the things being done to them, nor the instruments with which tests and measurements are made. It was amusing to see some little boy or girl of three or four years take pity on a baby some months younger who was crying and say to it: "Don't cry baby, nobody hurt you."

A somewhat discouraging feature to those who are promoting Baby Week is the fact that under the limitations only about 300 babies can be examined during the week. Recognizing this fact at the outset, a rule was made that only those babies could be examined who were previously registered. Some were turned away yesterday, while some 20 were registered and allowed to go through to take the places of those who were registered for examination yesterday and didn't show up for some reason or other. Twice the number could be cared for, if enough physicians could be secured to give their services, so as to fill in the morning hours as well as the afternoon. All the other divisions of the work could be proceeded with if only the services of physicians were at all times available. With some 50 physicians in Honolulu, it seems as if this could be done, and perhaps the results of this week's campaign will arouse sufficient interest to make it possible in succeeding years to enlist more physicians in the work. Here again is argument for the permanent station. For among the 8000 babies under six years in Honolulu, only 300 will be examined, or less than 4 per cent.

Attendance Large. The total attendance is an encouraging fact for the promoters of the movement. There were 650 counted Monday, and 688 up to 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

Every chair was filled at both the feeding and the cleaning demonstrations given in the gymnasium by Miss Dewar each afternoon. Miss Dewar comes from the Kaulaolani Children's Hospital. Another lecture which attracted much interest, and at which the big kindergarten room where the lecture was held, was filled to overflowing, was that given by Miss Jessie Rae of Pacific Sanitarium. Lectures Translated.

This afternoon, translations of these and other lectures will be given at the settlement house. Real live babies are used in the demonstrations, but the afternoon lectures cannot be understood by the various nationalities represented without translation. Dr. Morf's lecture yesterday afternoon on "Care of Child at Birth and After" was attentively listened to by a large crowd.

There have been several changes in the evening lecture topics, caused by the sudden departure of Dr. A. N. Sinclair for the mainland. Dr. Sinclair was planning to conduct all these lectures himself, but on his departure a number of speakers had to be gotten to fill his place, and those using the different languages could not be secured on the evenings scheduled for that language in the program already printed.

Monday night's lecture, announced to be in English, was really in Portuguese; last evening's lecture in Chinese instead of Japanese; tonight's is in Hawaiian instead of Chinese; and Thursday's will be in English. Don't fail to see the Baby Week exhibits yourself!

'BABIES SAFER AT PALAMA THAN OTHER PLACES'

A physician connected with the Baby Week activities at Palama Settlement made the following statement today, in emphatic refutation of reports heard for the last day or two. "It is said that mothers who bring their babies to Palama for examination will be exposing them to danger of infection. The facts are that in any crowd a child is exposed to such danger, but in these examinations the danger is reduced to a minimum. We exclude at once babies with any sign of infectious disease or ailment, and the ventilation is splendid. These two things make it safer to bring a child to Palama this week than to take it on a crowded car, in a moving-picture house, in a street-crowd or in any room where there is a miscellaneous gathering of people.

"The babies brought to Palama this week are the finest, healthiest specimens in the city, with a few exceptions. The youngsters are nearly all

MISS AGNES COLLINS DOES SPLENDID WORK FOR BABY WEEK TESTS

Baby Week officials consider themselves very fortunate in having the assistance each day of Miss Agnes Collins, head nurse at the Queen's hospital, and graduate of Columbia university, in charge of the mental test being given to all babies entered in the contests. The test used is that worked out in the psychology department of Columbia university about eight years ago, which has since been adopted in dozens of hygienic and demography conventions, and other gatherings where it was desired to test mental alertness or retarding.
