

JUDGE OPPOSES SUGGESTION OF BIG BOND ISSUE

"Might as Well Dump Money Into Ocean," Ashford Declares in Criticism

Circuit Judge Clarence W. Ashford does not agree with Mayor John C. Lane in the latter's suggestion for a $750,000 bond issue for improving and maintaining Honolulu's highways. He is strenuously opposed to any such project, according to a written statement which he has given to the Star-Bulletin.

The statement is as follows: "There are some brain-pans in which should a second idea clamor for admission, it would find 'standing room only.' I observe that certain of the braineries of the local government aggregation have been invaded (and, of course, fully occupied) by the alleged idea that we should have a bond issue—mark the sum—$750,000 as a fund for the reconstruction of our highways.

"If anyone should 'move an amendment' to make it read $1000 either more or less, the attempt to assimilate the new idea involved would throw some of our statesmen's intellects out of gear. But on the merits of the proposition we might as well dump that much of our wealth into the ocean, as to place it at the disposal of the present aggregate of incompetents for disbursement.

"I'll have something more to say upon this phase of impending municipal insanity if there shall be any considerable development of the ailment."

REQUESTS ADDITIONAL ARGUMENT IN TEST OF ACCIDENT LEGISLATION

At the request of Circuit Judge Ashford further argument will be had in his court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning on the constitutionality of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The test is the result of two actions for damages, one against the Marconi Wireless Company and the other against the Hawaiian Dredging Company, recently filed in circuit court. Judge Ashford took the matter under advisement last week, but has since found a number of points overlooked in the initial argument.

President John D. Cooper filed a petition in the superior court asking that the Cooper Aircraft Co. of Bridgeport be thrown into the hands of a receiver.

Ball Playing at Outrigger Beach Held Dangerous

Henry W. Kinney Thinks Ordinance Would Put Stop to Practise

This, says Henry W. Kinney, is a case either for the police or the supervisors. Phil B. Danky narrowly escaped assassination on the beach near the Outrigger Club recently when a water-soaked baseball, whizzing through the air, missed his head by only a few inches.

Kinney is of the opinion that the ball was not thrown intentionally. The missile doubtless was the result of poor fielding or wild throwing on the part of some bather, he says. But he declares that the practise of playing baseball on the beach and in the water should be stopped, and for this reason opines it is a case either for the police or city dads.

"It would have been a sorry day for Danky had he been hit with that baseball," says Kinney. "The ball barely missed him. It is getting so that one cannot get a bath at the Outrigger Club without endangering himself to being hit by flying baseballs. If all those who play ball were professionals it would be different—but most of those who play don't even know how to catch a ball. Balls fly everywhere!"

Kinney states he has been informed by Alexander Hume Ford that the only way to stop the ball playing would be through an ordinance. "But we haven't such an ordinance here," he adds, "and Ford says we should have one."

"Personally," he declares, "I am in favor of an ordinance or any other means of stopping this ball playing. One cannot lie on the beach without having ball players running all over him, let alone the danger of being hit. 'But if Danky and Ford cannot stop it, I don't think that anything I could say would amount to much.'"

Kinney says he has never been hit by a baseball, but that he is taking some awful chances every time he goes in swimming.

At a meeting of the liquor license commission late yesterday afternoon the charges against Paddy Ryan, McTigue & Co., Gonzales & Co., and Sumida & Co. of having improperly labeled liquors in their possession were reviewed. The board heard the defense and postponed the matter until June 21.

Some evidence was heard to show that the transgressions, if any, were due to mistakes.

DISCUSSION BY SUPERVISORS OF BONDS LIKELY

Passage of payrolls is the only business scheduled for tonight's meeting of the board of supervisors, but there are a number of other matters that may possibly come up. Prominent among these is the bond issue proposed by the mayor. None of the committees of the board have any report ready to make, but interest in the measure has been intensified during the week and there is sure to be some discussion of it.

The memorial has not yet been disposed of and may come up tonight. George M. Collins, city engineer, is ready to ask the board to call for bids on Beach Walk, but it was said this morning that the city attorney's office would not have its end ready. Amendments to the purchasing agent ordinance and a resolution appropriating $300 for investigation expenses of the city attorney over which there has been considerable discussion by the board, also may come up again tonight.

PROPOSE CHARGE FOR USING OF CITY AMBULANCE

Use of the city ambulance for the transportation of patients from their homes to hospitals will cost $5 a trip, if plans of the police committee are carried out.

During April the ambulance made 36 trips which would have been charged for under amendments to ordinance as proposed. This would have netted the city $180 and as the emergency hospital is costing more than at first figured, members of the police committee believe that this revenue is needed. "It is only proposed to charge for the use of the city ambulance for private purposes," said Robert Horner, chairman of the police committee, this morning. "There is no more reason for the city to furnish an ambulance for the transportation of patients from their homes to the hospitals, or vice versa, or from incoming vessels to the hospitals, than there is for it to furnish a taxi cab."

POLICE NOTES

The wild dash of a horse and wagon was stopped this morning on King street by Traffic Officer W. Leggos when the horse bore down upon him from River street. Ah Kum, a driver for the Oahu Pio Factory, was arrested on a charge of not tying the horse securely.
